'RIFLE IN ONE HAND'

Cuba Forces Alerted For Commando Raids

HAVANA (Reuters)—The Cuban armed forces were in a state of general alert today, anniversary of the country's independence from Spain and the day on which anti-Castro forces had threatened commando raids and sabotage.

The government-controlled press warned that any "agents of the CIA (U.S. Central Intelligence Agency) discovered in Cuba would be crushed."

There has been no announcement about the alert but it was reliably learned troops have been recalled to barracks, all leaves cancelled and the armed forces put on a basis of general alert.

Havana itself remained calm and there was no sign police and militia in the city had been reinforced.

The newspaper Hoy, organ of the Communist party, said in an editorial the best way on responding to "imperialist attacks" was to "redouble our work" while at the same time keeping "rifle in one hand."

It denounced members of exile action groups as "agents of the Central Intelligence Agency" and called on the people "to leave no trace of them" if they appear in Cuba.

Havana radio, monitored in Miami, said today all workers in Oriente province were being mobilized "for the defence of the country and the defence of production."

The broadcast said top military and political leaders in the province conferred Tuesday in Santiago de Cuba.

(A report by Cuban exile forces in Miami Tuesday claimed anti-Castro raiders had blown up six bridges in Cuba. (The raiders were led by Manuel Artime, leader of the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion in April, 1961, the sources said.)

(The exiles, connected with Artime's Revolutionary Recovery Movement, said the leader would issue a communique about the operation shortly from "somewhere in Central America.") However, the report caused confusion among spokesmen for the exile group in Miami. Edgar Supo, chief press officer of the group, said "we know nothing about this."

(In still another report Manuel Ray, another exile leader, was said to be on his way to Cuba with trained saboteurs and infiltrators.)

In Havana, meanwhile, Western newspaper men who had planned to make trips into the interior were requested to postpone their visit by the foreign ministry.

Cuban newspapers and radio and television stations did not carry the Miami reports of exile activity.

But Industries Minister Ernesto Guevara said in a speech Sunday that further raids by exile groups could be expected because "the United States is behind them."

Rumors circulated freely in Havana about developments outside the city, particularly in Oriente province where Premier Fidel Castro had his headquarters as leader of the revolutionary movement that brought about the overthrow of president Fulgencio Batista in 1959.

ONE SUSPECT TRIES SUICIDE

Slayer Still Aboard 'Hell Ship'?

HONOLULU (UPI)—A prime suspect in the axe-slashing of a freighter captain was hospitalized today following a suicide attempt—but the vessel's radio-man was convinced the slayer still is among the near-mutinous crew aboard the "hell ship."

And while the mystery of the freighter Pomona grew with the suspense of an adventure novel, authorities from several countries still were not sure which of them should seek the solution.

The victim of the slaying was Capt. Jacob Natvig, 51, of Norway. He was hacked to death with a fire axe in his cabin last Friday, while the vessel was en route from Los Angeles to Formosa.

The man described as a prime suspect is Chief Stewart Anker Baardsen, 42, of Christiansen, Norway. Authorities said he slashed his wrists with a piece of broken slate.

Baardsen had been drinking with the skipper shortly before the slaying, and customs officials found a blood-spattered shirt in the chief steward's cabin.

"I want to take my life because everybody is against me," Baardsen told Alf Olsen, first mate and acting skipper of the ship. Olsen had previously named Baardsen as a prime suspect—but emphasized that he was not thoroughly convinced the chief steward was the killer.

Nelsi R. Almejun, an Argentine and the Pomona's radio-man, said he believed the slayer was still aboard the vessel.

Olsen and Almejun were the only two members of the 25-man crew allowed ashore.

Almejun told authorities he had defended Baardsen in the presence of other officers and crewmen and that someone—he believed the killer—had later tampered with the lock on his cabin door.

He said the slain captain had been drunk almost every day since the vessel left California and that many of the crewmen were "disorderly and had no respect for authority."

Olsen, one of the seven Norwegian crewmen who have refused to sail further on the ship, confirmed that there had been unrest and near violence aboard the Pomona.

The chief mate said that at one point several members of the crew pulled knives on the officers and threatened them.

He explained that when the seamen had signed aboard, they were given the impression that they would work six months in coastal trade along the Brazilian coast. Instead, the vessel made two voyages to the Orient, and most of the crewmen had been aboard for about eight months.

Almejun told authorities he had defended Baardsen in the presence of other officers and crewmen and that someone—he believed the killer—had later tampered with the lock on his cabin door.

Mike's Flag Would Flunk Art Students

TORONTO (CP)—Heads of two art schools here say the maple leaf design being suggested by Prime Minister Pearson for a new Canadian flag would not be acceptable to their students.

Sidney Watson, principal of the Ontario College of Art, said if a student submitted this design with his application to enter the college he would not be admitted. He said the design is "dreadful."

Charles Goldhammer, head of the art department at Central Technical School, said he would fail a student responsible for such a poor design.

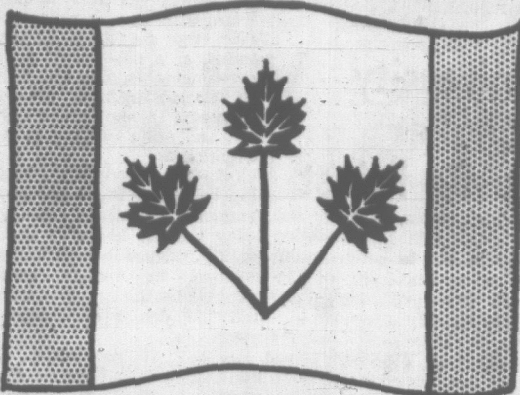

Mr. Goldhammer said, however, Mr. Pearson has the right idea "to have the three maple leaves from the old flag (Red Ensign) included in the new one."

Abstract artist Harold Town said the prime minister's design would be a good thing to wrap the garbage in.

"The design is monstrously pedestrian," he said.

Alan Jarvis, editor of Canadian Art Magazine, and Denis McCarthy, president of the Ontario Society of Artists, both said they like the basic concept of the suggested design.

But Mr. Jarvis thinks the maple leaves look "wispy" and need strengthening and Miss McCarthy would rather have a single maple leaf instead of the suggested three.

ONE OF THREE DESIGNS for Canadian flag expected to be submitted to Parliament this week is represented in this unofficial sketch. It shows three red maple leaves on single stem on a white background with blue bars at either end. Other designs suggested are red maple leaves on pale blue background. Sketches such as this have been criticized as being too spindly, but no official design has yet been released. (CP photo.)

PLEBISCITE URGED

Legion Erupts In Flag Blast

WINNIPEG (CP)—Opposition to a maple leaf design for a Canadian flag, proposed by the federal cabinet, erupted today on the floor of the Royal Canadian Legion convention.

Prime Minister Pearson said in Ottawa Tuesday his cabinet has decided to replace the Red Ensign with a flag designed with maple leaves and plans to choose Thursday the specific design it will place before Parliament.

At the convention of Legionnaires, an Ontario resolution called on the Legion to recognize only the Red Ensign, and another from the Legion's Pacific Command called for a national plebiscite to decide the issue.

The chair ruled the two resolutions from the floor will be dealt with later.

A spokesman for the Pacific Command rose at the beginning of today's session and said the group is sending a telegram to Mr. Pearson protesting his choice of flags.

CALLS VOTE FARCE
The delegate read the telegram to the convention. It said that the free parliamentary vote on the flag promised by Mr. Pearson is a farce.

The telegram said Mr. Pearson is enforcing his brand of nationalism to maintain his reputation as an international diplomat.

Tuesday night the Legion for the third time endorsed the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag.

In a shouted voice vote, the 1,500 delegates gave unanimous approval to a resolution favoring the Red Ensign.

In a parallel move, the convention also voted to send telegrams to every member of the House of Commons outlining the stand.

Both moves came at the tail end of the Tuesday convention session. Only hours before in Ottawa, Prime Minister Pearson disclosed the cabinet had decided on a maple leaf design for the flag.

BRINGS REBUKE
The disclosure brought a rebuke from the Legion president, Judge C. C. Sparling, who read The Canadian Press story of the cabinet decision to delegates.

He said he was "bitterly disappointed" in the move and said the prime minister should have waited until the Legion had decided the matter before making a binding decision.

Judge Sparling said in the past federal governments had listened to the Legion with respect and attention. "In this case it is not so."

"I do not know what the reason is for the haste and priority."

Judge Sparling said he hoped that before the convention delegates would ask for a national plebiscite on the flag issue.

Gov't Troops Fall Back Again

VIENTIANE (AP)—The last positions held by neutralist forces in the Plaine des Jarres region have fallen to the Communists, Premier Souvanna Phouma announced today.

Neutralist Gen. Kong Le abandoned his emergency command post and withdrew further southwest of the plain in the face of continuing Communist pressure, a spokesman for Souvanna said.

(U.S. State Secretary Rusk urgently recalled Adlai Stevenson, chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, from a European trip because of the deepening crisis in Southeast Asia.)

A government statement said "following massive attacks, prepared well in advance launched by the Lao-Viet (Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese) troops against our (neutralist) position in the Plaine des Jarres and Muong Phanh, the last neutralist positions existing on the plateau of Xieng Khouang have fallen."

MAJOR SPEECH to UN Security Council will be delivered Thursday by chief U.S. delegate Adlai Stevenson. Stevenson has cut short a tour of Europe to speak on what U.S. spokesmen describe as "the deteriorating situation in Southeast Asia."

FOR VIET NAM

U.S. Hikes Asian Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives today unanimously approved to add $125,000,000 in military and economic aid for South Viet Nam's struggle against communism.

Even as it acted, Defense Secretary McNamara went before the armed services committee, and said American soldiers in South Viet Nam "are receiving the best equipment available for the unique task at hand."

There have been charges that use of obsolete planes had caused the deaths of two American flyers.

McNamara and other top officials presented the case for stepped-up aid to South Viet Nam to the foreign affairs committee Tuesday. The committee voted today to add $55,000,000 to military assistance, and $70,000,000 to economic aid, a total of $125,000,000 as President Johnson had asked.

The armed services committee released a copy of the statement McNamara presented to it in closed session.

EQUAL SOVEREIGNTY

Canada Suddenly Emerges In American Awareness

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

WASHINGTON—While two distinguished diplomats try to analyze, codify and rationalize the unique interdependence of Canada and the United States, its primary fact has been established already and its spirit has improved almost beyond belief.

The primary fact was never set down as clearly as in the recent report of the 25th American Assembly, an influential non-partisan organization of representative thinkers whose opinions, in this field, fully represent the policy of the present United States government.

"There are many international relations," says the assembly, "but no such relationship" as that prevailing between the nations of North America. Hence "it is profoundly important to every aspect and problem in the relationship... that the two countries deliberately accept the independent existence of each other and their equal sovereignty."

Every U.S. Act

Then comes this paragraph in which Americans assert a doctrine long asserted by Canadians, but seldom heard by their neighbors:

"The disparities of power between the two nations are such that awareness of these principles (of unquestioned sovereignty) must pervade every American policy, every American act and every American attitude toward Canada. We affirm this to be the bedrock premise on which the relationship stands.

"Our ability to be hopeful about the problems we face rests on our confidence that this fact of life is today a premise of American life itself, not merely a policy of United States diplomacy."

No one who has been in Washington this spring can doubt that the American government fully accepts Canada's "equal sovereignty" despite its inferiority of power.

To be sure, this principle has always been accepted theoretically in official documents and public rhetoric. But now it has become, as the American Assembly says, a practical, major and daily concern of an American government distracted by countless other concerns overseas.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

It's getting so that you can't trust a cop these days . . . If you haven't noticed, those three-wheeled motorcycles used by Victoria policemen carry signs that show records of city traffic mishaps.

The signs are supposed to remind motorists to be careful, and that's a fine idea. But I do wish the police would get their records straight.

Noticed during Monday's Victoria Day parade was one bike carrying this record: "Total accidents 709."

Moving in the same direction but on the other side of Douglas Street was a bike that showed: "Total accidents 812."

The convertible inched along in the Victoria Day parade slower than the landau Queen Victoria once used, and the living image of Her Late Majesty in the back seat appeared as unamused as ever.

An American in the crowd wondered aloud who she was as perennial regal impostor Mrs. Clare Hamilton McCaul passed by.

Replied a tiny Victoria-Scottish lady nearby: "Oh, that's a waxwork of Queen Victoria."

Mrs. McCaul didn't even blink.

The Colwood Shopping Plaza is way ahead of its time.

The big plastic sign at the entrance reminds us 51 weeks in advance to "Remember Mom on May 10th."

And on top of the provincial cork-and-label establishment are the words "Government Star," obviously one of the first commercial uses of the new phonetic spelling recently introduced at John Stubbs School.

Or perhaps our Big Brother is introducing Newspeak.

Blasters widening Quarantine Road near the William Head prison play a mean game of quills.

Perched above the road on the top branches of a 120-foot fir is an old rife, fired up to its vantage-point by the blast which it was supposed to muffle.

The next high wind should bring interesting results to some driver below.

The highway under construction between Campbell River and Kelsey Bay proved a rough ride for colleague Ray Sinclair during his recent vacation.

But in his search for the sun, the displaced Australian decided to try the logging road to Long Beach too.

"The worst road in the world," he said.

At the end of the 46-mile horror stretch, late in the evening, he wasn't surprised to see only one car arrive about 15 minutes later . . . a tiny car bought for $65, he was told.

But he was surprised to find the driver was Jim Duffy, a wandering Australian from a Perth suburb only a couple of miles from his own.

Victoria now has its own Old Faithful, a majestic geyser of water shooting 40 feet or higher from a mysterious source below the boulevard of Lansdowne Road.

Its eruption can be predicted to the very minute—it comes on every night at exactly the same time as the new automatic sprinklers, a remarkable coincidence indeed.

No smoking deterrent on the market will take away your desire to smoke, the National Better Business Bureau claims.

Some products may serve as an aid, the NBBB says, but this is primarily psychological.

"An active determination to stop is essential," a spokesman said.

"The NBBB knows of no drug or combination of drugs which will, in itself, cure the tobacco habit or permanently eliminate the desire for tobacco."

GOV'T ENGINEER:

Drainage Flows Away From Lake

A provincial government health engineer Tuesday told metro health board that surface drainage from the Hartland Road garbage dump flows in a northerly direction away from Prospect Lake.

But Prospect Lake and District Community Association vice-president D. M. Sandford said a privately-retained engineering firm surveyed the hilly area and reported that part of the drainage flows south into Kilarney Lake and thence to Prospect Lake.

LEGION

The flag resolution was not scheduled to reach the floor until later. But it was slipped in Tuesday because of what one official termed "the emergent nature" of the situation.

Judge Sparling told delegates he wanted the Legion stand on the record again to guide the executive. The Legion has endorsed the Red Ensign as the national flag at two previous conventions.

The flag issue has loomed as big as a wall-high Red Ensign that forms the head-table backdrop at the meeting hall in a Winnipeg hotel.

Emotions ran high. One delegate said bitterly the Legion should be blamed for its predicament. When the veterans organization earlier "took the Union Jack off the Legion badge, it gave the prime minister the opportunity to take it off the flag."

Almost lost in the flag clamor are deliberations on government plans to transfer operational control of some veterans' hospitals to local civilian agencies.

Delegates voted Tuesday to place a resolution opposing the move in the hands of a special committee made up of provincial command presidents. The committee is expected to bring a recommendation down before the convention closes Friday.

Members also voted Tuesday to urge the federal government to apply the full force of existing legislation to prohibit the distribution of seditious literature through the mail.

MSGR. JACQUES GARNEAU

... soldier-priest

University Speaker To Be Priest

Soldier, priest, educator and now universities foundation executive will be congregation speaker at University of Victoria's first graduation ceremonies Monday afternoon.

He is Monsignor Jacques Garneau, 46, associate director of the Canadian Universities Foundation, who will address the class and several hundred guests on the subject Knowledge and Understanding.

CUF is an organization to which most Canadian universities belong—it is the executive function of the National Conference of Canadian Universities and Colleges, which accepted University of Victoria last October.

Msgr. Garneau, who was born in Quebec City, served in the Royal Canadian Artillery signals as a non-commissioned militia officer for three years early in the thirties and became a militia second lieutenant in 1937, when he graduated from Laval University with his arts degree.

He became a licentiate of theology at Laval in 1941 and the following year joined the chaplain service, going overseas as a captain with the Second Canadian Corps. He was wounded in Normandy in August, 1944.

In 1949 he was appointed under-secretary at Laval and the following year was also made secretary of the graduate school. In 1953 he was named secretary-general at Laval and became a major at 7 Militia Group headquarters.

By 1957, Msgr. Garneau had become moderator at Laval and in 1962 he was named to his present post, also becoming director of the international programs division of NCCUC.

His miscellaneous credentials include participation in overseas conferences and membership in various national and international committees connected with student and university affairs.

WOUNDED

As he had done in Winnipeg, Mr. Pearson threw cold water on the idea that a national referendum should be held on the question of a new flag. "I think it would be better for the government to take its responsibility in the matter by submitting a particular proposal to Parliament, and then let members of Parliament, as the representatives of the people, decide it."

He said it had been made clear to members of the Liberal party that they could vote as their conscience dictates without fear of being read out of the party. It was a personal question, close to the conscience and emotions of individuals.

It was still too early to say when Parliament would see the government-approved flag although it would be in a "very short time."

The government had no plans to table the designs now being considered, although Opposition Leader Diefenbaker suggested it was a denial of the rights of Parliament not to see the designs that were shown outside.

Far from denying the rights of Parliament, said the prime minister, the flag legislation will mark the first time that "a matter of this kind" has not been decided by cabinet order.

New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas said he thought it would be a common courtesy to present the designs to Parliament rather than "peddling various designs around the country."

Two basic designs, believed to be in the forefront of cabinet consideration, were shown to a Winnipeg press conference Monday. These, Mr. Pearson told the Commons were "some of a great many" under study.

Mr. Diefenbaker wanted to know whether the designs shown in Winnipeg were among those considered by cabinet or were "they simply an emanation of his (Mr. Pearson's) own desire to bring about an even greater disunity in Canada than he has succeeded in doing."

"My purpose in the pursuit of this policy," said the prime minister, "contrary to what (Mr. Diefenbaker) has said, is to bring about a greater degree of unity in Canada. In that objective I hope—I am sure—I will get the support of (Mr. Diefenbaker) and of every other honorable member of the House."

HUTCHISON Three Minor Groups Back Proposed Flag

OTTAWA (CP) — Leaders of three opposition parties in the Commons have indicated they will support Prime Minister Pearson's choice of a new Canadian flag featuring three maple leaves.

Mr. Pearson told the Commons Tuesday his Liberal government would stand or fall on the maple leaf design.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said the NDP caucus won't discuss the matter until the government submits a design to Parliament, apparently next week. But his party was on record as favoring a distinctive new Canadian flag.

Creditist leader Real Caouette said the party's 13 MPs will definitely vote for the government's motion on the new flag.

And Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson chimed in that he is prepared to go along with the prime minister's choice.

Mr. Thompson said he isn't prejudiced against the Red Ensign but "it really is the flag of the British Merchant Marine with the Canadian coat of arms added."

Support of the three parties would guarantee the minority Liberal government's survival even if Opposition Leader Diefenbaker accepts an invitation voiced by Mr. Pearson Tuesday to make the flag question a matter of confidence.

A man seen going north on the wrong side of Burnside was convicted of impaired driving when he appeared in court.

Paul Miskulin, 566 Bay Street, was fined $300 and lost his licence. Evidence showed he couldn't stand without support when police asked him to get out of his car.

Big Trade Issues

Naturally, in an election year, Washington politicians of all parties have no wish to quarrel with American magazines and must quarrel with Mr. Pearson's rather confused effort to preserve those of Canada.

These three frictions—discriminatory taxes, automobile tariffs and magazine problems—will not be the last to appear on the Canadian-American agenda and they are all minor beside the shaking issues of international trade posed by the Kennedy Round of tariff bargaining.

In the edictive trade negotiations to open next autumn Canada must play a major part because it is a huge trader. What part? Will Canada follow the protectionist course outlined quite plainly by Mr. Gordon or the low-tariff expansionist principles represented by Mitchell Sharp?

This is the great unanswered question of the continental relationship now entering a new phase of enlightened friendship and, at times, of inevitable disagreement between friends.

Mikes Discovered In Our Embassies

OTTAWA (CP) — Several dozen listening devices have been discovered over the years in Canadian chanceries and embassy personnel residences in Iron Curtain countries, the external affairs department said today.

This is a standard technique in Iron Curtain countries, said a department spokesman in commenting on the U.S. revelation Tuesday that more than 40 microphones have been discovered in the last 11 years in the American embassy in Moscow. (See Page 3).

They Like Mike

The truth is that the American government likes and trusts the Pearson government. It detested and distrusted the Diefenbaker government.

On the other hand, the American government has found that the Pearson government, though friendly, is surprisingly tough at the bargaining table. Not only tough, but sometimes grossly mistaken, as it has lately admitted.

Next to Mr. Diefenbaker no Canadian statesman of modern times has rivaled Walter Gordon in the contest for unpopularity at Washington. His first budget, in 1963, almost destroyed overnight the quick accord built between Mr. Pearson and the late president Kennedy.

While most of the anti-American devices of the budget were hastily withdrawn, Mr. Gordon has not been rehabilitated in Washington as he apparently supposes.

Anyone skilled in reading between the lines of diplomatic language could see at once that the recent speech of George Ball, American under-secretary of state, was nothing but a sharp rebuke to the Canadian finance minister. His nationalistic and protectionist sentiments, as viewed from Washington, cut straight across Mr. Pearson's long-term policies and the promising Heene-Merchandise initiative.

FLAG FIGHT

Bennett Smiled But Tory Riled

A local MP says Canada's proposed new flag could split the nation; but Premier W. A. C. Bennett is just amused by the controversy.

"Just say I smiled," said Mr. Bennett when asked Tuesday about the flag.

George Chatterton, Conservative MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, said there should be a national plebiscite on the flag.

A staunch Legion member, Mr. Chatterton favors the Red Ensign over Prime Minister Pearson's maple leaf design.

"UNDERHANDED"

He said Mr. Pearson is trying to force acceptance of his design by "an underhand way."

Mr. Chatterton said an election on the flag issue would be dangerous and Mr. Pearson knows that the New Democratic Party and Social Credit will not defeat his minority government because they do not want a vote now.

"I think Pearson has underestimated the reaction of the English-speaking people," Mr. Chatterton said.

"The only way for him to get out of this is to call a plebiscite in which the ballots are counted in Ottawa and the votes are not identifiable by province."

STRONG FEELINGS

The choice should be Red Ensign or maple leaf, Mr. Chatterton said.

"The people feel very strongly on this and this issue could split the country."

Three B.C. cabinet ministers differed on the flag.

Health Minister Eric Martin and Labor-Education Minister Leslie Peterson favor the Red Ensign. Resources Minister Ray Williston says Canada should have its own distinctive flag.

TERRORISTS SPEAR PAIR

Guiana Union Strife Toll Hits 17

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (CP)—Four masked terrorists carrying home-made spears killed one man and injured another Tuesday, bringing to 17 the number of violent deaths since the Guyana Agricultural Workers Union began its strike 97 days ago.

Jattan Sooknahan, 24, died shortly after the attack. A companion, identified only as Ramipardavis, 24, is in critical condition in Georgetown hospital. The two men were removing furniture from the home of a friend who had fled the wave of terrorism in British Guiana's sugar belt when they were attacked.

Other acts of violence on the east and west coasts were reported during the 48-hour period.

The Guyana Agricultural Workers Union is seeking recognition as a bargaining agent for field and factory workers in the sugar industry.

The Manpower Citizens Association, the other union involved in the dispute, has been called in to see Governor Richard Luyt today.

PRINCE WINS $1.50 DAMAGES

LONDON (AP)—Prince Charles has won 10 shillings ($1.50) in damages from an ice cream man.

Lawyers for the 15-year-old heir to the throne complained in court Tuesday that Reg Butchers, 53, had for four years been selling ice cream on Dartmoor, which is part of the prince's estates, without permission.

They asked for £400 ($1,200) damages and £8 ($24) costs. All they got was the 10 shillings plus an injunction preventing Butchers from ever selling on the prince's property again.

"It's put me out of business," said Butchers, a former army sergeant with nine children.

Legion Wants Hatemongers Restricted

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Royal Canadian Legion Tuesday urged government action to combat distribution of hate literature through the mails.

The 1,500 delegates at the Legion's national convention shouted unanimous approval to a resolution asking the government to apply "the full force of existing laws to prohibit the use of the mails" for such literature.

It also asked that existing legislation be strengthened if it is insufficient to curb the practice.

The voice vote followed a talk by Municipal Affairs Minister Robert Smellie of Manitoba on the activities of the National White American Party.

He told delegates the organization—a successor to the Nazi Party in Canada—distributes literature from a Scarborough, Ont., address calling on Canadians to hate Jews.

"This is the sort of thing we can do without in Canada," Mr. Smellie said to a round of applause. "This is the sort of thing we were fighting against."

Mr. Smellie read a letter given wide circulation through the mail from Col. P. J. Fry, described as the party's national organizer.

It claimed Jews sponsor communism and called for their sterilization to prevent expansion.

CBC Shelves Pearson TV Film

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says the CBC permanently shelved a 60-minute filmed profile of Prime Minister Pearson, costing about $35,000, seven months after the film was started.

The film was suppressed despite the fact that officials of Mr. Pearson's office and Mr. Pearson himself screened various stages of the film five times with no major complaint about the last version, the newspaper says.

Telecast plans had developed as far as making three air dates: One Feb. 12, another in March and a third June 25. The June telecast date was quashed two weeks ago.

The film was written, directed and produced by Richard Barentine of Intervideo Productions Limited in association with the CBC.

The film offered a candid look at the prime minister and his office during a day in October when the government was beset with problems.

Ron Fraser, CBC vice-president in charge of corporate affairs, is quoted as saying: "The film is simply not up to our standards. The decision was made by network officials in Toronto. The lighting was poor, the sound was so bad it made me feel uncomfortable and the camera work was so erratic as to make me dizzy."

Reeves Hagen, national supervisor of public affairs, said today the film lacked intellectual grasp of the subject.

The number of registered cars in Sweden increased to 1,710,000 from 540,000 between 1953 and 1963.

CABELDU ... 17 years director

Realtors Name Fred Cabeldu Life Member

For only the fourth time in the history of the Victoria Real Estate Board, an honorary life membership was handed out Tuesday night.

It was presented at the board's annual dinner in the Empress Hotel.

This time it went to Fred N. Cabeldu, who has served 17 years as a director of the board.

Said newly elected president D. G. J. Humphries: "This must surely be a record." He pointed out that Mr. Cabeldu had been the founder of multiple listing in the trade.

"He had faith in it and when others wanted to drop it he would keep it going. We all know what it means today," added Mr. Humphries.

300 ATTEND

More than 300 attended the meeting to hear a talk on "Sales After the Service" by Mary L. Vaughan, of Burbank, Calif.

Mrs. Vaughan, the only woman ever to win the Realtor-of-the-Year award, spoke of the necessity of continuing to please customers after selling them a home.

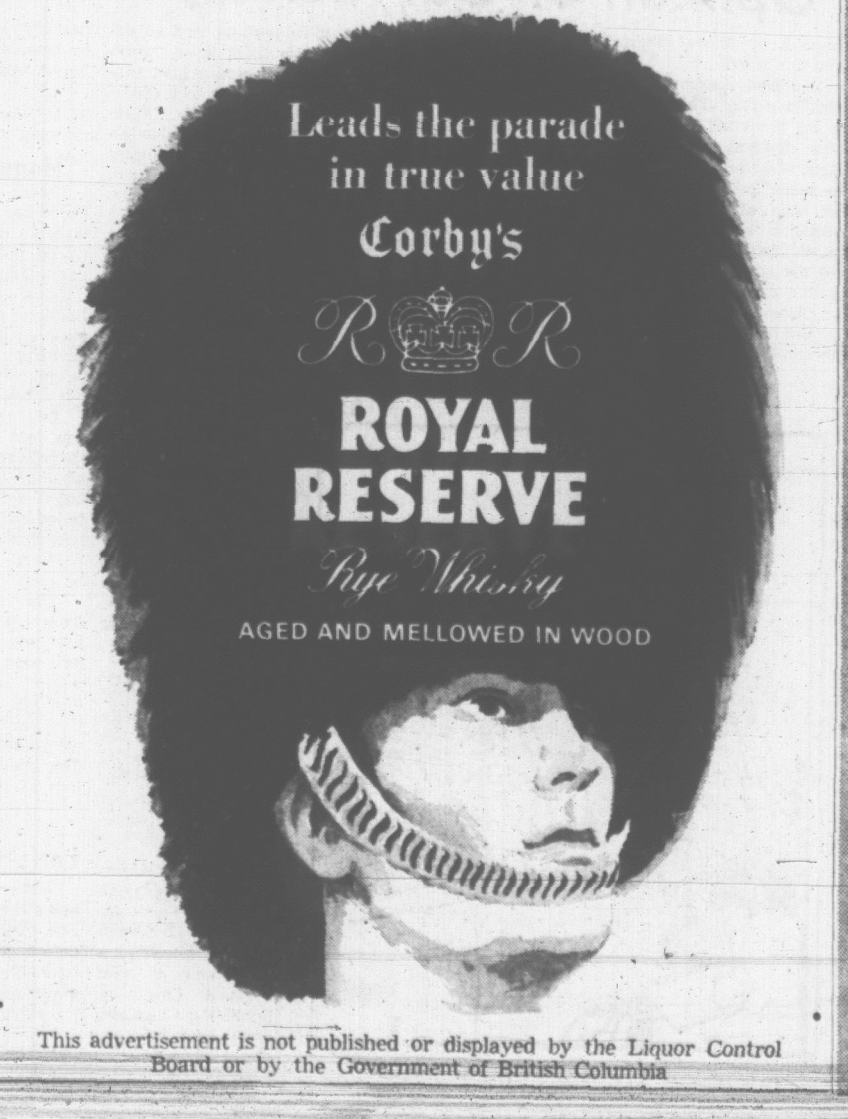

Little services such as Christmas, birthday and anniversary cards all helped please the customer, said Mrs. Vaughan.

REMEMBERED

This sort of service was remembered by the customer long after they had moved in, she added.

During the meeting the following officers were elected: D. G. J. Humphries, president; L. E. Pope and J. L. P. Mears, vice-presidents; directors for two-year terms, C. W. Conrad, C. L. Fraser and D. A Flag to Fly

MR. PEARSON SHOWED great courage in taking his proposal for a new Canadian flag to a national convention of the Royal Canadian Legion. The Legion is the central focus of sentiment in favor of preserving the Red Ensign as the country's flag. In using the convention as a trial audience for his plan Mr. Pearson met the opposition head-on.

Obviously, the Prime Minister is caught between two heavy pressures. On the one hand, French Canada is demanding independence, greater control of its affairs, even separatism. If Quebec stays with Canada it will want a complete severance from even the lingering British influence seen in the presence of the Union Jack on the Red Ensign. It was because of this strong French-Canadian sentiment that the question of a flag was originally raised. Mr. Pearson, bidding for the Quebec vote, made it a plank in his election platform—though it may yet prove to be a trapdoor.

On the other hand there is still a vigorous pro-British sentiment across Canada, and allied with it the strong wish of many Canadians to retain the emblem which they have regarded all their lives as the flag of Canada.

From these two opposite forces grow the reasons why it would be most unwise to decide on a national flag for Canada at this time.

In choosing the maple leaf or a combination of three of them as his proposed design for a flag, Mr. Pearson is obviously groping for something that will appeal to the anti-Red Ensign forces while not rousing the pros to too much antagonism. The maple leaf is sufficiently familiar, and sufficiently employed, to win at least passive acceptance in many quarters. But this is a political solution to the problem of deciding on an emblem. Merely finding something nobody actively dislikes is hardly the best way to create a national flag.

In any case a picture of a maple leaf has serious defects as a national flag design; it smacks too much of the heraldic oddity which British Columbians were told a few years ago was to be their provincial flag. Pictures of a country's native plants or animals may be fine as symbols for badges, distinguishing marks or commercial devices, but they lack the heraldic sophistication that a national flag should have. And as one writer said on this page yesterday, there are thousands of prairie Canadians who never see a maple tree throughout their lives.

But these are questions of alternatives. The real problem is the conflict between those who want to abolish the Red Ensign and those who wish to retain it.

There could not have been a more unfavorable time in our history in which to try to settle such a question. If the Red Ensign goes, a large portion of the people of Canada will always believe that they were robbed of their flag to appease Quebec, that Parliament gambled on English-Canadians having more patience than French-Canadians. This will not produce the unity which Mr. Pearson seeks, for already there is a rising tide of sentiment against granting Quebec still further "rights" in order to pacify the extremists. The flag issue should not be decided by appeals to save national unity or to avoid a general election.

This is the wrong climate in which to make such an important and lasting decision. In any case, a flag, like tradition, should grow and achieve acceptance through familiarity over the years, through sentiments and loyalties arising from national joys or dangers. The Red Ensign has done that for Canada as a whole. An alternative cannot be chosen as one would select a new advertising trade mark, and should not be imposed with only edict to support it.

EVENTS IN LAOS POSE A new danger to the defenders of South Viet Nam, for Communist control of the neighboring country would make still more difficult the problem of fighting North Viet Nam guerrillas.

But the lesson of Laos involves more than military deployment. For Laos was under an arranged neutrality, guaranteed by both East and West and giving the fullest freedom to rightists, leftists and those in between.

Yet not since the agreement was formed has Laos been wholly free from Communist attempts to gain advantage. Now full-scale fighting is reported from the Plain of Jars and the neutralist government of Prime Minister Souvanna Phouma is said to be seriously threatened again.

Transfer this precedent to the situation in South Viet Nam, and the movement, urged by France, for establishment of a neutralist regime in that country may be seen in perspective. Would neutralism in South Viet Nam mean anything but an opportunity for the Communists to continue their war of aggression in another guise? Would they stop short of outright fighting when preliminary propaganda and civil infiltration had prepared the ground?

Laos is a problem. It is also a lesson which should be well learned.

Mr. Johnson Holds the Line

THE STRONG DETERMINATION voiced by President Johnson in recent weeks to prevent inflationary forces from entering the American economic scene will be welcomed by Canadians. Even with price stability in the United States the possibility exists that mismanagement of the Canadian economy could result in inflationary pressures winning out; without American price stability, inflation in Canada is a certainty.

It is heartening, therefore, that President Johnson has pledged himself to use every power of government to avoid a run-up of prices which could dislocate the present lively business expansion. Additionally, of course, the president has his eye on the political effects of inflation and the urgent need to keep the American dollar strong.

The president has made a direct approach to the two groups which will have the most influence on efforts to hold the line against inflation—labor and business. His approach has been blunt, sensible and, in an election year, courageous.

To a group of business leaders at the White House recently he said: "Defending the dollar by tight competitive pricing is the job of every businessman. If you weaken the dollar, you weaken the whole free world's monetary system."

A few days later he told a group of labor leaders: "You must remember that the economy cannot absorb big cost increases and big price increases without endangering our progress."

Mr. Johnson made it clear to both parties that he is ready to take alternative steps if his suggestions are ignored. Business has been told that any signs of business expansion turning into a runaway boom would be met with fiscal measures to dampen things down. He wasn't quite as blunt with labor leaders but the implication was clear that the president would initiate full-scale actions of the type used to settle the rail dispute recently, actions just short of enforced settlement.

The approach of the president to the economic situation in the United States is very near to what is needed in Canada at the present time. In Canada, as in the United States, corporate profits are rising to new record levels while at the same time both productive capacity and employment are well below optimum levels in most industries and in most parts of the country.

Despite the high level of prosperity, much of industry is operating in a buyers' market and needs to be as efficient and competitive as possible. Under these conditions, over the broad spectrum of the economy, there is little excuse for any drastic increases in either wages or prices.

Vehicle Safety Checks

BEFORE THE PROGRAM OF motor vehicle safety checks gets under way this summer, civic officials might be well advised to have the vehicles under their jurisdiction surveyed to find out if they would all pass the proposed tests.

It could conceivably be embarrassing to the city if some of the engineering department trucks which are being operated without brake lights to warn following traffic when the vehicles are coming to a stop were to be cited by the safety check crews. Perhaps at the same time civic officials might give some consideration to the installation of turn signals on all city trucks. The inadequacy of hand signals for large vehicles such as dump trucks has long been recognized by safety authorities.

It should be a matter of pride to civic officials that the vehicles and drivers under their jurisdiction should set a high standard of road safety and a good example for the other drivers in the community.

Before you change that... how about fixing the pole...?

Beach Access

The concern of the parks superintendent in the municipality of Saanich over beach access would be commendable if it were not so sadly out of keeping with past actions. The municipality, through its elected representatives and its servants, has condoned the practice by subdividers of abiding by the letter of the law where "access to the water" was concerned, but denying public use of beaches by ending accesses at the top of rocky bluffs.

A typical example exists at the foot of Hollydene Place. Here the access ends at the top of a precipitous rock bluff while a short distance to the north there is a delightful sandy beach. A short and much more reasonable access should have been insisted upon by the municipality when the subdivision was made so that the public could make use of the beach. Doubtless some of the other unused accesses are similarly located.

Shocked

I was shocked when I read the headline in Saturday's Times. What right has Mr. Pearson, with minority support in the House, to arbitrarily try and put over on the Canadian public a new rather insipid flag—merely I am convinced to pacify the French-Canadians and get a few more votes.

I am like hundreds of thousands of other Canadians, in favor of keeping the Red Ensign as our flag, as it is now in every sense our Canadian Flag. Canadians have fought under it; I have taken part in funerals in France during the First World War, at which Canadian casualties were buried, wrapped in the Red Ensign. It is flown at Canadian Embassies and High Commissioners' headquarters in many parts of the world as I have seen, and is accepted and

Giap Poised for the Viet Nam Punch

IN this disturbing Vietnamese situation, the most disturbing single feature is outside Viet Nam—across the border in strife-torn Laos. Beginning in October last year, the North Vietnamese Communists began to improve the roads and to send in troops on the line Tchepone-Saravane-Attopeu. These tiny, obscure towns, which might as well have been on the other side of the moon until a few years ago, have thus become centres to watch with the most anxious attention.

The main road across the North Vietnamese border into Laos links up with the road southwards to Tchepone, where there is also an airfield. Some time ago, the road from Tchepone to Saravane was improved for truck use. In the last months, the Communists have also completed an extension of this road running southwards again, from Saravane to the neighborhood of Attopeu.

Attopeu, with its airfield, is still held by the Laotian nationalist troops of General Phoumi Nosavan. But this tenuous occupation of Attopeu in no way impedes or threatens the North Vietnamese. They now have provided themselves, for the first time, with a good line of communications running right along the border of all the northerly provinces of South Viet Nam.

Measure of Threat

The threat thus created can be gauged from the time required to march from Attopeu, across the border, to Kontum, one of the two main centres of the high plateau region of South Viet Nam. The journey takes no more than two days—on foot.

A FRENCH-CANADIAN VIEW

Inspire Canadians With a Foreign Symbol?

SOMETIME before the last general election, a public opinion poll indicated that only 12 per cent of the population would favor the Canadian Red Ensign as our national flag. The political wisdom of anyone advocating such a measure through parliament is therefore highly questionable.

Nevertheless some vocal citizens are apparently bent on applying pressure to have this ensign approved officially as our national flag. Groups such as the Canadian Patriotic Association from Toronto, a stronghold of United Empire Loyalists, the Royal Canadian Legion, known until very recently as the Canadian Legion of the British Empire, and the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire are perfectly entitled to their imperialistic views on the flag issue. My views happen to be different.

It seems to me that Mr. Lester Pearson's headline on the flag issue has panicked these British-minded associations into grasping the Canadian Red Ensign as their last hope of retaining the Union Jack in our national flag. Pressed by time the ensign campaign appears to have been launched without the normal reasoning process but admittedly with a definite touch of Anglo-Saxon genius for organization. Let's examine some of the arguments advanced to support the ensign.

The statement that the ensign would be a source of inspiration to future generations because Canadians fought under it during the last two world wars does not impress the veterans who saw action. We know this claim is false. It has been refuted so convincingly from so many sources already that there is nothing left to squash.

Incorrect

In a widely circulated pamphlet, the government order-in-council of September 1945 concerning this flag is quoted in an attempt to create the general impression that the ensign is already our official national flag. This is not so.

A revealing part of this order has been somewhat slyly left out. It reads: "until such time as action is taken by parliament for the formal adoption of a

The threat is immediate, moreover, since regular battalions of the North Vietnamese Communist army are now strung out along the whole length of this road system, from Tchepone as far south as the outskirts of Attopeu. Estimates, vary, but at least seven such battalions have been moved since October, and it is quite likely that there are now as many as twelve.

The new troop deployment, it almost goes without saying, is a flagrant violation of the 1962 Geneva agreement to neutralize Laos. What is more important, it gives the North Vietnamese commander, the brilliant General Vo Nguyen Giap, the capability of infiltrating something like an additional division of North Vietnamese regulars into the northern part of South Viet Nam at almost any moment he may choose.

Strategy of Past

The true meaning of this wholly new feature of the situation can only be understood, if the strategy used by General Giap in the past is also understood. Consider, for example, the real turning point in his war against the French, which occurred in September, 1950.

At that time, as far as Viet Nam itself was concerned, the Communists were within a hairsbreadth of final defeat. In the north, they had been entirely driven out of the Red River Delta—the key strategic area of this earlier struggle. In the south, the desertion rate in the Communist guerrilla and other fighting units had reached 50 per cent.

General Giap had no remaining assets, in fact, except 14 battalions and some artillery units in training outside Viet Nam, in China. On September 10, 1950, he committed these last reserves at his disposal in a sudden, wholly unexpected attack on the French fort at Dong Kay. The French army had never experienced combat with any Communist unit larger than a company, or with better arms than home-made grenades, rifles and bamboo spears.

The China-trained Communist battalions thus achieved a demoralizing surprise. Dong Kay, Cao Bang and Langson—all the forts established by the French to guard the routes from China—were lost in quick succession. Great numbers of French soldiers and great stores of equipment were captured.

Crisis of Morale

The result was a crisis of morale, both in Indochina and in Paris. And although this crisis was overcome by giving the French command in Viet Nam to General De Latre De Tassigny, General De Latre also lost the war almost as soon as he reached Indochina, by yielding control of the Red River Delta to the Communists. Thereafter, the road was always downwards.

The point of this episode, and the point of Dienbienphu, is quite simple. General Giap has in fact twice shown that he has perfected an improvement of Mao Tse-Tung's "third phase." Instead of going over to general, large scale conventional operations, as Mao recommended, General Giap showed that it was enough to exert strictly local, but ruthlessly determined pressure on a single well-chosen pressure point.

He proved, in fact, that by winning a striking success at such a pressure point, he could cause apprehension, disorganization and demoralization to spread outwards to every part of the opposition's force. The present position in South Viet Nam, so fragile that it resembles Humpty-Dumpty on his wall, might well be made to order for this strategy of Giap's. And the battalions across the border in Laos look ominously like the means Giap needs to execute his strategy.

By JEAN ARCHAMBAULT

The flag issue will no doubt be a source of controversy for many weeks to come. Herewith are presented the comments of a French-Canadian writer.

national flag." When fairly and fully quoted how can this order be interpreted in any other way but as authorizing the ensign as an interim flag only?

In the same pamphlet it is also claimed that the Union Jack is the flag of the British Commonwealth. This is pure myth. There is no such thing as a flag for the Commonwealth of Nations, as this association is now correctly called.

Apart from the previous considerations, the fundamental and familiar objection to the Canadian Red Ensign as our national flag is that it is basically the British Merchant Navy emblem.

Only Canadian Symbol

The Canadian Badge or shield in the coat of arms was first altered in 1921, the arms are now those of Great Britain with the lilies of France in the fourth quarter, to which has been added three maple leaves on one stem at the base. In fact the maple leaf is the only true Canadian symbol on the Canadian ensign. Anyone claiming that this flag is distinctly Canadian is simply stretching his imagination past the limits of Canada.

It is also difficult to visualize a less distinctive design for a flag. There are so many Red Ensigns with or without small markings in the fly that at sea one must virtually give the captain an eyeball check to ascertain the identity of his ship.

From a design point of view, no matter from what angle you look at it, the Canadian Red Ensign is completely unsuitable as a distinctive Canadian flag. None of the practical considerations seem to deter its supporters because their only consideration is to fly the Union Jack, so it appears.

I realize the Jack is a matter of loyalty to some of our citizens, but since loyalty means support, what are they aiming to support? Internationally the Union Jack is still as always simply the flag of the British Empire, i.e., Great Britain and her remaining colonies. Surely it is not necessary to explain how Canada grew from a colony within the Empire to an independent nation within the Commonwealth.

Delayed Maturity

The process admittedly has been slow indeed and this ensign campaign is a good illustration of the very attitude which has delayed this nation in reaching full maturity. A decade or so ago some people were still arguing that no Canadian could be a fitting Governor-General. Now these same people presumably are trying to brainwash the Canadian public into believing that it would not be proper to have a national flag without a Union Jack.

Why can't all Canadians grow up nationally and stop living in the past? The Union Jack is a symbol of colonial status; why not regress completely and fly the emblem of New France, it would make just as much national sense.

Disregarding the fanatics, who feel more equal than others, there are some well-meaning and patriotic Canadians of Anglo-Saxon origin who think quite emotionally on this issue. How can these compatriots of ours be convinced that it would be wrong for our country to have a national emblem based on British nostalgia or pride of origin? Pride of ancestry is a natural and often deep feeling but it is not peculiar to British descendants alone, who incidentally now form only 43.8 per cent of the population, according to the 1961 census.

History deals with the past—this is not a proper function for a flag. A national flag is a living symbol that changes with a nation's destiny. Canada is no longer French nor British, it is simply Canadian. How can anyone in his right mind hope honestly to inspire Canadians with a foreign symbol?

At this difficult stage in history I can think of nothing more effective or urgent to unite all Canadians than a truly distinctive flag displaying a single maple leaf in all its symbolic brilliance.

"Honest to God"

Recent news from England, such as the furor caused by publication of the bishop's book entitled "Honest to God," would make one wonder as to what is happening to religion over there.

Now comes a UPI dispatch from London published in many American papers, telling of an Anglican vicar quitting his church and saying "the world might have been better off without Christianity."

Dr. Alan Stuart, ordained 30 years ago, told the Archbishop of Canterbury: "I believe in God, but I don't believe we have found out what God is, and I don't believe the world would have failed to evolve just as efficiently as it has if there had been no Christianity. In fact," he added, "the opposite may be true."

The reverend gentleman resigned from his vicarage at Stallsfield saying that much of church dogma is based on superstitions incorporated from pagan beliefs, and that "not many thinkers can accept Christian beliefs." Continuing he said "the fact is that clergymen deliberately wear blinkers—they don't want to question the foundation of their religion."

Let's Get Out

Let's get out of the Commonwealth and then, we Anglo-Canadians and French-Canadians, will come to an understanding. It is the two of us who built this country. The Union Jack is at the root of the misunderstanding and dissensions in this country.

BOY, IF YOU THINK MY HANDS GET DIRTY!

Song of the Redwing

OUT our way the birds are greeting the morning at 5 o'clock. This is two hours before my alarm clock rings and—as far as I'm concerned—much too early.

The sparrows who have set up housekeeping under the overhang at the peak of my roof, and are well beyond reach, begin the overture, twittering like a bunch of fiddlers tuning up. The robins join in, clearing their throats. Then the seagulls arrive from Trial and take up well-advertised positions on the offshore rocks. Finally the crows add their harsh calls.

If you'll forgive the mixture, this puts Morpheus in Hades.

Missing from the crack-o-dawn chorus is the voice of the redwing blackbird that, until a week or two ago, sent its bell-tones ringing from the thicket at the corner of Woody Bay at a more civilized hour. I'm left wondering whether the redwing has finally quit the neighborhood he and his mate have frequented for the last few springs, or if his song has turned raucous and unrecognizable, as is the case with redwings when the season advances.

Of all our songsters, I like his spring voice best, partly for its tone, partly for its associations.

My first memory of the redwing runs back to the time when I was about 12. I'd gone with Big Andy in his T-model Ford roadster to fish in the Highlands. We drove up a dirt road, parked on a mossy slope, clambered over a snake fence and followed a deer trail through salal among old, tall evergreens. Eventually, we broke through a willow fringe and arrived on the bank of Matson's Swamp.

I couldn't find my way there now, and perhaps the scene has changed unrecognizably. But on that distant day it was a sort of wonderland. The sun was bright, the air clean. Rushes grew close to shore, and across a narrow stretch of open water a small island, willow-covered and rush-fringed, rested just above the surface, seeming to float.

We joined our fishing rods. Andy had a long greenheart. Mine was a collection of oddments, a softwood base to which the reel could be attached, a length of slender hardwood and a cane tip.

It may disgust the purists, but with these we fished, using a bobber and worm on a gut lead.

A boy sat on the bank, watching for his float to bob under and serenely flowed about him tinged with a strange loneliness and gentle melancholy not understood.

From all parts of the swamp came the notes of the redwing, clear, clean, fresh. The birds darted from rush stem to rush stem, swaying on them to give song, then lifting with a flash of bright epaulettes to seek a new perch.

We caught small trout there, eight-to-ten-inch, firm, speckled fish. Well separated on our different vantage points, Andy and I ate our packed lunches and whiled away hours.

Time, no doubt, has embroidered the perfection of the day. Yet it was such that when I hear the redwing call, the scene returns to me, the fragrance of the air, the play of sunlight on the water, the gentle sway of reeds and the darting flight of the songbird. Briefly I'm a boy again, quiet and bob-fishing at Matson's Swamp.

It's a pleasant reverie—infinity preferable to the dull-eyed reaction that comes from the twittering, chirruping, bawling and cawing that breaks my morning sleep these days. Perhaps I'd better go searching the redwing again—or at least put my mind to listening for him instead of losing the music in the prosaic round of things.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

By DICK WEST

Never in the Altogether

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A U.S. president automatically becomes a style setter. When the president does something, it usually starts a fashion, a fad or a trend.

President Johnson has made the hat people happy not only by wearing a hat but by giving them away to distinguished guests at his ranch.

The hat people figure that this is bound to stimulate sales. The theory is that a lot of men who have not been wearing hats will now go out and buy one.

One hat maker has even brought out an LBJ model, which is a three-gallon version of the president's five-gallon version of the Texas 10-gallon hat.

By the same token, the president has delighted the dance people by dancing at White House social functions, on one occasion gliding around the floor with 50 different partners.

The theory is that this will inculcate a desire to trip the light fantastic in a lot of men who have previously done nothing more graceful than trip over light cords.

I expect that some enterprising dance studio will shortly come forth with an LBJ waltz, an LBJ foxtrot or an LBJ twist.

It also has been reported that President Johnson occasionally swims in the White House pool "au naturel," as the French say. It will be interesting to see what the effect of that will be.

Presumably, it will cause the bathing suit people to start sending up distress signals the way the hat people used to do when President Kennedy neglected to wear a headpiece.

Kennedy yielded to the pressure from the hat people to the extent of carrying a hat in his hand. Perhaps Johnson can mollify the bathing suit people by keeping a pair of trunks under his arm when he takes a dip.

It is, of course, entirely possible that this particular presidential practice will fail to develop into a nation-wide trend. At least, I fervently hope so.

Not all of us have private pools, like the one at the White House. For instance, I get my aquatic exercise in one of the so-called community pools that have been springing up in the suburbs in recent years.

If fashion so dictates, I might buy a three-gallon hat for evening wear. I might even, under extreme duress, get out on the dance floor.

But spare me the sight of a bunch of suburbanites splashing around in their birthday bikinis.

Together, yes. Altogether, no.

Companions for the Stiffnecks

The blue of summer skies is a welcome relief in the spring flower beds, which have been running to brilliant hues often basking each other mercilessly while the tulips were on parade.

This softly restful blue is being unfolded now by the Dutch iris.

Deemed as being too stiff with their unbending 18-inch stems to be allowed in an informal border, these irises seem to require a companion plant to complete a pleasing picture.

Flowering at the same time, and capable of carrying continuous bloom until the middle of September, I have seen a good strain of Coral Bells (Heuchera sanguinea) masking the stiffness of Dutch irises.

Planted between and slightly to the front of the irises, this easily grown perennial will effectively mask their stems and carry a pleasing display long after the iris leaves have died down in June.

Dutch irises are grown from bulbs, or more correctly corms. There are other colors than blue among them to be sure, and since they are mostly in the gold, bronze and blue shades, all would be improved by a foreground planting of Coral Bells.

An alternative, if the shade of coral displeases you, could be worked out with the dark blue spikes and grey woolly leaves of perennials catmint, Nepeta musini.

It seems a pity to forego the pleasure of these early irises which bridge the gap from spring to summer, just because of their uncompromising stiff stems, when a delightful picture can be created by putting in a companion plant.

SOUTH VIET NAM

UN Asked To Arrange Border Talks

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A South Vietnamese spokesman at the United Nations says his government wants border talks with Cambodia and would welcome UN help to arrange them.

Pham Khac Rau, charge d'affaires of the South Vietnamese embassy in Washington, stated this position in an interview Wednesday night after the Security Council opened debate on a charge by Cambodia that South Vietnamese raids across its border constituted aggression by South Viet Nam and the United States.

Rau denied the aggression charge. He said the border incidents arose because the Viet Cong Communists fighting to overthrow his government "have been able to use Cambodian territory as their sanctuary."

Ray said his government wanted to "remove the causes of these border incidents."

WOULD CO-OPERATE

"We have offered several times to have bilateral conversations with the Cambodian government to that effect, and we are ready to co-operate fully with the Security Council in order to find a peaceful solution to the past incidents."

South Viet Nam issued a communique in Saigon today accusing Cambodia of failing to co-operate in settling the dispute.

With the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia voting no, the council voted nine to two Tuesday to let South Viet Nam join in the debate. But the Saigon government must first send credentials authorizing a representative to speak for it since South Viet Nam is not a UN member.

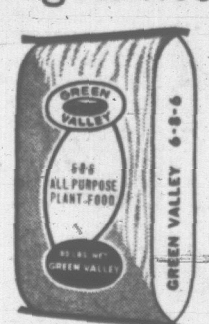

The debate was recessed until Thursday to await word from Saigon.

JOHNSON STAND-IN WINS

Wallace a Strong Second In Maryland Primary Poll

BREWSTER
... wins for LBJWALLACE
... proves his point

BALTIMORE (AP) — U.S. Senator Daniel B. Brewster, bearing the shield of President Johnson, defeated segregationist Governor George C. Wallace of Alabama in Wednesday's Maryland presidential preference primary but it was clouded by a close vote.

In a torrid Democratic race pinned on his opposition to the civil rights bill pending in the Senate, Wallace drew 212,068 votes, 42.66 per cent of the party total.

It was better than his showing in either Indiana (29.8 per cent) or Wisconsin (33.7). He claimed vindication in the Maryland vote of his stand against the bill originated by the late John F. Kennedy and pushed by Johnson.

But Brewster, a 41-year-old former Marine elected to the Senate two years ago, was elated by his effort to preserve Maryland's 48 national nominating convention votes for Johnson.

GOT CALL

He had been tapped to take on Wallace in a state still prejudiced with American civil war attitudes and a recent history of racial strife marked by repeated outbursts of violence in Cambridge.

Brewster wound up with 264,613 votes, 53.23 per cent of the total. The remaining four per cent were cast by voters preferring perennial also-ran Andrew J. Easter, a Baltimore draftsman, or an uncommitted delegation to the national convention. "We made the fight and we won and I'm glad," said Brewster.

He called Wallace a bigot and a liar during the campaign and aimed this parting shot at him Wednesday night.

"In baseball, anyway, it's three strikes and you're out," Wallace didn't see it that way.

"This Maryland vote," he said, "should let them know in Washington and in both national parties that they can't get rid of us by calling us bad names." Wallace swept all nine counties on the eastern shore of Chesapeake Bay, where Cambridge lies and which clings to the traditions of the South.

SOME CITY STRENGTH

His city strength lay in the one Baltimore district containing a heavy concentration of residents with Polish, Italian and Greek backgrounds and another thickly populated with industrial plant workers, many from the South.

Brewster's greatest vote came from Negro and Jewish neighborhoods in Baltimore and suburbs skirting Washington, D.C.

It was the last stop for Wallace on the primary trail. He isn't entered in the June 2 California race.

"If I had known I would get this kind of support, I would have entered more," he said.

3-Time Loser Wallace Aids Rights Foes

By JAMES MARLOW, Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — Alabama's segregationist Governor George C. Wallace has proved his point: There is wide opposition to President Johnson's civil rights bill to give Negroes equal treatment in many spheres of American life.

This is what he said he wanted to prove when he entered the presidential preference primaries in Wisconsin, Indiana and Maryland, where a victory would have let him capture delegates to the Democratic national convention where the party's presidential candidate will be picked.

He lost in all three in running against stand-ins for Johnson—in Wisconsin to Governor John W. Reynolds, in Indiana to Governor Matthew E. Welsh and Wednesday in Maryland to U.S. Senator Daniel B. Brewster.

But in Wisconsin he got about 34 per cent of the Democratic vote; in Indiana about 30 per cent and in Maryland almost 43 per cent.

ARGUES VIOLATION

His main appeal was against the civil rights bill—stuck for 11 weeks in the Senate because of a Southern filibuster against it—while arguing that this measure violated states' rights. His showing, particularly in Maryland, will fortify Southerners, who can say now with good evidence that they're not alone in wanting it killed.

Wallace combined his attack on civil rights with an appeal to those who see, or think they see the encroachment of socialism in American life. He said at one rally:

"This bill would take over every home, farm, business and labor union in your state. The left-wingers want to drive this country straight to socialism."

GAVE HIM BOOST

Always he argued the civil rights bill is an invasion of states' rights. Putting equal treatment for Negroes in double harness with states' rights was probably especially helpful to Wallace in Maryland.

The state has been up to its neck in the states' rights issue.

One of the cases in which the U.S. Supreme Court ruled out official prayers in public schools came from Baltimore. The Maryland legislature has been reapportioned by court order. A federal court has ordered the state's congressional districts to be redrawn.

There have been severe racial disturbances on Maryland's eastern shore, particularly in Cambridge where national guardsmen last week used tear gas to disperse demonstrating Negroes.

All these factors had Maryland steamed up before Wallace even got there.

Hospital Exonerated

VANCOUVER (CP) — A coroner's jury ruled Tuesday that Mission Memorial Hospital was not to blame in the fire death of Mrs. Gladys Barwick, 52, a cancer patient in the hospital. The jury ruled she died as a result of burns suffered May 3 in a fire "caused by smoking in bed."

Grits Become Gov't Friday

REGINA (CP)—The Liberal party will grasp the government helm in Saskatchewan Friday, almost 20 years after it was swept into the political wilderness by a CCF election victory.

Premier Woodrow Lloyd, his CCF government defeated in an April 22 election at a time when this province rides a crest of unprecedented prosperity, announced Tuesday that he will resign Friday and turn over the government to Liberal leader Ross Thatcher.

Mr. Thatcher, a former CCFer who bolted that party in 1953 and joined the Liberals in 1956, told a press conference Tuesday his government would waste little time in implementing the first parts of its program.

The program calls mainly for tax cuts, policies to attract more industry, increased farm credit and streamlining of government operations.

Mr. Thatcher said he hoped to set up within a month a commission to determine how to streamline government operations. A session of the legislature likely would be called this fall.

FOUR-YEAR PROGRAM

"I would like everybody to understand that our program is a four-year program," he said. "We won't do everything in six months or even a year."

Mr. Lloyd, more cheerful and relaxed than he has appeared since the election, told a press conference: "We move to the role of opposition without either chagrin or despondency."

The Liberals, who held 21 seats in the last legislature, won 33 in the election. The CCF, with 34 in the last legislature, won 23. The Progressive Conservatives, who had no representation before dissolution, elected one man, Leader Martin Fodereson.

Redistribution before the election added four seats.

The CCF, under T. C. Doug-

Garage Plan Blocked By Oak Bay

Oak Bay zoning and planning committee refused Tuesday night to extend the zoning of the Texaco service station property at the corner of Windsor and Newport Avenue.

Councillors felt that such action might impede the development of a high-rise apartment in the block bound by Newport, Windsor and Currie Road.

Proposed plans for the block include a 12-storey apartment rising above a complex of retail stores on the ground level.

Reeve Allan Cox suggested the oil company be sounded out on developing an apartment unit.

ONLY A FEW

The reeve said the because Oak Bay has such severe setback and construction restrictions governing apartments many developers look elsewhere for property. But this is one location where the restrictions would be easier because it is adjacent to a park and another apartment building.

He said there were only a few such areas in Oak Bay.

At present the oil company has an option on the property fronting on Newport at the corner of Windsor.

Further consideration will be given to the development of the block pending reply from the oil company on suggestion it back construction of a high-rise apartment.

SWIM POOL LAW

The committee recommended a bylaw to protect young toddlers from wandering into swimming pools on private property.

In future all swimming pools must be enclosed by a fence, at least three feet high and secured with a self-closing gate which can only be opened from the pool side of the fence at least three feet high, and secured with a self-closing gate which can only be opened from the pool side of the fence.

The committee decided to meet with the Oak Bay Board of Trade in an effort to encourage merchants in the village to support an off-street parking plan.

TWO YEARS OLD

The plan, which was drawn up more than two years ago, proposes construction of parking facilities directly behind the stores lining Oak Bay Avenue, between Hampshire and Monterey.

Reeve Allan Cox also said the site of a present apartment building, behind the stores on the south side of Oak Bay Avenue and halfway between Monterey and Hampshire, would be a good location for a future public library and senior citizens' recreation rooms.

If a library was located in the village, and parking space made available, more shoppers would be encouraged into the area.

Hidden Mikes Found in U.S. Embassy

BY HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—For the last 11 years Soviet security agents apparently have been listening to conversations taking place inside the 10-story United States Embassy building in Moscow—not only in conference rooms but in the living quarters as well.

The state department disclosed Tuesday that after years of effort security officials finally uncovered a network of more than 40 microphones hidden in the walls of the Embassy. The first was found April 23 by wrecking a room, ripping out the walls and ceiling.

Foy D. Kohler, U.S. ambassador in Moscow, made a formal protest to the Soviet government Tuesday over the listening devices.

A statement by the state department's security chief, G. Marvin Gentile, said indications are that the devices were "placed in the building prior to its occupancy by the United States" 11 years ago. The building was assigned to the U.S. by the Soviet government in 1952 and was occupied in 1953.

OTHERS 'BUGGED'

Officials said Moscow embassies of other Western nations also have been "bugged" but they declined to discuss details of discoveries other than those in the U.S. Embassy, saying they didn't want to air security problems of their friends.

It is understood, however, that part of the American "hunch" that the Embassy was wired came from new discoveries by friendly powers. An official declined to say whether the Canadian embassy was included but said that the Allies have been placed on the alert with the U.S. co-ordinating all security work with them.

The microphone network was described as the most extensive effort to breach American security yet uncovered behind the Iron Curtain.

The state department had presumed from the outset that the premises were wired and all officials were warned to keep this in mind. They took no chances. All sensitive work was done in rooms within rooms—specially constructed so that they could not be penetrated by microphones.

However, officials observed that the U.S. ambassador and his aides could not always take visitors into highly sensitive rooms and therefore concluded that the Russians had gathered some information. An intensive review was started to find out whether "any significant compromise of sensitive information" took place.

Some of the microphones, vintage of the Stalin era of 1952, were shown to reporters. They were made of heavy metal with a long thin metal tube attached to them.

The microphones had been placed well back in the plaster —about eight inches from the interior surface, with the thin tube reaching the inner surface but not penetrating the plaster. Officials found that some of the microphones still worked, capable of picking up conversation eight or 10 feet away.

School Board Does Shuffle To Shake Off Swing Shifts

Greater Victoria secondary schools will be 21-25 classrooms short by September, but a redistribution may keep an estimated 627 pupils from going on the swing shift.

Although the crowding may prevail over the coming school term, it is hoped with passage of school building referendum No. 6 on Saturday that additional secondary classroom space will be provided in 1965.

District 61 superintendent John Gough told school trustees Tuesday: "If there is any argument for referendum No. 6 at the secondary level, this is it," indicating the breakdown of enrolments anticipated at a dozen schools where secondary pupils will attend classes in September.

"BEST SOLUTION"

The redistribution, arrived at by three months of planning by administrative staff and school principals, is what Mr. Gough called "the best solution," barring unforeseen circumstances, to provide full-time instruction at the secondary level.

All but one junior secondary school will be cleared of grade seven pupils, in accordance with the Chant Report. This will be Oak Bay, which will continue to take pupils from Margaret Jenkins area, avoiding shift classes there.

Junior secondary schools are receiving grade 10 pupils, also in accordance with the Chant Report recommendation. This change will not be completed by September, leaving some in senior secondary schools.

OVER LIMIT

Mr. Gough used figures showing 9,565 pupils enrolled now at the secondary level, where there should be only 9,230 according to education department - approved capacity (30 pupils to a room).

By the fall this will have increased by 308 for a total of 9,857 pupils, or 627 more than the approved figure.

Colquitz Junior will have 824, nearly 100 more than now, and Craigflower Elementary will have 120 junior secondary pupils who should be attending Esquimalt, which will have 720 compared with 658 now.

Central Junior will have 760, or 64 more than now, each of the other eight will be slightly higher or lower.

Oak Bay will take in the eastern half of the Central Junior attendance area; there will have to be transport for grade eight pupils at Craigflower taking home economics and industrial arts at Esquimalt; remodelling will be needed to accommodate extra pupils at Craigflower and S. J. Willis Junior.

Annexes used at Monterey and Craigflower schools will have to be moved to Cedar Hill, Lampson, North Ward and Doncaster schools to provide for swelling enrolments there pending construction of new classrooms.

Cemetery Safe From Developers

The bones buried in the Chinese Cemetery, between Penzance Road and the sea shore, are likely to remain undisturbed for the next 15 years.

Reeve Allan Cox said at an Oak Bay zoning and planning committee meeting Monday night he didn't expect early development of the area.

From time to time developers have expressed interest in the property as a possible apartment site, and the Chinese community has considered converting it into a public park.

MASS GRAVE

The only traditional Chinese burial ceremony ever held in Canada took place here in 1961 when the bones of 849 Chinese were interred in a mass grave. The practice of shipping the bones back to China was discontinued after the Communists seized control of the mainland.

Custodians of the cemetery, the Chinese Benevolent Society, suggested at that time that the area be developed as a park, but no further action was taken.

Recently developers have approached residents in the area about the prospect of constructing apartments.

EXTRA MAIN

If the area was developed as a complex, municipal engineer Geoffrey White said an extra water main would have to be laid over top King George Terrace, and sewage disposal could pose a problem. A deterrent to such a development could be that there are no stores within the immediate vicinity.

It was suggested that if any interest is shown in the area developers be encouraged to come in and develop the entire 30-acre site as a complete unit.

Mother Kills Self After Shooting Son

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Cecilia Leslie, 44, shot and critically wounded her 14-year-old son Tuesday as he watched television in the living room of their West Vancouver home, police said. She then turned the rifle on herself and died.

Michael Leslie was in critical condition in hospital Tuesday night after undergoing an emergency operation for a bullet wound in the stomach. He managed to crawl to a neighbor's house and tell of the shooting.

Mrs. Leslie's two youngest children found her body when they returned home from school for lunch. They phoned their father, P. M. Leslie, a school teacher, from a neighbor's home and told him of the incident.

Police said Mrs. Leslie had been under psychiatric care.

Pseudo Doctor Died From Drug Poisoning

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) —

The death of Adrien Couture, a 34-year-old Hawkesbury man sought for two weeks on charges of impersonating a doctor, was caused by "poisoning by barbiturates," Prescott County coroner Dr. R. K. Perrier said Tuesday.

Dr. Perrier said Couture, whose partly decomposed body was found Sunday in a field five miles east of here, probably committed suicide. He said an autopsy performed by pathologist Dr. W. J. Shamon in Cornwall Sunday night showed the man had been dead more than 15 days.

Police found Couture's car about three weeks ago near the bush area where the body was found.

INTERNEED TWO YEARS

Couture interned for almost two years at a Burlington, Ont., hospital posing as Dr. Andre Couture. He was last seen May 2 when he left his wife and children at their home at Hawkesbury, Ont., and said he was driving to Burlington to disprove charges that he was an impostor.

His body was found lying on a blanket near a small creek Sunday by three trout fishermen.

Northern Rhodesia Independence Set for Oct. 24

LONDON (Reuters) — Northern Rhodesia, the biggest copper producer in the Commonwealth and fourth-biggest in the world, will become the independent and sovereign republic of Zambia Oct. 24, it was announced Tuesday.

The announcement came at the close of a conference here at which British and Northern Rhodesian delegations hammered out agreement on a new constitution for Northern Rhodesia, now a self-governing protectorate.

term will take viewers from the desolation of Siberia to the depths of the sea.

The school district's annual series at Oak Bay Junior Secondary School is open to the public for $6 a season, and starts Oct. 30 and 31 with Into Siberia, by Raphael Green.

Few westerners have visited this vast Asiatic Soviet republic stretching from Samarkand to the Sea of Japan, and viewers of its film story will have the added advantage of hearing about the land from Mr. Green.

Easter Island, by Geza de Rosner, is about a remote sea-bound corner of the world, lying 1,600 miles from Pitcairn Island and 2,200 miles from the nearest mainland.

As with all films in the series, this one will be shown by its creator, Nov. 27 and 28. Highlights of Brazil, by Howard Pollard, follows after the Christmas-New Year's break, Jan. 29 and 30.

Holland Close-Up, by Dwight Nicholas, will be Feb. 26 and 27; Timeless Turkey, by Arthur Dewey, March 26 and 27; Village Beneath the Sea, by Harry Pederson, April 23 and 24; and There'll Always Be an England, by Dr. Charles Forbes Taylor, May 14 and 15.

As a special extra during the season, the evening division will show Escape From Tibet, filmed by Thubten Jigme, brother of the exiled Dalai Lama.

He will present this story March 5 and 6, also in the auditorium at Oak Bay Junior.

Summer Fees Established By Trustees

Student fees for Greater Victoria school district summer school were approved Tuesday by trustees.

School will run July 6-31, offering academic, vocational and band instrumental subjects, requiring a staff of 24 teachers.

Students taking academic and vocational subjects will be limited to two courses at $15 each, plus $1 registration fee.

These classes are designed for students wishing to increase standing for promotion from grade 10 or senior secondary courses.

Band classes are for pupils in grades five-12 wishing to improve or maintain their skills. They will pay $10 per pupil or $7.50 per child for two or more members of a family.

GOLDEN RULE DAYS AHEAD FOR 1,551

Pre-enrolment of kindergarten and first grade pupils in Greater Victoria school district two weeks ago shows 1,551 kiddies will be going into public schools for the first time in September.

There were 224 more kindergarten pupils registered than now attend 12 centres on a part-time basis. There will be 15 centres operating in the fall.

But at the same time, there were 333 fewer pupils registered for grade one than are now enrolled: 2,036 compared with 2,369.

Report Important to Province

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

A special report on base metal production and markets, just issued by the Bank of Nova Scotia, has considerable importance for B.C. where copper, lead and zinc account for an increasing proportion of revenues, while exploration for Bell exploration for these metals is being intensified.

The report notes, of course, the strength of the markets for base metals—the fact that 1963 was the best year since the mid-fifties—and that the quickening of demand since last fall has led to noticeable pressure on current supplies.

"World consumption of the three metals has been rising in most major industrial countries, though it has been affected particularly by the expansion in North America and by the marked strength of the automotive industry there," the bank says.

Prices higher "World production, too, has continued to rise but at a slower pace, and there has been some uncertainty about the flow of copper supplies because of unsettled conditions in some producing areas and approaching labor contract negotiations."

Other features noted about the market are a marked reduction in accumulated producers' stocks (especially lead and zinc) and some increase in consumers' stocks. Prices are now higher than for some years although still well below the levels reached in the Korean War period for lead and zinc and in the mid-fifties for copper.

So far as Canada is concerned, production has kept pace with demand with the 1963 output of copper and lead being roughly double the 1945-49 demand and lead increasing by about 18 per cent. This year production will rise considerably.

The substantial production increases already developed along with planned production in the three metals, says the bank report, underline Canada's dependence both on ability to compete in world markets and the strength of demand in those markets.

Competitive pressure from other materials is one important factor and here enlarged research programs have done much to check the inroads of competition. Still, for instance, aluminum remains a serious threat to copper in the field of electric power transmission; aluminum has taken over many of the areas where zinc-galvanized steel was supreme and new heavy-duty plastics have replaced some zinc die-castings; polyethylene and aluminum have replaced lead in cable coverings and titanium in paint pigments.

The demand for base metals is expected to continue growing in the years ahead, but many diverse forces will be at work, the report points out. In the U.S. the continuation of a stronger rate of economic growth could point to a more favorable consumption pattern, but American policy regarding import quotas will be an important influence. Strong demand has led to the possibility of more flexible quotas but at the same time some of the demand could be met by release of the enormous quantities of metals held in the government's stockpiles.

In Europe and Japan continuing demand is expected but it is heavily weighted toward ores and concentrates rather than refined metals—as B.C. has already discovered—and this raises problems for the Canadian base metals industry as a whole.

NEARER TERM For the nearer term, markets are dependent to a large degree on U.S. auto production with an early change-over to 1965 model production expected to bring an easing in demand. A slower pace of expansion in such markets as Britain and Japan could also be expected.

The bank's report also makes the point that world production is even now considered to be adequate to meet all but abnormal circumstances and plans to bring new mines into production suggest ample supplies in the future. The course of metal prices is difficult to predict but the bank foresees a fairly effective ceiling imposed by competition from other materials as well as the strong producer feeling that a further rise in prices would be detrimental to their long-run interests.

A. B. Christopher, Chairman and chief executive officer of Neon Products of Canada Limited, announces the appointment of Harvey R. Smith as President.

Born in Calgary, Mr. Smith has an outstanding record of achievement in business and industrial management in both the United States and Canada. From 1931 to 1940 he was Construction Foreman on the Hoover and Grand Coulee dam projects. In 1940 he was appointed General Construction Superintendent of U.S. Naval and Air Bases, Pacific and Military installations, in Idaho and Oregon, and in 1943 moved to the Kaiser Vancouver Shipyard, Vancouver, Washington, as Assistant General Superintendent. After the war he was Construction Manager (1945-47) for James W. Cary-Kramer & Associates, Seattle, and Chief Production Engineer (1947-49) for Kaiser-Frazer Corp., Willow Run, Michigan.

Mr. Smith returned to Canada in 1952 and until January, 1958, was Vice President of Manufacturing and a Director of Avro Aircraft Ltd., a subsidiary of A. V. Roe Canada Ltd. In 1958, following the acquisition by Avro of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, Montreal, he was appointed Vice President, General Manager and a Director of the parent company under its new name, Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd. and was Chairman and President of Avro Aircraft Ltd. He was recently engaged in Seattle to serve as Project Manager on the new hydrofoil vessel under development by the Puget Sound Bridge and Dry Dock Company, a Lockheed subsidiary.

Mr. Smith assumed his new position May 11th and is based in Vancouver.

TEE TOPICS

By Ernie Fedoruk

A cloud comes wafting over the Strait of Georgia, and a shadow hangs over the prospects of an immediate match between Laurie Carroll and Lyle Crawford.

LAURIE CARROLL

The inter-city series was revived last year at Uplands. Crawford defeated Victoria amateur Bill Wakeham quite handily.

So this is Vancouver's year to adopt the host's role, and the Province seems anxious to do the honors. That's fair enough.

However, a September date does raise an eyebrow here. It is being suggested that any lengthy delay may cause the inter-city bout to lose some of its fan appeal.

It is a surprising turn of events because the BCPGA had looked forward towards the match as a fund-raising event for its junior clinic, scheduled to be held at Colwood later this summer.

The Crawford-Wakeham meeting last year raised $500, which was divided between the junior development program and the Victoria YMCA building fund.

Granted, it is difficult to locate a suitable and unused course at this time of year. However, the same situation existed last year but the problem was overcome, thanks to Uplands.

Colwood's Don Ross must have that same sensation crooner Eddie Fisher experienced not too long ago. "Y'know, it's that 'I-gave-something-away-and-was-it-a-mistake'?" feeling.

A little over three years ago, friend Ross gave business associate Mike Turyk a bad time. Turyk was a fisherman. Ross wanted Mike to try his hand at golfing.

Finally, Turyk bit. Overjoyed with his selling success, Ross practically gave Turyk his old golf clubs. They were quite a bargain.

Turyk took his bargain to the golf course and soon lay claim to his first hole-in-one. Ross, who hadn't scored an ace in 40 years of trying, gulped.

Well sir, Turyk still has those clubs, is still scoring aces. Ross is still gulping.

Turyk, playing in a foursome with Charlie Monk, Bert Kennedy and Bob Ferguson, scored the fourth hole-in-one of his three-year golf career Saturday. He dropped another tee shot at Oak Bay's tough seventh.

But that isn't all to the story. Turyk had aced the same hole two weeks earlier. And a week before that he also holed out on the seventh but had to count a "three." His first shot went into the bay to the left of the fairway. He teed up again, sank his second.

As for Ross, it's getting so that he refuses to congratulate his protegee . . .

SHORT CHIPS: Also connecting for an ace at the weekend was Howard Coldwell, a 23-handicapper from Vancouver. It came on Uplands' 11th. . . . Vio Palmer tackles Glen Merriman and Wally Smith meets Roger Emery in next Sunday's semifinal round of the Colwood handicap championship. . . . Carroll is scheduled to tie up with a tobacco firm as the Island sales representative. . . . And Eric Wright has moved into Uplands' pro shop as Johnny Wren's assistant. . . . Wright was on duty at the weekend. . . . Jack Irving held to his early lead to edge Eric Holyoak by one stroke in the Uplands Cup competition. . . . Gross winner was Gary Smith with 146.

Bill Wakeham, serious about making it three straight in the B.C. Amateur, took advantage of the long weekend to play the Kelowna course, site of the provincial tournament. . . . Wakeham made the trip with clubmates Al MacLeod and Gary Fletcher. . . . The Cedar Hill Open has attracted an entry of over 100 despite the fact that many golfers wrongly believe it is not a handicap tournament. . . . The John Merriman Trophy, and the main prize, goes to the low net winner. . . . Gordie Jones, seven under par for the last 14 holes of the 36-hole event, shares the Gorge Vale handicap championship with W. Krimmer. . . . Jones finished the final round with a four-under-par 70. It included back-to-back eagles on the sixth and seventh holes.

CRICKET'S WEATHER-MASTER HAS ANSWER

'I Drift the Smog and Rain, Break Up Diseased Clouds'

LONDON (AP) — Move over, African witch doctors. Make room for the "weather master from South Africa who wants to improve Britain's notoriously damp winter weather and make cricket wickets less sticky.

He turned up in response to an effort by the Warwickshire Cricket Club to find an effective way to protect the wicket in bad weather.

For the uninformed, the wicket is an oblong stretch of fine grass on which the cricket ball is bowled toward the batsman. The wicket also is the name of the stumps, topped by cross pieces, at which the bowler aims.

MOST UNDESIRABLE
Rain can affect the wicket. THE GRASS, THAT IS. And sticky wicket is considered most undesirable by cricketers.

The Warwickshire club had offered a $1,400 prize in a national competition to find an effective cover for the wicket.

The unnamed South African wrote: "I want to come to England to start a weather company to give more sunshine in winter and summer. I do not think it would be difficult to master England's weather."

The letter said his International Sunshine Company could not only solve the Warwickshire problem but also would be of benefit to Britain. The writer added that Britain's freezing spell last year took place because the British government refused him financial aid.

'DRIFT THE SMOG'

He said he was taught how to handle weather by a "weather master from England" in 1927. "I drift the smog and surplus rain and I break up diseased and malformed clouds," the weather master explained.

"For many years I have fetched surplus rain—clouds, smog, etc., from Canada, America, the British Isles and Europe and have broken droughts in Africa, South America, Australia, China and India. I give you better sunshine by taking away the surplus clouds."

Sidney Harkness, assistant secretary of the cricket club, said he felt he should not reveal the weather master's name because of competition regulations.

And, keeping his umbrella tightly rolled, Harkness added he did not think the proposition would fall in with the main aim of the competition, which was to cover the pitch with an easily moved unit.

THE SECRET COFFEE HOUSE, featuring Victoria's finest live entertainment nightly from 8:30.

WOODED WONDERLAND now open. An enchanting land of Fairy Tale fantasy awaits the "young at heart." Plan to see it soon. Located at the entrance to Beaver Lake Park.

The treatment centre would be built on the grounds of the Royal Jubilee Hospital by the combined efforts of the Polio-myelitis and Rehabilitation Foundation of B.C., B.C. Society for Crippled Children and the Lower Vancouver Island Cerebral Palsy Association.

It would be used as a specialized clinic for all handicapped children, whatever their disability, on referral by their doctor.

Dr. John Whitbread, senior MHO, told the board that a 1962 survey showed there were 1,066 handicapped children in this region and some of them had to make expensive trips to the children's treatment centre in Vancouver General Hospital.

He said the same services would be available here if organization and accommodation were provided and the proposal of the three volunteer agencies had his full-hearted support.

PETER ELBLING...personal and bluesy

PADDINGTON NIGHTINGALE

Pete (Minus Fuzz) Gives A-Plus Show

By LESLIE MILLIN
Folksinger Peter Elbling, the Paddington nightingale, is back in Victoria about 20 pounds lighter and with an excellent show.

A lot springier of step since he shaved off most of his beard and cut off about nine inches of hair, he is teamed up at the Secret coffee house with the Upper University District Folk Music Association.

It's an interesting combination.

BLUESY STYLE

Peter is a Londoner, singing English folk songs with a personal and rather bluesy style, and he gathers your attention in close with his unusual songs and quiet presentations.

The UDEMA, a Seattle trio with plenty of bounce, belt out their music with plenty of beat and spontaneity. You get the feeling of being sung at, and occasionally with.

Many of Peter's songs he collected himself in some of the more remote parts of the British Isles, and some of them—like the songs from the Hebrides—are so far removed from what we normally hear that they sound almost oriental.

Peter relies mostly on the folksinger's favorite, the six-string guitar, but one of his best presentations—Farewell to Merseyside—he accompanies on the melodeon.

HE'S DIFFERENT

He is pretty far removed from the mainstream of the folksingers now making the rounds of the dwindling coffee houses on the Pacific Coast, and if you're at all interested in hearing him, you'd better do it soon; he may not be back this way.

Something that only shows itself after plenty of listening is his guitar technique. It is very sure and deft, but subtle enough not to drown out his voice, which is not particularly strong.

BIG SOUND

The UDFMA is a group with barrels of vitality and promise, and a big sound. The three members—Courtney Branch, Lynne Brooks and Steve Lalor—are former University of Washington students, and the most refreshing thing to bubble up in the last year.

They blend nicely. Best of their songs: a tie between Down by the Brazos, and World War III.

Stu Gifford New Mayor

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Only one hat was in the ring Tuesday when nominations closed for a new mayor of New Westminster.

It belonged to Stuart Gifford, and alderman for 13 years, who replaces Mrs. Beth Wood following her sudden and unexpected retirement April 13.

Mr. Gifford opposed Mrs. Wood when she was first elected almost six years ago.

AT CHRIST CHURCH

Famed Organist Creates 'Magic'

By AUDREY JOHNSON

The magic name of Alexander Schreiner, one of the world's most famed and familiar organists, drew an audience to Christ Church Cathedral Tuesday night that occupied every inch of sitting room and stood two or three deep at all vantage points.

But the real magic, of course, was in the music Dr. Schreiner produced at the console of the recently rebuilt organ.

It was a performance that thrilled, amazed and delighted even the most seasoned organ pros among his listeners.

Dr. Schreiner himself, whose own instrument has been the great organ at Salt Lake City for the last 34 years, expressed his pleasure in playing on the cathedral organ which he remarked was "a beautiful instrument...quite magnificent."

GREAT SCOPE

In the performance of Bach's Fantasia in G Major and two Choral Preludes and in the splendid Mendelssohn F minor Sonata, Dr. Schreiner established the great scope of his artistry.

The taste and discernment of his choice of stops is not only impeccable, but often arresting and brilliant. His handling of thick contrapuntal textures of four or five parts is fluent and constantly seems illumined in some special way from within.

But to the performance of the compositions of Louis Vierne he brings something—a personal affection, a particular regard—that made this wonderfully devised music a highlight of the program.

Vierne was organist at Notre Dame for 37 years and was one of Dr. Schreiner's master teachers.

SUBTLE CHOICE

The five compositions performed in this recital included Maestoso in C sharp minor, a piece of rich, sonorous registration, and the contrasting Naïades in which delicate, lace-like figuration, and detached floating tones were evolved by the most intricate of fingering and subtle choice of stops.

Closing this group was Vierne's fantasy built upon the quarter-hour tune rung out on the bells of Big Ben.

The muted opening of this piece, and its wonderfully long, steadily developed crescendo until the pealing notes seemed to be coming from every side was one of the most exciting experiences of the evening.

Two pieces were added to the printed program. A lilting, virtuosic Trio Sonata by Bach highlighted by marvelous pedal work, and a fantasy on three hymn tunes in which Dr. Schreiner thrilled the audience with his manipulation of the new State Trumpet stop.

Dr. Schreiner, 62-year-old actress-singer is her first concert tour of Russia. She appears at Moscow Variety Theatre Thursday night and planned a hard day of rehearsals today.

Dutch Want More To Visit Graves

WINNIPEG (CP)—The people of The Netherlands wish to increase repayment of a debt of gratitude to Canadians, Herman Goetzen, a member of The Netherlands War Graves Commission, said Tuesday.

They want more Canadians to visit memorial graveyards established to honor Canadian troops who gave their lives to liberate Holland during the Second World War.

"We went through a period of absolute darkness for five years where our spirit and soul was hurt by the oppression of occupation," said Mr. Goetzen. "Then came liberation—mostly by Canadian soldiers."

"So now you are known as 'our Canadians,'" he said.

The Dutch people have established memorial graveyards where each grave has been adopted by a Dutch family, which makes certain it is well cared for and places flowers on it on various commemorative days each year.

Pilgrimages were organized to allow Canadian survivors to visit the graves of loved ones.

Mr. Goetzen and a fellow member of the war graves commission, Dr. William Enklaar, are attending the 20th national convention of the Royal Canadian Legion to tell Canadians that the Dutch people would like to increase the pilgrimages.

All expenses for the pilgrimages, with the exception of air fare to Holland, are paid by the Dutch people through public subscriptions. Pilgrims stay with individual Dutch families.

French-Canadian Play Criticized

By DOUG AMARON

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Theatregoers will get a double "taste of honey" at the Dominion Drama Festival today with performances of the same play by groups from St. John's, Nfld., and Toronto.

The Freelance Players of St. John's will perform in the afternoon and will be followed at night by the Barn Players of the Broadview YMCA.

Miss Delaney's A Taste of Honey, the earthy-but-tender story of a young girl's search for affection and companionship, is far removed from the drama performed Tuesday night by a Montreal company, Compagnons de Gil.

BASED ON TRUTH

This sober and sombre account of a Chilean legend based on real 17th century people centres around a complex colonial Lucretia Borgia known as La Quintrala, the title that author and producer Mrs. Gil Harcourt-Villeneuve uses for her play.

Mr. Hope-Wallace, a London, Eng., drama critic adjudicating his fourth Canadian festival, liked the performance but minced no words in his criticism of the play as a state production. He said it might be alright as an Ingermar Bergmann movie.

La Quintrala, played by 22-year-old Dianne Pinard, is a

murderess who has an innocent slave executed for her crime, marries the man her sister loves and eventually is rejected by him, and by the Christ to whom she turns after losing her husband's love and a child who dies in infancy.

The immense anger on the face of the "Christ of the Quintrala", a relic still in existence in San Augustin Cathedral in Santiago, Chile, is said to have come about because of Quintrala's conduct.

AUDIENCE UNSURE

Mr. Hope-Wallace's main criticism of the play, the only French-language production in the festival, was that when it was over the audience didn't know whether to pity or despise the heroine.

This complexity of character, he said, countermanded one of the first laws of the theatre—to establish the feeling the audience has for the characters. While the play had real dramatic poetry and was well staged and costumed "it was not a well-made stage play."

SOLUTION FRIDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Me feel bad today? From that subway junkie? No, Pussycat! I'm zingin' and zangin'. Why you ask?

Sure, we usually go junkie-er in by jet... but this was Hollywood-on-the-Subway... High Society... Subway Society... black tie... chin-chilla... the premiere of "What a Way to Go!" out at the World's Fair on a night when it... guess what?... rained.

But I mean if Shirley MacLaine can subway out by IRT wearing a 24-carat Linda Star World's Fair necklace worth $30,000 with 179 diamonds, and an Edith Head gown and a Sidney Guilaroff hairdo, I think this should set an example for all girls. They should all wear 179 diamonds on the subway.

Oh, sure, some people from Society probably minded the crowded special cars... the temperature... the motorman. ("They have to have those, I suppose," one woman said)... but I didn't. Not me.

I missed the subway special by 5 minutes and dashed out by cab.

On arriving at the Hilton International Penthouse Restaurant, I first found the secret bar. (It's behind that red curtain.)

Mingling democratically with Gene Kelly, the Robert Cummingses, Irina Demich and Daryl Zanuck, Richard Cowles and other rich people, I asked about the subway conditions out.

"A few people had to stand," Artist Dong Kingman said. "Fortunately, only women." Now about how the society people took to the subway-riding... Well, there was a woman sitting next to me from that world, and I happened to be showing her my invitation.

"What's that little thing that looks like a penny pasted down at the bottom?" she inquired. "Why, that," I said, "is a subway token." She had never seen one before.

As part of the new late, late night-life, Sammy Davis (he's dropped the Jr.), played till

4 a.m. at his Copacabana closing to nearly all celebs in town except the Richard Burtons, who were being given a party by Roddy McDowall. "Diamond Danny" Stradella, who again had a table for 45 guests, figured that he took 210 guests to see Sammy during the 10-day engagement... Abbe Lane's violently angry about being linked with Frank Sinatra. "While it wouldn't be bad being linked with him," she laughs, "I haven't seen him in years; movie deals discussed with his company have been through other people. I had to write to him and explain that these stories are circulated by enemies."... Xavier Cugat would like to have Tina Louise join him... Buddy Hackett says he's had to give up the Duke U. diet because he can no longer have privacy anywhere... Gina Lollobrigida's response to the Glenn Ford rumors: "S' nothing!"

Bert Lahr, whose show "Foxy" folded, was signed to star in an industrial revue...

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: You can tell a woman's age by the entertainment she likes. Under 40, she wants Ringo. Over 40, she'll settle for Bingo. —Sol Weinstein.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A fellow explained that his new home has all the latest things, from wall-to-wall carpeting to back-to-the-wall payments.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Tolerance is often the result of the uncomfortable suspicion that the other fellow may be right, after all." —Anon.

EARL'S PEARLS: There must be a lot of good left in some folks, because none of it ever gets out.—L. S. McCandless.

Comic Rip Taylor visited the Fair, and reports that in one or two pavilions the only things finished were the "Out of Order" signs.

That's earl, brother.

Mainland Talks Try to Settle Alberni Strike

Talks are under way today in Vancouver aimed at ending an office workers' strike which has closed the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River pulp and paper complex in Port Alberni.

The meeting between the firm and members of Local 15, Office Employees International Union (CLC) started at 11 a.m. It is chaired by deputy labor Minister William Sands.

The giant mill was forced to shut down Tuesday when 1,000 other employees refused to cross picket lines set up by the 70 office employees, who are seeking higher pay.

V.I. BRIEFS

Indians to Develop Commercial Property

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Indian Band has agreed to develop 55 acres for commercial use between the E & N Railway and the Trans-Canada Highway, and between Trunk Road and the Cowichan River.

A town planner will be engaged to ensure orderly development of the site.

The owners of the property are 10 Indian families who made the original proposal for developing the land. They will take part in the financing.

Once roads have been built, property will be leased for commercial use. The installation of water and sewer systems will be undertaken jointly by the band and the city of Duncan.

DUNCAN — RCMP are investigating the Saturday theft of a bag from the parked car of Dr. W. C. B. Jones at King's Daughters' Hospital.

Police said the bag contained medical instruments and drugs.

NORTH COWICHAN — A resolution requesting the B.C. government to amend the Municipal Act to require hospitals to pay for fire protection, was endorsed by North Cowichan council Tuesday.

DEEP-SEA SHIPS

(Morning positions. Cargo is lumber unless otherwise indicated.)

Victoria — Amberton, U.K.; Fanmar, Australia.

Crofton — Alma, U.K.; Pacific Envoy, U.K.

Chemainus — Lakeamba, Australia; Achacan, U.K.

Harmac — Santa Malta, Central and South America.

Nanaimo — Mormacrey, U.S.A.

Duncan Bay — Besseggen, U.S.A.

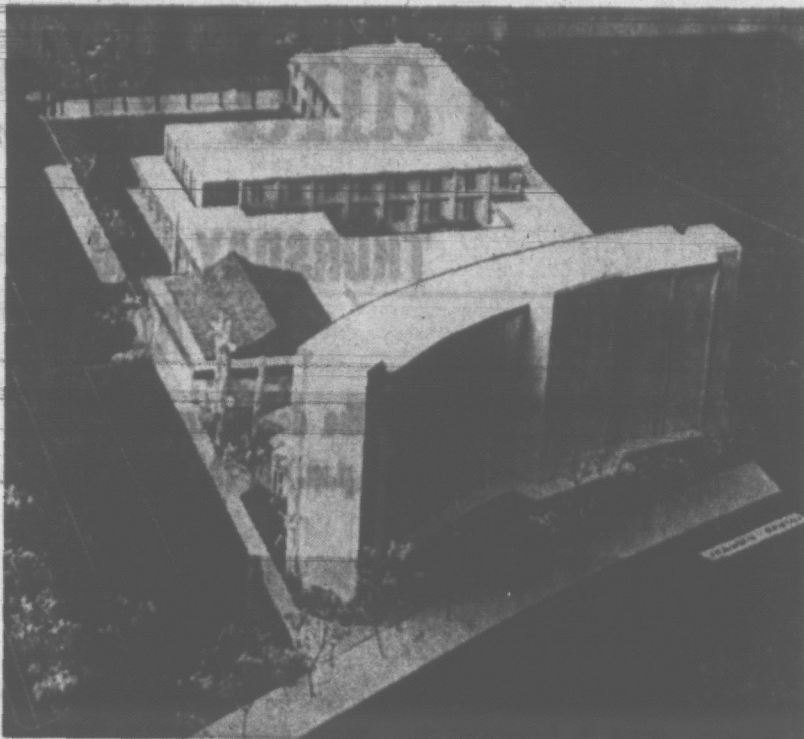

Tahsis — Eastern Galaxy, Japan; Eleni K, Australia.

Alberni — Estelle Maersk; Brecon Beacon, Australia; Berkshire, Japan; Riviera, U.S.A.; Aleppo, Japan; Nippon Maru, Europe.

OCEAN MAILS

(Closing dates at Vancouver):

- May 30 — Washington Mail, Japan and Korea; Java Mail, Hong Kong and Malaya.
- (At San Francisco)
- May 28 — Mariposa, Fiji, Australia and New Zealand.

DISCOVERY INN

Marwell to Build 50-Room Addition

Contract for the six-storey, 50-room addition to Discovery Inn, Campbell River, has been awarded to Marwell Construction of Vancouver, William Pattison, president of Delta Properties Ltd., said today.

ANNUAL MEETING of Salt Spring Island Liberal Association at Ganges Friday will feature an address by Alan Macfarlane, Liberal MLA for Oak Bay. Meeting starts at 8 p.m.

Work on the half-million-dollar addition will start in September with completion scheduled for March, 1965.

Architects are Reno Negrin & Associates, who designed both the Bayshore Inn and the Calgary Inn.

The new addition will give a total of 100 rooms, making it the second-largest hotel on Vancouver Island, its owners say. The Empress Hotel in Victoria is the largest. In addition to the new rooms, there will be banquet facilities to accommodate 375 persons. The new cocktail lounge, with capacity for 100, will feature a nautical and native Indian motif, symbolic of Capt. Vancouver's ship The Discovery.

The addition will also have space for offices and stores. The completed project will be valued at over $1,200,000. Discovery Inn forms part of the Tye Plaza shopping centre which features a complement of 19 stores. The total value of the combined operation is over $3,000,000.

Delta Properties Ltd. operates Discovery Inn, Vancouver Airport Inn and other commercial real estate.

METRO TALKS THURSDAY

Is Provincial Gun Loaded In Sewer Board Skirmish?

By JOHN MIKA
Times City Hall Reporter

There are indications that intermunicipal committee will have a provincial gun at its head Thursday when it meets to discuss possible formation of a metro sewer board.

But nobody knows yet whether the gun is loaded.

Metro health board, which has been pushing for a sewer authority, was told Tuesday by chairman R. Gordon Lee that there are indications the government will compel the local councils to set up a board if they don't do it voluntarily.

The Central Saanich reeve said he came away from private discussions with Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell with the belief that the government "may take the initiative" in creating such a board.

PRE-CONDITION

The minister earlier this year made formation of a sewer authority a pre-condition of any government assistance for a regional sewer study including large chunks of provincial territory.

But this immediately brought strong reaction from some Victoria aldermen who said they were willing to share costs of a study to help the outside municipalities but would fight inclusion in any autonomous sewer authority.

They claimed this would be another case, like the enforced creation of Greater Victoria school board, of milking Victoria taxpayers who have already provided themselves with an adequate sewer system to pay for more services in Saanich.

Reeve Lee said that since this reaction Mr. Campbell has contacted civic leaders individually and pressed them to hold a meeting to discuss the idea further.

"The loss of local autonomy may not be so great as the municipalities fear," he said.

"But it is too much to expect the city of Victoria and the other municipalities to sit down together and voluntarily form a board.

"For this reason the initiative may be taken by the provincial government."

Reeve Lee stressed that as far as he knew the government had not yet committed itself to compelling formation of a sewer board.

BOY JUST MISSES FIERY DEATH

COURTENAY—A five-year-old boy narrowly escaped being burned alive in downtown Courtenay Saturday when his father's car burst into flames.

Garry Goulder was in the back seat of the 1953 two-door car when burning dashboard wires fell on the floor.

As he leaped from the car, it seemed to explode, the windshield blew out and the flames were six to eight feet high, a spectator said.

Trapped inside the car to die was the boy's three-month cocker spaniel "Suzie."

The boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Goulder of Campbell River, had left the car on business.

The vehicle, parked in front of the Arbutus Hotel, was a total loss.

NEW LAW HIT

Zoning Rights Emasculated Says Saanich

A law enacted at the last session of the legislature is a "complete emasculation of our zoning authority," Saanich reeve Stanley Murphy told a council meeting Tuesday night.

The law gives the provincial highways department control over zoning within a half-mile radius of controlled access highways.

Two such highways — the Trans-Canada and the Patricia Bay — run through Saanich, creating two mile-wide strips over which the municipality has no control.

PLANNER'S REPORT

This was brought to council's attention by planner T. W. Loney in a special report.

He recommended Saanich make representation to the Union of B.C. Municipalities on the matter.

At the meeting, council agreed to forward a resolution to the UBCM condemning the legislation.

Most councillors didn't know about the change.

Mr. Loney made three major points in his report:

- "To include all provincial limited access highways effectively transfers a large measure of planning control . . . into the hands of the department of highways—a department hardly qualified to make planning decisions."

- "If provincial approval is to be more than a rubber stamping of proposed municipal zoning changes, an administrative procedure with qualified personnel will have to be set up; this could considerably lengthen and complicate rezoning procedure."

- "Such provincial control, if inevitable, should be exercised through the regional planning divisions of the department of municipal affairs, and not the department of highways."

Much of the developed area of Saanich falls into the half-mile radius around the Patricia Bay Highway, and municipal officials are trying to work out just how they are to go about rezoning under the new law.

WATER EXTENSION

In other business, council approved in principle the extension of the water main along West Saanich Road to the gate of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory.

Municipal engineer Neville Life is negotiating with federal government officials on sharing the $18,000 cost.

The governments wants the main extended because it plans to renovate the system supplying the observatory.

Council also: Ordered public hearings on rezoning applications for a motel on Hibbens' Close and a trampoline area at Mattick's Farm.

Authorized water service to a rocky lot on Savannah;

Decided to go ahead with paving, curbs, sidewalks, storm drains and street lighting on Ardersier between Douglas and CNR tracks, at the request of 75% land owner Heaney Cartage and Storage;

And accepted bids of $464.80 from Simpson-Maxwell and $456 from Wajax Equipment Ltd. for an auxiliary generator and a three-inch diaphragm pump respectively.

B.C. Kinsmen Vote to Quit World Body

VERNON (CP)—British Columbia Kinsmen voted here on Monday to pull out of the World Council, an association of young men's service clubs.

The four-day provincial convention backed a submission from its executive which charged that the aims of the World Council are directly opposed to and incompatible with the association of Kinsmen.

A resolution asking the national association to withdraw from the World Council will be submitted to the annual convention of Kinsmen in Banff this September.

After investigation of World Council activities, a special committee reported that the major Kinsmen belief of tolerance and equality had been rejected and excluded from the World Council constitution.

The report said the council is providing no service project, and had rejected support for international Scouting, UNICEF, and the Freedom from Hunger Campaign.

Surplus Of Ensigns

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Creven, president of Canadianna Textile Print Works in nearby Port Credit and one of Canada's four major flag manufacturers, said Tuesday he hopes the government will provide a one-year waiting period if a new flag is adopted.

Mr. Creven said in an interview adoption of a new flag would leave manufacturers with a huge surplus of Red Ensigns and little market.

Computers Fed a Rich Diet of Examination Marks to Guarantee Fairness

By TOM CLARIDGE
Presses at the Queen's Printer here are grinding out some 80,000 papers that next month will challenge the best brains of the province's high school graduation classes.

But B.C.'s 1964 departmental examinations are only one element in a complex system of checks and balances that education officials feel has made the province's university entrance system almost perfectly fair.

The program is supervised by Harry Evans, education department registrar, who modestly proclaims it "one of Canada's best."

He said in an interview Tuesday it is really impossible to say which of the 10 provinces has the best or fairest exam system since there is no regular exchange of information on current tactics.

But the list of provisions designed to protect the B.C. student against a harsh examiner or an ill-tempered marker is long and impressive.

A first step toward guaranteeing fairness of the papers themselves was taken months ago when the department selected the exam-setters.

"Contrary to general belief," Mr. Evans said, "the exams aren't set by professors in ivory towers who have little knowledge of the curriculum."

"In fact, few of our university entrance papers are set by university personnel. We try instead to find teachers and principals who are thoroughly familiar with the curriculum and possibly are still teaching the subject."

Arthur Mayse

I think it will take much more than a 'yea' from a parliament with a gun at its head to convince great masses of Canadians that Mike Pearson's brave new banner is an acceptable symbol for our confederation of provinces.

The flag issue calls for a polling, not of MPs with an understandable desire to retain seat and salary, but of the voters who sent them to Ottawa.

Until this is done, and the count complete from Newfoundland to British Columbia, the Canadian red ensign should share official place on our flagstaffs with the Union Jack.

Quebec has been muttering her 'I will remember' for 300 years. Let her possess herself in such patience as she can muster until the machinery for a general plebiscite is set up.

We are not choosing the winning poster for a school fair, but settling an issue so profound in its implications that it must effect the course of our history.

In any such general vote, the main clash would come between two groups whose convictions allow little if any leeway for compromise.

There is Quebec, hysterically opposed to any reminder of Britain.

In the other camp are the many who would vote to retain the Canadian red ensign, either in its present form or with a maple leaf spray substituted for the Dominion coat-of-arms.

And, in numbers which might well swing the vote, we have those who are willing to give Mr. Pearson a free hand.

"Canada," they tell us mildly, "ought to have a distinctive flag of her own."

To these the casual, the careless or the politically naive—I think a warning is overdue.

On none of the maple leaf variations which Mr. Pearson has announced he will lay before parliament on Thursday does the Union Jack appear.

For the first time since Wolfe broke the grip of France on Canada, Britain is out of the picture.

Is this conciliation, or is there another name for the gambit?

I think there is, and I find the taste of it bitter indeed.

What Mr. Pearson now prepares to offer an implacably hostile Quebec, with the assumed blessing of English-speaking Canada, is outright surrender.

Banish Britain's symbol from this land, and we have taken our first step out of the British Commonwealth.

As one of those who have no wish to take that step and the others which inevitably must follow, I think Canadians in all provinces should have their democratic say.

That's why a general vote on the flag issue... which goes so far beyond a mere choice of colors... is vital.

The men we send to the federal house are not fools. Among them are many who see the dangers inherent in Mr. Pearson's well-meant but reckless bid for Canadian unity at the cost of our chief tie with Britain.

I hope when Thursday comes, that these have the heart and the stamina to oppose the prime minister and his innocuous-seeming banner no matter what pressures may be exerted against them.

For the sake of the unity which Canada may some day achieve within the Commonwealth—but is unlikely to find outside it—we cannot afford to lose this second Battle of the Plains.

Topics of the Day

A five-year-old boy is in fairly good condition after receiving head injuries when he ran in front of a car on Burnside Tuesday afternoon.

Donald Mills, 824 Craigflower, was struck by a car driven by a 17-year-old boy. Saanich police said. He ran out from behind a parked vehicle.

The boy is detained at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Dr. Charles B. Brink, dean of the school of social work at the University of Washington, will speak Thursday on "Current trends in social work education" at a dinner meeting of the Vancouver Island branch of the B.C. Association of Social Workers. Meeting will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the Tally-Ho Travelodge. Election of officers will follow.

The Oak Bay Junior High School choir, dance group and school band will present a concert at the annual PTA meeting, Monday at 7:45 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Proficiency badges have been awarded to five cubs and one sea scout of the First, Sixth and Tenth Garry Oak groups. Cubs Bob Farmer, Stanley Ritz and David Van Essen of the Sixth group were awarded a religion and life badge and Stanley Ritz a guide badge. Mark Watts of the Tenth group was awarded an athletic badge, and sea scout, Bodo de Lange Boom of the First group, was presented with his gold cord.

Eight concerts are lined up for weekend afternoons in Beacon Hill Park's Cameron Memorial Bandshell, city parks officials said today. They include:

May 24, Mt. Douglas High School band; May 30, Surrey Schools band; May 31, Oak Bay High School band; June 7, Rotary Boys' Choir; June 14, S. J. Willis Junior High School band; June 21, Colquitz Junior High School band; June 28, RCMP Band; June 28, Rotary Boys' Choir.

All will start at 3 p.m. except the RCMP Band performance which will begin at 7:30 p.m.

A man with a police record going back to 1930 asked the magistrate Tuesday "as a favor" to increase his sentence.

Magistrate William Ostler obliged and sent Roy Lindley to the penitentiary for two years instead of to jail for 18 months.

Lindley, who was released from jail three weeks ago, had pleaded guilty to being in possession of a $270 television set stolen from a downtown store.

Lindley told Magistrate Ostler that when he got out of jail he was "sober and had good intentions" but that it "was pretty hard with my age and my record" to get a job. He also blamed his problems on "demon liquor."

A cheque for $500 was handed to Greater Victoria Conquer Cancer Campaign by the Canadian Legion Trafalgar branch Pacific No. 42 on Tuesday.

Tonight the Fraternal Order of Eagles will hand over a cheque for $350.

Ernie Locke, chairman of the Eagles' cancer committee, will present the cheque to cancer campaign treasurer Ken Patton at the Eagles' Hall, 751 View.

Victoria "Y" Swim Club is holding a meeting tonight at 8 in the YMCA for parents of swim club members.

The Irish-Canadian Club will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grier, 4834 Townsend Drive. Further information may be obtained by phoning GR 9-1768.

The Royal Canadian Air Force Association will hold its monthly cash bingo at 7:45 p.m. Saturday at 1212 Quadra Street.

MOTHER STILL ON HOSPITAL CRITICAL LIST

Still in critical condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital is Mrs. Sylvia Jean Bridges, struck by a car last Thursday.

Mrs. Bridges, of 3333 Glasgow, was walking with her five-year-old son, Stephen, on Cloverdale near Quadra when she was hit by a car driven by a 17-year-old girl.

The boy was uninjured but Mrs. Bridges received head injuries.

Holiday Death Toll Reaches 3

Brentwood Woman Third Victim

The death toll in Greater Victoria at the holiday weekend has risen to three with the death of Mrs. Ida Sam, 41, of Brentwood Bay.

Earlier, traffic accidents had claimed the lives of Terri Ann Verpe, 3, of 2534 Graham, and Della Mae Hoegl, 19, of 3016 Donald.

Mrs. Sam was injured when a car driven by her husband, Moses Sam, went out of control as they travelled north on Interurban Road about 3 p.m. Monday.

The car left the road and dropped 10 feet into a ditch, coming to rest on its side. Two other passengers in the vehicle, Ricky Sam, 9, and Leonard Paul, 38, both of Brentwood, were discharged from hospital after treatment.

1,500 Candidates

Aside from students attending non-accredited schools and those not recommended by accredited institutions, the 1964 departmental exams will be written by some 1,500 candidates for government scholarships.

Under a university scholarship program set up in 1958, the province pays half the tuition of all first-class honor students (80 per cent and up) and one third the tuition of the top 2,500 second-class honor students.

For Grade 12 (university entrance) and 13 students to qualify for the scholarships they must write the departmental exams.

Mr. Evans said that by feeding the marks of both the recommended students and the departmental exam writers into the computer a "scaling curve" can be obtained which will compensate for too-hard or too-easy papers.

Bonus System

He said practice in all provinces once was to "scale" results simply by adding—or subtracting—a few marks from all papers, or by giving a pass mark to those who failed by only five or 10 marks.

"The problem was that in some cases bonuses altered ranking and in others the bonuses produced marks of 100 for imperfect papers."

"Our scaling avoids any changes in ranking and prevents anyone from getting 100 through a bonus."

The "appeal board" is an adjudication committee of the provincial board of examiners empowered, to revise upwards the marks of a student on grounds of overall standing, previous record or health at the time of writing.

The committee's work was greatly expanded last year with the discontinuation of August supplementary exams for Grade 12 students.

Long Wait for Funds Faces Federal Bodies

'Last to Be Paid' Unless Ottawa Acts

If the Alberni disaster fund fails to get $180,000 it needs to pay for all uninsured damage from the March 28 tidal waves, the major sufferers will be two federal government agencies.

Fund treasurer Ray Newman said today that in addition to $1,507,000 in uninsured damage to residential properties assessed by a team of private adjusters, bills have come in for between $60,000 and $70,000 from the federal agencies.

He said the disaster committee has decided that unless the federal government comes through with aid beyond the $250,000 it has given so far, the agencies' bills "will be the last to be paid."

"That's for sure."

HARBOR BOARD BID
Mr. Newman said one bill from the Port Alberni Harbor Commission was for $55,000. Smaller amounts are being sought by the federal transport department.

He said total government grants and private donations have reached $1,570,000. The provincial government has given $750,000 of the total.

Some $1,500 received Tuesday boosted the total private donations to $370,000, he said, "but donations have almost stopped."

"The public appears to be our only source—and they have done a terrific job."

"But I'm afraid we will be short unless more comes."

Freight Rates To Australasia Said Too High
B.C. can trade more with Australia and New Zealand, but freight rates are too high, a provincial government report said today.

The trade department issued a market survey of export opportunities to the Australasian countries—latest in a series on Pacific trade.

The report said B.C. businessmen should be able to sell raw materials and "sophisticated" electronic equipment to Australia.

New Zealand offers a wider range of possibilities, including engineering equipment, heavy machinery, lumber, chemicals, aluminum, copper and drugs.

But the report also said that freight rates are "unjustifiably high" to New Zealand and "very high" to Australia.

Mr. Martin said he is awaiting a detailed planning report from a joint works and health department committee.

NO DELAY
And Dr. John Whitbread, senior medical health officer, said he understood the government's plans "will be delayed for some time."

Old Dog's New Trick Lands Vicious Fish

Trixie, a nine-year-old black and white Border Collie-type mongrel, went fishing on Monday and came up with a rare museum piece.

For what Trixie took to be a playful salmon turned out to be a vicious Pacific Lancet with a row of sharp, one-inch-long teeth.

And when Trixie's master, Vic Sinclair, of 14 Alma Place, speared the fish on to the beach it measured four feet one inch from head to tail.

The "catch" was made shortly after dawn while Vic and his wife Vi were out clam-digging at Esquimalt Lagoon.

Said Vic's brother, John Bennett, 24: Trixie suddenly darted into the water and pounced on this thing.

"The next minute all hell was let loose and the water literally bubbled. Vic dashed over and speared it with a stick."

During the fight, which lasted several minutes, Trixie was bitten three times on the legs. But nothing serious. Said Dr. Cliff Carl, Provincial Museum director: "This is a very vicious fish. In addition to the long flat teeth on the jaw it has a row along the top of the mouth."

"It is a relatively rare specimen and not found very often in shallow waters."

The last Lancet to be caught was at Oyster Bay in 1958. They usually live at around 400 fathoms.

As they already have a specimen the museum will not take up Vic's offer.

So now he has a "whopper" on his hands that didn't get away. Meanwhile, Trixie is all at sea wondering where that salmon got those teeth.

Mental Clinic Site Homes Rented on Monthly Basis

Plans for a new mental health clinic near Royal Jubilee Hospital are going ahead on schedule, provincial officials said today.

They said fears expressed at a meeting of the Metro Victoria Health Board Tuesday night that the project has been delayed were unfounded.

Board member Joseph Casey, a Saanich councillor, said homes the government had purchased for demolition "have now been rented again."

Conciliation Report Due In IWA Fight

Conciliation recommendations in the B.C. logging industry contract dispute are being drawn up and will be presented this week, conciliation officer E. P. Fisher said today.

Mr. Fisher's report will follow his talks with the IWA and management representatives, recently concluded in Vancouver.

The recommendations will affect about 25,000 coast area forest workers if accepted by both sides.

They have been demanding 40 cents per hour wage increases, with tradesmen and improvers asking 30 cents above that.

Q. Where is the world's largest buffalo herd located? The Americans claim they have the largest. D.K.

A. While the Americans may have the largest single herd, 800 animals, located in Yellowstone Park, Canada has the greater total number of buffalo, 15,000, compared with 10,000 south of the border.

Q. How many banks have there been since Confederation? How many have failed or merged? How many are still in operation? F.W.

A. Since Confederation, 77 bank charters have been issued. Some were allowed to lapse without being used. Of the remainder, 26 have failed, 38 have merged and 3 are still in operation. Since 1823 there have been 135 charters issued in Canada.

Cougar Tracks Tell Sad Story

A Cougar in the vicinity of Strathcona Park Lodge at Buttle Lake is living on borrowed time.

The cougar over the weekend attacked and ran off with a foal newly born to a thoroughbred owned by Mr. and Mrs. Jim Boulding.

Because of her size and for protection against infection, the big mother-to-be was left out in the paddock opposite the lodge rather than put in her stall in the barn. Floodlights were turned on her, so everyone could keep a close and watchful eye.

Mr. Boulding checked the animal at 1 a.m., and she was resting comfortably.

When Mrs. Boulding went out to check on the course of events at 6 a.m., all she found were a few remains of the colt that had been born sometime during the night, a few scratches on the thoroughbred, and big cougar tracks leading from the paddock back into the hills.

Conservation officer Jim he said.

Osman of Courtney was called in but he and his dog were unable to pick up the scent. George Knowles of Campbell River and his three dogs later picked up but lost the scent.

Mr. Boulding said that he and his family were very upset by the incident and had been looking forward to the arrival of the new foal almost as a member of the family.

"I'll have to go out and get that cougar now, and I will."

THAT LITTLE RED-HEADED GIRL IS WATCHING THE GAME!
AND SHE'S GOING TO SEE ME MAKE A FOOL OUT OF MYSELF IN THE LAST INNINGS...
I'VE GOT TO SHOW HER! I'VE GOT TO GET A HIT, AND WIN THE GAME! I'VE GOT TO! I'VE GOT TO!
Good grief! STRIKE ONE!

DEAR ABBY...

You Did, Lady!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Could you please tell me if I did wrong? My son had a serious back operation last March. When he started to feel a little better, I brought a large stuffed rabbit (about 22 inches tall) to the hospital thinking it would cheer him up as it was during the Easter season. The rabbit did not look childish in my opinion. My son is 44 years old. He was embarrassed and insisted I take the rabbit home. Do you think this was a babyish gift or not?

LE MARS: DEAR DE MARS: Stuffed animals are usually for young children. (Most 44-year-old men prefer live bunnies.) A post-operative patient is in no mood to split his stitches over an Easter rabbit, so don't hold your son's lack of enthusiasm against him.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a mother who would put a diaper on a nine-year-old boy—and make him parade around the school yard for punishment for wetting his bed? This lady must be cracked.

LIVES ACROSS THE STREET: DEAR LIVES: This woman is more than "cracked." She is cruel and ignorant. Bed-wetting is a symptom of an emotional problem, and to humiliate a child for wetting the bed will cure nothing and only compound the problem. I urge you to call on this neighbor (even if you know her slightly) and try to convince her to take her boy to a doctor and to heed his advice.

DEAR ABBY: I laughed when I read the letter from the woman whose child didn't look anything like her or her husband, which was a constant source of embarrassment to her. I went through the same thing many years ago. My hair was mousy brown and as straight as a poker. My husband's was dark brown—what there was of it. Our son had a head full of reddish-gold curls. My oil man, who showed up every now and then, had hair exactly the same color as my son's, and he looked more like the boy's father than my own husband. Some stories got back to me that were positively outrageous. I finally had to change oil companies to shut up the neighbors.

COURT STREET: DEAR ABBY: Is there anything wrong with my girl friend and me meeting two very nice clean boys from school in the movies? All we do is meet them inside and sit with them. We don't hold hands or anything like that. We are 14 and so are the boys.

IMPORTANT QUESTION: DEAR IMPORTANT: There is absolutely nothing wrong with it. IF you first get your mother's approval.

Get it off your chest. For a personal, unpublished reply, write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Take a Step Into Summer With New Natural Look

By PENNY SAVER

The new swing to femininity in fashion has started a series of revolutions in other trades. Hair styles have become longer and softer and make-up has veered from the Cleopatra look of recent months to the natural look.

To help you with this new look, a well-known company has produced a brush-on eyebrow color. It is the newest way to color and shape a soft natural brow and will stay on until you remove it with skin cleanser or soap and water.

It comes in cake form with its own specially styled brush. Use long, light brush strokes on cake and avoid dabbing, digging or sweeping back and forth since this makes the cake too powdery.

Color applies easily on clean skin and there is no need to use a make-up foundation or face powder under it. Gently wipe the brush with tissue after using, as a clean brush works best. Colors include grey, black and dark, medium and light browns. Price is $2.

To add further color and sparkle to your eyes, why not try one of the new matte finish eye shadows. Colors are subdued, subtle and never harsh or heavy. They won't smear, cake, fade or settle in lid lines. Price is $2 and shadow is easily applied with fingertip or eye shadow brush.

Complement your new natural look with softly fragrant cologne, bath oil or talcum I found in same shop. Scent is soft and fresh and items come in gaily colored bottles with lids in the shape of a daffodil.

Cologne comes in two, four, six and eight-ounce sizes and prices are $1.35, $2, $2.75 and $3.50. Three larger sizes include a small purse flacon of perfume. Bath oil and talcum are priced at $1.50.

Jones-Yakimovich Vows Exchanged Last Weekend

Baskets of spring flowers decorated Metropolitan United Church, Saturday evening, for the double-ring ceremony that united Carol Ann Yakimovich and Kenneth William Jones.

Rev. E. Laura Butler officiated at the candlelight ceremony and organist was Eric Boothroyd.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Adam Yakimovich, 2526 Blanshard Street, and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jones, 1623 Kenmore Road. Mr. Yakimovich gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride's floor-length gown featured a lace bodice, styled with long sleeves, and a scalloped neckline that was enhanced with rhinestones and pearls. The full chiffon skirt was fashioned with front lace panel. The bouffant veil misted from a headpiece of rhinestones and pearls. Red roses and white carnations with trailing white ribbons were in her bouquet.

Maid of honor Miss Lorraine Lowe wore a full-skirted gown of pink chiffon. Her headpiece was a pink flower trimmed with matching veiling and she carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Identical full-skirted gowns of blue chiffon with lace bodices and matching jackets were worn by bridesmaids, the Misses Lynn Jackson and Brenda Beamish, niece of the bride. They completed their outfits with blue floral headpieces and carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Miss Vicki Jackson was flower girl in a full-skirted frock of pink chiffon over silk with lace bodice. She wore a toning floral headpiece and carried pink and white carnations.

Robert Jones was best man for his brother and guests were ushered to pews marked with carnations by Ronald Beamish and Donald Marsh, the bride's nephews.

A three-tier wedding cake, decorated in pink and white and topped with a bride and groom, centred the bride's table at a reception which followed in Union Centre. The cake was surrounded by six rosebuds. Dancing followed the wedding dinner. The toast was proposed by the bride's brother-in-law, Arthur Beamish.

Following a honeymoon trip touring British Columbia and Alberta, the couple will spend a few months in Calgary before moving to Germany, where they will live for three years.

For travelling, the bride donned a beige double knit suit with beige hat and gloves and brown accessories. Red and white carnations were in her corsage.

WATCH TOMORROW FOR ANOTHER LUNCH IDEA

Orchids in Her Bouquet

A cascade bouquet of pink cymbidium orchids and white stephanotis enhanced with egg-shell-toned ribbon was carried by Phillis Melba Lange last Saturday evening, when she exchanged marriage vows with Lorne Phillip Hudson. The bouquet was designed by her brother, Glen Lange.

Given in marriage by another brother, Norman, the bride wore a classic peau de sole gown.

The fitted bodice featured high neckline and lily point sleeves. A slim, floor-length skirt had a chapel train that extended from a self-fabric bow at back waistline. Simplicity of the gown was highlighted with re-embroidered Alencon lace appliques on bodice and skirt. The chapel-length silk illusion net veil had scalloped edges. It misted from a tiara of pearls and crystals.

MAUVE AND PINK

Candelabra and baskets of mauve lilac, pink carnations and white gladioli decorated North Douglas Pentecostal Church for the ceremony at which Rev. Clifford Fawcett officiated. He was assisted by Rev. E. W. Robinson, Seattle.

A sister trio, Miss Sharon Neale, Mrs. David Harbut and Mrs. Donald Rendle, sang "O Perfect Love" during the bridal prayer. Solos included "Wedding Prayer" by Mrs. Harbut and "How Great Thou Art" by Mrs. Rendle during signing of the register.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Hedwig Lange, 841 Sevenoaks Road, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernie P. Hudson, 2164 Cubbon Drive.

Identical gowns of rose pink peau de sole were worn by matron of honor, Mrs. Russell Thompson, Vancouver; bridesmaids, the Misses Rita Choy and Janet Hudson, sister of the groom, and bridesmaids, Mrs. Michael Griffin-Warwick and Mrs. David Heal, Vancouver.

They completed their outfits with matching peau de sole petalled headpieces trimmed with tulle veils and topped with tiny pink and white flowers. All carried crescent bouquets of white lilies.

IN CANDLELIGHT

Glen Lange acted as candle-lighter for the double-ring ceremony.

Roy Hudson was best man for his brother and guests were ushered to pews marked with pink and white satin roses by David Harbut, Clifford Bowring, and Russell Thomson, all of Vancouver, and Michael Griffin-Warwick, Victoria.

Raymond Whellams proposed the toast at a reception in the Crystal Ballroom at the Empress Hotel.

The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake decorated in white and silver and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Pink and white flowers and candelabra completed table decorations.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Whistle While You Work; Hum When Things Don't

Why does a bee hum? Because it doesn't know the words.

I have been humming for years but didn't know what to call it. Perhaps you have been doing the same thing. When things got rough I just hummed along, trying to be as happy as I should be. Then, I was happy just to be alive!

Nobody knows the words to every song or the answer to every situation. A little hum smooths the hecticness of daily living and gives us time to learn the words and answers for more important questions.

Often folks are so completely thrown off balance by their real problems that they forget the hum and the whole world about them. Much worse, many are thrown off balance by small, unimportant, although unpleasant and discouraging experiences. They forget the hum!

The hum gives you a chance to get things in focus, to avoid damaging decisions, to find yourself. The bee is not the only one who doesn't know the words. I am the last person in the world to ask you to become a Pollyanna, to pretend that all is sweetness and light, because life is not like that. If we adopted that attitude, not being bees, we might all get stung!

Everyone has problems, big and little ones, or otherwise they would not belong to the human race. However, it seems to me to be important to happiness, and to survival as an individual, to keep that hum humming. The hum suggests that you have a wonderful aliveness and love of life inside you and also that you have the ability to sense the excitement of the whole of life, not measuring it just by today's problems.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Individual Happiness", which gives you some psychological suggestions, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet number 63 to Josephine Lowman, in care of this newspaper.

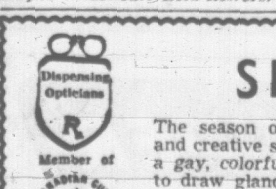

RHEUMATIC PAIN

Do you long for relief from the agony of rheumatic and arthritic pain? Thousands get speedy relief from their suffering by using T-R-C's. Don't let dull aches and stabbing pains handicap you any longer. Try TEMPLETON'S T-R-C's. Only 85c and $1.85 at drug counters everywhere.

Anniversaries Marked at Dance

A large two-tier cake with the numerals "25" across the top marked the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Bath of Sidney, at the weekend dance in McMorran's Seaview Room at Cordova Bay. Assisting the couple in celebrating the event were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bowcott, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hay, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hay and Mr. Kenneth O'Reilly from Vancouver.

Celebrating a 17th wedding anniversary were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hayes. In their party were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Main, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Webster and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Drummond.

At another table Mr. and Mrs. R. Topping were marking a sixth anniversary and Mrs. Julien Morneau, a birthday. With them were Mr. Morneau and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gaudet.

The weekend also marked 45 years of dancing at McMorran's. George Kraaling's six-piece orchestra played for the party.

Wedding Date Set

Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. D. Smith, 39 South Turner Street, have announced the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Mavis, to Mr. George Ykanovich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ykanovich of Port Alberni. The wedding will take place on May 30 at 7 p.m. in the chapel of Christ Church Cathedral.

Return Home

Mrs. Keith MacDougall returned to her home on Lansdowne Road last Saturday after a three-week holiday in eastern Canada where she visited her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Ogilvie of Ottawa and stayed in Kingston and Toronto. On completion of her examinations at the University of Victoria, Miss Ann MacDougall joined her mother in Toronto. They returned home together.

Out-of-Town

Among out-of-town guests in the city to attend the Hudson-Lange wedding were Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. N. Thomas and Martin, and Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Barker and Crystal, all of Seattle; Mr. Norman Lange and Linda, Christine and Heather of Kamloops; Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Bell of Cloverdale, Rev. and Mrs. Glen Richmond and Miss Jean Storey of Vancouver.

In Halifax

Mrs. A. B. Sanderson will leave Victoria on Thursday to travel to Halifax, N.S., where she will attend the annual meeting and conferences of the Girl Guides of Canada, to be held there from May 25 to 28. Mrs. Sanderson is the provincial study group chairman. During her two-week trip, Mrs. Sanderson will also visit in Ottawa and Vancouver before returning to her home on Upper Terrace.

Hear Vows

Mrs. A. Smith travelled from Winnipeg to attend the ceremony Saturday morning, that united Miss Carol Ann Yakimovich and her grandson, Mr. Kenneth William Jones. Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. R. Beamish of Moose Jaw, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. E. Shane, Mr. and Mrs. M. Chiz and Mr. and Mrs. F. Hunchuk, all of Vancouver.

Down South

Victoria travellers who visited British Columbia House in San Francisco recently and signed the register there, include Mrs. Carl Harold, Miss Ann Harold, Col. and Mrs. V. W. Mills, Mrs. A. Frances Kergin, Mrs. G. F. Hall, Miss Sandy Reid, Miss Carol Blake, Miss Heather Brayshaw, Mr. Peter Hamilton and Mrs. Alfred Staples.

Nurses Meeting

Several members of St. Joseph Hospital's nursing faculty are in Vancouver this week to attend the 52nd annual meeting of the Registered Nurses' Association of British Columbia. They include Sister Mary Beatrice and Miss Janie E. Jamieson, honorary treasurer and honorary secretary; Mrs. Patty Stokes, the Misses Alice Watson, Phyllis Driver, Lillian Knighton and Edna Larmour.

Students who will cross to the mainland to attend annual meeting of the Student Nurses Association, to be held at St. Paul's Hospital on Friday, are the Misses Glenda Brazell, Clare Moss, Patricia Martin and Patricia Beach, Mr. Roy Harding and Mr. John Murphy. Student nurses from the Royal Jubilee Hospital who will attend the Vancouver meeting are the Misses Mary Stevens, Nan Dufour, Gail McDermid, Paula Heycock, Ann Wallace, Gladys Patterson and Jan Haymark.

"SHE LOOKS OLD!" IS THAT WHAT THEY'RE SAYING ABOUT YOU?

No woman wants to look old, but so many do—because of dry skin caused by harsh weather, indoor heat, low-fat diets. That's why you should know about POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM. This famous cream contains Allantoin—a substance that goes to work in just 10 minutes to repair skin robbed of natural moisture. Allantoin gently disperses lifeless surface cells... speeds penetration of Pond's rich moisturized lanolin to thirsty tissues far below. Almost overnight, dry lines, flakiness disappear... your skin looks soft, smooth, young again! Use POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM regularly. Buy it in the jar or tube, wherever cosmetics are sold.

Hanson-Storrie Wedding Vows

Belmont United Church was decorated with pink and white flowers last Saturday evening when Dr. D. B. Sparling heard marriage vows exchanged between Gail Elizabeth Storrie and William Vernon Hanson.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. George Storrie, 1171 Allenby Street, and Mrs. Edith Hanson, Victoria, and V. Hanson, Saskatoon. Mr. Storrie gave his daughter in marriage.

Soloist, Mrs. R. Hundley, sang the "Lord's Prayer" during signing of the register.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of embossed brocade enhanced with beading and pearl appliques on the bodice. The full skirt, with scissor front paneling, extended to a train from diagonal bias bands below the waist. Sleeves ended in lily points. A three-tier chapel-length veil misted from a coronet of teardrop pearls. Only jewelry was a pearl necklace, gift of the groom. Pink roses and lily of the valley were in her bouquet.

Identical gowns of pink brocade with matching pillbox hats trimmed with toning veiling were choice of maid of honor, Miss Pat Holmberg and bridesmaids, the Misses Carol and Pat Hundley. They complemented their outfits with feathered white gladioli centred with pink rosebuds.

Flower girl, Miss Marcia Hundley, wore a full-skirted frock of pink brocade and carried a basket of pink and white blossoms.

Reg Jones was best man and guests were ushered to pews marked with white satin bows, by Frank McNeil and Larry Lott.

At a reception which followed in Pembroke Hall, the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake decorated in white with pink rosebuds. Arrangements of spring flowers centred guest tables. L. McLaughlin proposed the toast.

Upon return from a honeymoon trip up-Island, the couple will make their home at 637 Pine Street.

For travelling, the bride wore a two-piece suit of pink linen featuring white lace trim on the jacket. Her hat was in tone and she complemented the ensemble with white accessories and white rosebud corsage.

Out-of-town guests at the ceremony included Mrs. D. Magill, Saskatoon; Mr. and Mrs. J. Magill and Mr. and Mrs. R. Hundley, all of Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. J. Crombie, 2440 Central Avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Carol Dorothy, to Sub-Lt. Eion Edward Lawder, RCN, son of Commander E. F. Lawder, RN (Retd.)

of South Africa, and Mrs. T. Lawder, 1210 May Street, Victoria. The wedding will take place in St. John's Anglican Church on Saturday, June 6, at 2:30 p.m., with Canon George Biddle officiating.

Parties Held for Judy Diment

Several showers have been held to honor Miss Judy Diment, whose marriage takes place this Saturday.

The Gordon Head home of Mrs. Duncan Smith was scene of a surprise linen shower. Co-hostess was Miss Lynda Smith. A replica of a church held gifts. Pink carnation corsages were presented to the honor guest, her mother, Mrs. Fred Diment, and groom-elect's mother, Mrs. Alec Rogers.

Also attending were Mrs. A. McCluskey, Mrs. D. Chambers, Mrs. R. Copley, Mrs. W. Richardson, Mrs. J. Halvorsen, Mrs. R. Smith, Mrs. L. Campbell, Mrs. R. Williston, Mrs. J. Crowe, the Misses Pat McCurdy, Marg Lloyd, Maureen Reid, Donna Conconi, Dianne Williston, Marilyn Moffat and Yvonne Muir.

The bride-elect's co-workers at Hudson's Bay store gave a shower at the Swartz Bay home of Miss Lynore Blake. Colonial bouquet of yellow roses and white freesia topped the yellow container of gifts.

Guests included the bride-elect's and groom-elect's mothers, Mrs. R. Chilton, Mrs. C. Foster, Mrs. J. Richmond, Mrs. D. Robertson, Mrs. A. Davie, Mrs. J. Smith, Mrs. R. Blake, Mrs. L. Thomas, Mrs. J. Bradshaw, Mrs. J. Cockcroft, Mrs. N. Bambrough, Mrs. J. Boyd, Mrs. J. Biggs, the Misses Susan Styles, Adele Sinnott, Gaye Schickowski, Shirley Buie, Evelyn Young and Adrienne Stack.

Mrs. R. Diment gave a shower in her Anchorage Road home in honor of her niece. A decorated bride's box contained gifts.

White carnations in corsage were presented to Miss Diment and groom-elect's mother. Red carnations were received by the bride-to-be's mother.

Also attending were Mrs. D. Chambers, Mrs. C. Hawthorne, Mrs. V. Diment, Mrs. J. Diment, Mrs. C. Dove, Mrs. F. McLeod, Mrs. G. D. Hawthorne, Mrs. D. Hawthorne, Mrs. H. Arkinstall, Mrs. I. Diment and Mrs. E. Redford.

Mrs. L. Woods, of Courtenay, B.C., wishes to announce the engagement of her only daughter, Miss Gloria R. Woods, Victoria, B.C., to Mr. Kent N. Allan, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Allan, 1875 Feltham Road, Victoria. The wedding will take place on June 6 in the Church of St. Aidan, Cedar Hill Crossroad, with Rev. A. C. McLeod officiating. (Gibson's Studio.)

HIGHLAND GAMES

Pentiction Trophies Taken by Victorians

Four young Victorians brought back a carload of trophies from the Pentiction first annual Highland games this weekend.

Winning the open professional aggregate award, the five-foot high Barry Trophy, was Angus MacKenzie, 18. He had two firsts and two seconds.

Aggregate winner in the under-seven bracket with two first places was David Watling, six.

Cheryl Jackson, nine, won all events in the under-11 bracket to take her age group's aggregate trophy, and Gail Bamford, 11, was also first in all events to win the under-13 aggregate award.

Placing in events were Victorians Gloria Smith, Cheryl Rafter, Trudean Strank, Yvette Murray, Geri Mae Watling, Margaret Watling, Laurie Lewis, Denise Warholm, Monica Thistle, Patty Thistle, Jeffrey Kerr, Jamie Ramsay, Brenda Walton and Danny Costain.

Over 300 competitors took part in the dancing and piping events.

The Victoria dancers are all from the Adeline Duncan Dance Studios.

LITTLE LEAGUE

'Toe Mark or Go' Baseballers Told

Little League ball teams were told Tuesday they will have to "toe the mark and get organized" if they expect to use school playground facilities without further trouble.

Greater Victoria school trustees reiterated a two-year-old policy that it is not prepared to "reserve entire playground facilities at a large number of schools every day of the week for use by any organized group."

The statement, made at a regular board meeting after a series of letters and meetings with Little Leaguers, followed complaints from some quarters over the hazards and noise involved in evening and afternoon games.

WITHOUT LEAVE

At the moment all Little League practising done on Greater Victoria school properties, excepting those in Esquimalt, is done without permission of the school board.

Trustee Peter Bunn, in making the statement, said only the Esquimalt group of teams had secured permits from the school board buildings and grounds superintendent.

Yet, he said, Little League takes over school playgrounds to the exclusion of other community recreation groups and individuals.

School grounds fulfill two outside roles, Mr. Bunn said. They are intended to provide a place where children of the neighborhood may play in safety, without interference, on an unorganized basis; and school trustees encourage use by such organized groups as play soccer, grass hockey, rugby and softball.

The board, on the basis of the first case, has banned hardball games which could be dangerous.

Mr. Bunn, quoting from a report by the buildings and grounds department, said there has been no trouble from the thousands of persons playing organized games on a permit.

"These include more than 1,000 youngsters in 70 teams of the Juvenile Soccer Association, which has "excellent organization" that deals through one person with the school board; Victoria Grass Hockey Association, Central Baptist Church, Christian Reformed Church, Bank of Montreal, Builders Sash and Door Ltd., and 15 teams of the Esquimalt Girls' Softball League.

"Now come the Little League... a drive around the schools in the evening will reveal that most school grounds are being used by Little League," he said.

NO APPROACH

They have made no organized approach for the use of specific areas at a specific time.

Whereas with the others there has been "no argument, no unpleasantness, no delegations to the board or that nonsense," Little League wants dugouts, fences and the use of loudspeakers, using fields to the exclusion of all others.

Mr. Bunn said it was not right for a group representing 2,000 to use facilities intended for 25,000.

"Until Little League organize themselves, there is going to be more trouble," Mr. Bunn said.

Ruby Gets Treatment For Mental Disorder

DALLAS (AP)—Convicted slayer, Jack Ruby is receiving "treatment for his mental condition" in his county jail cell, district attorney Henry Wade revealed today.

Wade, and Sheriff Bill Decker said they did not know what doctors had prescribed for the condemned slayer, but Judge Joe E. Brown told reporters later, "I believe they are giving him 'happy pills' (tranquillizers) or something."

Wade said psychiatrists hope to "snap Ruby out of his depression."

Wade said he would not object to hospital treatment for Ruby. But the district attorney said, he would oppose a defence plea for a sanity hearing before a jury at this time.

Wade confirmed that a court-appointed psychiatrist, Dr. Robert Stubblefield, believed Ruby mentally ill.

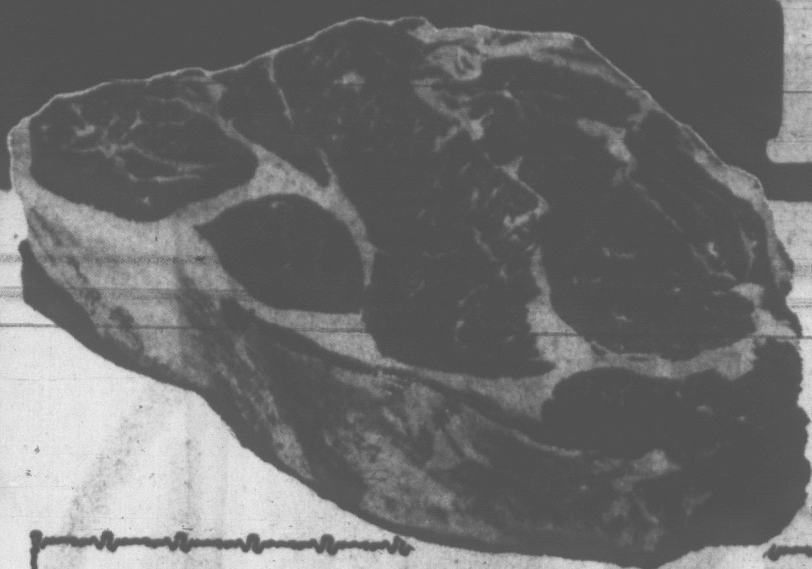

Stubblefield's report said psychiatrists believe Ruby suffers from depression and persecution complex.

Wade said: "It is my understanding this condition is fairly common among men sentenced to the electric chair—that it is more the rule than the exception. Dr. Stubblefield's report certainly does not mean Ruby is legally insane."

Judge Brown said he wants to study other reports and confer with psychiatrists before deciding whether to order a sanity hearing.

Defence lawyers said Ruby has "deteriorated" behind jail bars since a jury sentenced him to die for the murder of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused of killing President John Kennedy.

Stubblefield said he expects Ruby's condition to alternately improve and worsen.

Senate Defers Bank Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate banking committee today deferred for at least a week consideration of a private bill to incorporate the Bank of Western Canada.

The step was taken after several senators opposed any final vote on the bill until the Senate has had an opportunity to consider another measure to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia.

A number of senators suggested that these two bills and a third to incorporate the Laurentide Bank should be considered by the committee in one package. However, no action was taken on this proposal.

Senator T. D'Arcy Leonard (L.-Ontario), sponsor of the western bank bill, agreed to deferment on the understanding that the bill remains on the committee's agenda.

The committee passed all sections of the bill except for the preamble. Once the preamble is carried the committee then reports the bill back to the Senate for final approval.

Senator David Croll (L.-Ontario) proposed that the three bank bills be considered by the committee at the same time. He said unless they are considered as a package deal, the sponsors of the Bank of Western Canada bill would bear the brunt of any opposition in the Commons.

Senator A. K. Hugesen (L.-Quebec) said no final decision should be made by the committee on this bill until the Senate determines whether the B.C. bank bill is constitutional. The issue was whether a provincial government should be in control of a bank incorporated under federal jurisdiction.

Senator Leonard said any undue delay in consideration of his bill would be unfair. Any move to hold up consideration of the bill by the Senate would be denying the Commons an opportunity to study the measure.

MRS. RANDI SCHJELDRUP among survivors

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—"Oh, God, I love you, honey. I'm glad you're safe."

At this greeting, Mrs. Randi Schjeldrup fell into the embrace of her aunt Josephine after the nightmarish burning of a ship at sea, in which one died and nine others are missing.

Mrs. Schjeldrup, 29, her three small children and her husband, Sindre, were among 45 survivors from the explosion-racked Norwegian freighter Sandanger, on which Schjeldrup was chief engineer.

The 45 arrived here late Tuesday night aboard their rescue ship, the German freighter Bodenstein.

The Bodenstein raced to the aid of the stricken Sandanger in the pre-dawn hours Monday, less than an hour after the Sandanger was ripped by a blast that ignited her highly combustible cargo of baled cotton and wood pulp. The Bodenstein's crew plucked the survivors from lifeboats near the burning ship.

The Sandanger was reported listing and sinking, still ablaze, said they paid Richard Lauchlin, California.

Still unknown was the fate of the ship's captain, John Kellmer, two stewardesses and six California passengers. The body of one woman passenger, tentatively identified as Juanita M. Benoy, 57, was pulled from the sea by a Japanese ship, the Boston Maru.

Reported explosions and the intense heat from flames on the doomed ship have held off attempts to board the Sandanger to search for the nine missing.

RETIRING FROM SQUARE-DANCING after seventeen years are caller Russel Ard and his wife, Betsy, two of the founders of Victoria's first square dance club, the Wagon Wheelers.

SWINGS PARTNER TO NEW FIELDS

You Can't Call Russ Ard a Square But He's Set to Promenade Home

By JIM BIGSBY

One of the pioneers of organized square dancing in Victoria will call his last dance June 6.

Russ Ard, 2770 Thompson, is "retiring" from square dancing after 17 years, 15 of them as a caller, in order to devote more time to other activities.

And considering that he's been spending six nights a week calling, practicing and organizing, his desire to make a "clean break" can be understood.

Russ and his wife, Betsy, went to their first square dance at the insistence of a neighbor.

DRAGGED THERE

"I more or less had to be dragged there, as men usually do," says Mr. Ard, "but I fell for it within 20 minutes."

It was an unusual start. Their instructor was recovering from a broken leg and Russ was required to sign a release in case of accident.

From dancing Mr. Ard went to calling as a rapid increase in square dancing made callers scarce.

He and his wife were among the organizers of The Wagon Wheelers, the first of the 29 clubs now operating in the Greater Victoria area.

FORMED GROUPS

The Western Square Dancing Association and the Callers' Teacher Association were both organized in the Ard's living room as they became more interested in their hobby.

Mrs. Ard shared her husband's hobby completely, helping to teach rounds, check sound and do other organizational tasks.

"One of the greatest benefits of square dancing is that it is an activity for couples," says Mrs. Ard.

GRAND GATHERING

This Saturday the Ards will be honored at a big get-together of the four clubs he has been calling for during the past season.

On June 6 Mr. Ard will make his last call—or so he says—as all the clubs in the city have a grand gathering and dance.

But the energetic and friendly Ards are not going to slow down by any means. They like people and activity too much.

PICK UP GOLF

They plan to pick up their golf and fishing and to catch up on all the other activities shelved over the years in favor of square dancing.

As if to signify the "clean break" the Ards are moving to a house now being built on Lands End Road.

They have one son, Ronald, who will begin post-graduate study in political history this fall.

Convict 'Depressed,' Jury Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two men awaiting habitual proceedings have been sent to a mental hospital and another has made a serious attempt on his own life, the chief medical officer at Oakalla Prison said Tuesday.

Dr. Richard Richmond was testifying at an inquest into the hanging death of prisoner Austin Tarleck, 49, found dead in his cell May 9. The coroner's jury ruled the death suicide.

Dr. Richmond testified that Tarleck was depressed after being served notice of habitual proceedings. Conviction as an habitual criminal brings an indefinite sentence, which could mean a lifetime in prison.

The doctor said "this state of mind is not uncommon, but the intensity of Tarleck's state was."

He said men held in Oakalla awaiting habitual proceedings go through emotional conditions of extreme anxiety and tension or feelings of despair and hopelessness.

He added that in a study of 13 such men, 11 were suffering from the same state of mind as Tarleck, although not so grave.

"They are all faced with a situation which would cause all of us a good deal of distress," he said.

The jury ruled that in view of the strain and despondency presently felt by men facing habitual criminal charges, we feel they could be put in some area much more closely supervised."

Colts to Release Ex-Batting King

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Colts have asked waivers on Pete Runnels, twice American League batting champion.

The Colts made the move for the purpose of giving the 26-year-old infielder his unconditional release.

'RIFLE IN ONE HAND'

Cuba Forces Alerted For Commando Raids

HAVANA (Reuters)—The Cuban armed forces were in a state of general alert today, anniversary of the country's independence from Spain and the day on which anti-Castro forces had threatened commando raids and sabotage.

The government - controlled press warned that any "agents of the CIA (U.S. Central Intelligence Agency) discovered in Cuba would be crushed."

There has been no announcement about the alert but it was reliably learned troops have been recalled to barracks, all leaves cancelled and the armed forces put on a basis of general alert.

Havana itself remained calm and there was no sign police and militia in the city had been reinforced.

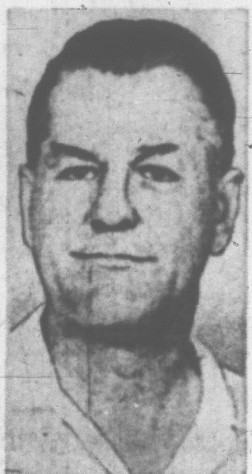

The newspaper Hoy, organ of the Communist party, said in an editorial the best way on responding to "imperialist attacks" was to "re-double our work" while at the same time keeping "rifle in one hand."

It denounced members of exile action groups as "agents of the Central Intelligence Agency" and called on the people "to leave no trace of them" if they appear in Cuba.

Havana radio, monitored in Miami, said today all workers in Oriente province were being mobilized "for the defence of the country and the defence of production."

The broadcast said top military and political leaders in the province conferred Tuesday in Santiago de Cuba.

ONE SUSPECT TRIES SUICIDE

Slayer Still Aboard 'Hell Ship'?

HONOLULU (UPI)—A prime suspect in the axe-slaying of a freighter captain was hospitalized today following a suicide attempt—today the vessel's radio-man was convinced the slayer still is among the near-mutinous crew aboard the "hell ship."

And while the mystery of the freighter Pomona grew with the suspense of an adventure novel, authorities from several countries still were not sure which of them should seek the solution.

The victim of the slaying was Capt. Jacob Natvig, 51, of Norway. He was hacked to death with a fire axe in his cabin last Friday, while the vessel was en route from Los Angeles to Formosa.

The man described as a prime suspect is Chief Steward Anker Baardsen, 42, of Christiansen, Norway. Authorities said he slashed his wrists with a piece of broken slate.

Baardsen had been drinking with the skipper shortly before the slaying, and customs officials found a blood-spattered shirt in the chief steward's cabin.

Almejun told authorities he had defended Baardsen in the presence of other officers and crewmen and that someone—he believed the killer—had later tampered with the lock on his cabin door.

He said the slain captain had been drunk almost every day since the vessel left California and that many of the crewmen were "disorderly and had no respect for authority."

Mike's Flag Would Flunk Art Students

TORONTO (CP)—Heads of two art schools here say the maple leaf design being suggested by Prime Minister Pearson for a new Canadian flag would not be acceptable to their students.

Sidney Watson, principal of the Ontario College of Art, said if a student submitted this design with his application to enter the college he would not be admitted. He said the design is "dreadful."

Charles Goldhammer, head of the art department at Central Technical School, said he would fail a student responsible for such a poor design.

Mr. Goldhammer said, however, Mr. Pearson has the right idea "to have the three maple leaves from the old flag (Red Ensign) included in the new one."

Abstract artist Harold Town said the prime minister's design would be a good thing to wrap the garbage in.

"The design is monstrously pedestrian," he said.

Alan Jarvis, editor of Canadian Art Magazine, and Doris McCarthy, president of the Ontario Society of Artists, both said they like the basic concept of the suggested design.

But Mr. Jarvis thinks the maple leaves look "wisp-y" and need strengthening and Miss McCarthy would rather have a single maple leaf instead of the suggested three.

'Passably Pleased'

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Lesage of Quebec said today the flag project put forward by Prime Minister Pearson pleases him "passably."

He told reporters following a cabinet meeting he likes the colors—red, white and blue—because they are the same as those of the French and British flags.

The idea of two vertical blue stripes on either side of the flag, suggesting a nation stretching from sea to sea, also "has merit."

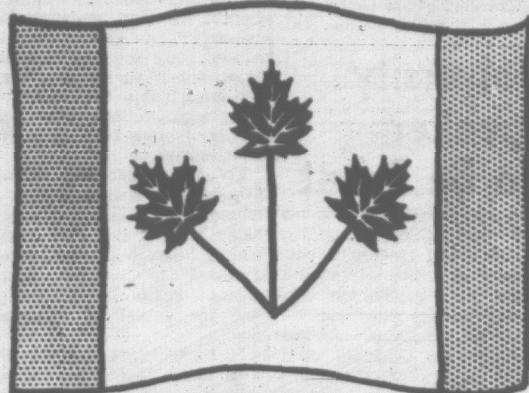

No Decision Yet—Dief

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker says the government's plan to adopt a Canadian flag by a majority vote in Parliament is a "denial of every principle that has ever existed in reference to those emblems that mean so much to all of us."

"The Red Ensign is Canada's flag," he told radio reporters Tuesday. "The fact that we have a flag does not deny sometime in the future changes to meet changing conditions."

He said the flag can be changed "when the people as a whole favor a change."

Mr. Diefenbaker said no decision has been made by his party whether to place before the Commons Monday a motion of non-confidence based on the flag issue—in response to a challenge to do so by Prime Minister Pearson.

ONE OF THREE DESIGNS for Canadian flag expected to be submitted to Parliament this week is represented in this unofficial sketch. It shows three red maple leaves on single stem on a white background with blue bars at either end. Other designs suggested are red maple leaves on pale blue background. Sketches such as this have been criticized as being too spindly, but no official design has yet been released. (CP photo.)

PLEBISCITE URGED

Legion Erupts In Flag Blast

WINNIPEG (CP)—Opposition to a maple leaf design for a Canadian flag, proposed by the federal cabinet, erupted today on the floor of the Royal Canadian Legion convention.

Prime Minister Pearson said in Ottawa Tuesday his cabinet has decided to replace the Red Ensign with a flag designed with maple leaves and plans to choose Thursday the specific design it will place before Parliament.

At the convention of Legionnaires, an Ontario resolution called on the Legion to recognize only the Red Ensign, and another from the Legion's Pacific Command called for a national plebiscite to decide the issue.

The chair ruled the two resolutions from the floor will be dealt with later.

A spokesman for the Pacific Command rose at the beginning of today's session and said the group is sending a telegram to Mr. Pearson protesting his choice of flags.

CALLS VOTE FARCE

The delegate read the telegram to the convention. It said that the free parliamentary vote on the flag promised by Mr. Pearson is a farce.

The telegram said Mr. Pearson is enforcing his brand of nationalism to maintain his reputation as an international diplomat.

Tuesday night the Legion for the third time endorsed the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag.

In a shouted voice vote, the 1,500 delegates gave unanimous approval to a resolution favoring the Red Ensign.

In a parallel move, the convention also voted to send telegrams to every member of the House of Commons outlining the stand.

Both moves came at the tail-end of the Tuesday convention session. Only hours before in Ottawa, Prime Minister Pearson disclosed the cabinet had decided on a maple leaf design for the flag.

BRINGS REBUKE

The disclosure brought a rebuke from the Legion president, Judge C. C. Sparling, who read The Canadian Press story of the cabinet decision to delegates.

He said he was "bitterly disappointed" in the move and said the prime minister should have waited until the Legion had decided the matter before making a binding decision.

Judge Sparling said in the past federal governments had listened to the Legion with respect and attention. "In this case it is not so."

"I do not know what the reason is for the haste and priority," Judge Sparling said he hoped that before the convention delegates would ask for a national plebiscite on the flag issue.

Gov't Troops Fall Back Again

VIENTIANE (AP)—The last positions held by neutralist forces in the Plaine des Jarres region have fallen to the Communists, Premier Souvanna Phouma announced today.

Neutralist Gen. Kong Le abandoned his emergency command post and withdrew further southwest of the plain in the face of continuing Communist pressure, a spokesman for Souvanna said.

(U.S. State Secretary Rusk urgently recalled Adlai Stevenson, chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, from a European trip because of the deepening crisis in Southeast Asia.)

A government statement said "following massive attacks, prepared well in advance launched by the Lao-Viet (Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese) troops against our (neutralist) position in the Plaine des Jarres and Muong Phan, the last neutralist positions existing on the plateau of Xieng Khouang have fallen."

MAJOR SPEECH to UN Security Council will be delivered Thursday by chief U.S. delegate Adlai Stevenson. Stevenson has cut short a tour of Europe to speak on what U.S. spokesmen describe as "the deteriorating situation in Southeast Asia."

FOR VIET NAM

U.S. Hikes Asian Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives foreign affairs committee quickly and unanimously approved today an added $125,000,000 in military and economic aid for South Viet Nam's struggle against communism.

Even as it acted, Defence Secretary McNamara went before the armed services committee, and said American soldiers in South Viet Nam "are receiving the best equipment available for the unique task at hand."

There have been charges that use of obsolete planes had caused the deaths of two American flyers.

McNamara and other top officials presented the case for stepped-up aid to South Viet Nam to the foreign affairs group Tuesday. The committee voted today to add $55,000,000 to military assistance, and $70,000,000 to economic aid, a total of $125,000,000 as President Johnson had asked.

The armed services committee released a copy of the statement McNamara presented to it in closed session.

EQUAL SOVEREIGNTY

Canada Suddenly Emerges In American Awareness

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

WASHINGTON—While two distinguished diplomats try to analyze, codify and rationalize the unique interdependence of Canada and the United States, its primary fact has been established already and its spirit has improved almost beyond belief.

The primary fact was never set down as clearly as in the recent report of the 25th American Assembly, an influential non-partisan organization of representative thinkers whose opinions, in this field, fully represent the policy of the present United States government.

"There are many international relations," says the assembly, "but no such relationship" as that prevailing between the nations of North America. Hence "it is profoundly important to every aspect and problem in the relationship... that the two countries deliberately accept the independent existence of each other and their equal sovereignty."

Every U.S. Act

Then comes this paragraph in which Americans assert, a doctrine long asserted by Canadians but seldom heard by their neighbors:

"The disparities of power between the two nations are such that awareness of these principles (of unquestioned sovereignty) must pervade every American policy, every American act and every American attitude toward Canada. We affirm this to be the bedrock premise on which the relationship stands.

"Our ability to be hopeful about the problems we face rests on our confidence that this fact of life is today a premise of American life itself, not merely a policy of United States diplomacy."

No one who has been in Washington this spring can doubt that the American government fully accepts Canada's "equal sovereignty" despite its inferiority of power.

To be sure, this principle has always been accepted theoretically in official documents and public rhetoric. But now it has become, as the American Assembly says, a practical, major and daily concern of an American government distracted by countless other concerns overseas.

A's Finley Barking up Wrong Tree?

Times News Services

Charley Finley, who is busy suing Kansas City these days, ought to start his legal beagles working on an indictment against an ex-employee on hit-and-run charges.

Finley may not have had time to notice but his ball club ran into an old friend in Baltimore Tuesday night and the collision was devastating—for the Athletics.

Norm Siebern, who used to do his stuff in Finley gold and green, saw his ex-mates for the first time and he gave them plenty to tell the old boss about.

The rangy first baseman stroked three hits, the last one a game-winning homer in the 10th inning, as the Orioles nipped the Athletics 3-2. His first-inning single drove in another run and he scored the Orioles' other marker on Boog Powell's double after walking in the eighth.

"NEXT CASE"

The three hits ran Siebern's average to .336. Jim Gentile, the man Finley got for Siebern, went 1-for-4 for Kansas City, dropping his average to .267. As they say in court, "Next case."

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston Red Sox pushed across four runs in a weird ninth inning to nip Los Angeles Angels 4-3. Chicago White Sox outlasted Cleveland Indians 6-5. Detroit Tigers topped Washington Senators 5-2 and Minnesota Twins went 13 innings before whipping New York Yankees 7-2.

Tear up that obituary on Warren Spahn because there's a lot of life in the old geezer yet.

Six days ago when he was shellacked by the Mets, everyone seemed ready to bury the 43-year-old miracle man of Milwaukee and Spahn confessed he was greatly concerned himself.

"Darn right I was worried," he admitted a gain Tuesday night. "You always worry until you prove yourself."

Imagine a 350-game winner having to prove himself? Spahn went out and did it again Tuesday night, even to his own satisfaction, when he stopped Cincinnati Reds on six hits for a 4-2 victory that boosted the Braves into a tie for fourth place.

"MORE LIKE IT" "That's more like it," he exclaimed, obviously still remembering how the Mets kayomed him in the fifth inning of his last start and went on to a lopsided 12-4 rout last Thursday.

"Every ball the Reds hit off me was where I wanted that pitch to be," said the veteran southpaw. "The only mistake I feel I made was giving (Vada) Pinson a ball he could pull in the seventh."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Giants bounced back into first place with a 3-0 victory over the Phillies, the Dodgers squeaked by the Mets, 6-4, the Cubs clipped the Cardinals, 7-4, and the Colts snapped a string of 25 consecutive scoreless innings with a 3-1 triumph over the Pirates.

AT LAUNCHING

Elise Didn't Cheer

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP)—The 12-metre yacht American Eagle, built at a cost of $250,000 for the sole purpose of winning the America's Cup, was launched Tuesday.

Flags of every hue fluttered from the rigging above her gleaming white hull. A cheer went up, but six-year-old Elise du Pont, her face and dress splattered with champagne, burst into tears.

Elise dropped the bottle on her first swing at the bow of the 68-foot yacht. Her grandmother, Mrs. Pierre du Pont of Wilmington, Del., picked it up and helped her swing again, but the bottle refused to break.

Then Pierre du Pont, head of the 41-member syndicate that is financing the Eagle, lent a hand and the bottle broke with a great splash all over Elise.

Beneath the mast is the same silver dollar that the yacht Columbia bore when it beat the British yacht Scythia in the 1958 America's Cup races.

In Portsmouth, England, meanwhile, shipyard workers swarmed over Britain's America's Cup contenders, Sovereign and Kurrewa V, and the designer of Kurrewa was scheduled to go aboard to inspect her with a view to possible slight modifications.

Kurrewa was slipped into a local boatyard after a run earlier in the day to try out a new sail. The set she wore during her trials over the weekend caused unnecessary drag.

David Boy, who designed the Australian-financed yacht, was expected to go aboard her for an inspection which, sources said, might lead to a slight modification to her hull.

Sovereign was on a slipway on the neighboring Hamble River, where repairs have been underway since she berthed Saturday after running aground on a sunken steel barge during a race with Kurrewa. She will remain there until Thursday night when the deep scores she suffered to her keel are repaired.

The unsuccessful 1958 America's Cup challenger, Scythia, also was undergoing a period of make-do and mend. Her crew was taking the opportunity to thoroughly clean out and tidy up the yacht—sailed almost every day since March and used as a trial horse in last weekend's races.

Experts said Kurrewa's sailmakers must endeavor to match the Bruce Banks spinners carried by Sovereign if she is not to suffer in the remaining trials to find a British challenger for the America's Cup.

Darlene Hard Teaching Pro

MONTREY, Calif. (AP) — Darlene Hard, No. 1 ranked woman tennis player in the United States, has turned pro to teach the game until she marries next September.

'THIS GAME SHOULD BE PLAYED FOR FUN'

Enlarge Hole 'To Take the

By OSCAR FRALEY
HOUSTON, Texas (UPI) — Gene Sarazen took a mighty swing for the benefit of the "weekend" golfer today when he suggested that the hole be enlarged "to take the ulcers out of golf."

"They talk about speeding up the game and then they don't do anything about it," said the knickered fairway immortal. "On top of that, this game should be played for fun and trying to get the larger ball into that 4½-inch hole is grim business."

Sarazen suggested that the hole should be widened an inch.

The squire of Germantown, N.Y., made these observations as he supervised the filming of a head-and-head match between Sammy Snead and Ben Hogan for a television series. Hogan, beaten every time by Snead in their three head and head matches across the years, finally crashed through with a three-under-par 69 against Snead's par 72 at Houston Country Club.

It was supposed to be a "closed" match with only a hired "crowd" of 50 on hand. But the word leaked out and more than 3,000 crashed the gate to watch the Snead-Hogan battle.

"It was one of the greatest matches you could ever see," Sarazen glowed. "It will be the best one of 11 matches we'll film this year in Canada, Venezuela, Trin-dad, Ireland, England, Denmark, Luxembourg, Monaco, Italy and Germany."

Hogan and Snead both found the average 10-minute wait between shots very tiring.

"It breaks down your concentration," lamented Hogan, who only managed to hit every fairway and then reached every green in regulation.

"My irons were awful," moaned Snead, who in typical fashion showed up for the match with a new set of irons he had never played. "But waiting for those cameras really gets you."

Shooting such a show is really a production. There's a director, and assistant director, an announcer, seven cameras and a standing 38-man crew plus hired "crowd" extras, local electricians, carpenters and teamsters and even a "green man" from Hollywood whose job is to camouflage the camera trucks with local greenery

AT CAHA PARLEY

Bunny Offers Math Lesson

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—Today the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association tidies up its plans for a national team.

It's also the day when J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, is expected to explain his mathematics which resulted in Canada being relegated to fourth and not third place in the 1964 Olympics.

Tonight, delegates and guests to the 50th annual meeting of the CAHA will put aside their differences to attend a jubilee banquet, Prime Minister Pearson is to be guest speaker.

Tuesday's sessions were devoted to amending some of the association's regulations and rules and to presentation of financial and other reports.

A major change was the decision to allow Spokane (Wash.) Jets and Warroad (Minn.) Lakers to compete for the Allan Cup, symbol of the Canadian senior hockey championship.

WANT RULE CHANGE
Delegates also made another bid to force National Hockey League-sponsored teams playing in the CAHA ranks to follow the same iceing-the-puck rule as other amateur teams.

A motion was passed to have all teams follow the rule that play stops when their sponsored clubs follow the NHL rule that a defending player must touch the puck before the whistle is blown.

A similar resolution has been passed at annual meetings for the last four years. Each time the NHL has vetoed any change during meetings of the joint rules committee.

Delegates also heard some bad news from secretary-manager Gordon Jukes.

Jukes said in his financial report the CAHA expects a $60,000 drop in gross revenue from the 1964 Memorial Cup playoffs.

SERIES WAS TURKEY
The Toronto-Edmonton final was a financial turkey as was a playoff round-robin featuring the Ottawa district and the Montreal Metropolitan League.

Operations in the year ending Dec. 31, 1963, resulted in a net loss of $7,228 and the picture probably would be blacker in the 1964 report.

Jukes also said he was concerned about the decrease in the numbers of older boys playing hockey.

While registration of players soared to 187,030 last season, most of them were concentrated in the younger divisions—bantam and midget.

And make certain the flora stays green during the two days of shooting.

There's a sound man, an assistant sound man, four advance men who line up hotels, check courses, hire cars, extras, marshals, caddies, runners and drivers. And the local problems can be a headache. Like in Banff, where they played through a hailstorm and Indians were hired to sweep the greens.

Court Matters Delay Referee's Libel Trial

TORONTO (CP)—Trial of a libel and slander suit by Eddie Powers, former National Hockey League referee, against Montreal Canadiens coach Hector Toe Blake and the Canadiens club was postponed indefinitely today.

Mr. Justice W. D. Parker of the Ontario Supreme Court, assigned to hear the Powers suit, originally planned to start the trial Tuesday or today but other court business forced a postponement.

The suit results from a statement attributed to Blake following a hockey game Jan. 31, 1963, in which Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Canadiens 6-3. Powers, 46, resigned from the NHL refereeing staff two weeks later.

Also sued for libel are the newspaper Montreal-Matin and its sports editor, Jacques Beauchamp, and reporters Jean-Paul Sarault and Jean-Pierre Sanché.

Mr. Justice W. D. Parker of the Ontario Supreme Court, assigned to hear the Powers suit, originally planned to start the trial Tuesday or today but other court business forced a postponement.

The suit results from a statement attributed to Blake following a hockey game Jan. 31, 1963, in which Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Canadiens 6-3. Powers, 46, resigned from the NHL refereeing staff two weeks later.

Also sued for libel are the newspaper Montreal-Matin and its sports editor, Jacques Beauchamp, and reporters Jean-Paul Sarault and Jean-Pierre Sanché.

Victoria Team Claims Coast Bowling Crown

COURTENAY—A seven-man team from Victoria captured the men's team championship last weekend in the Pacific Coast Fivepin Bowling Association tournament.

Cy Wallis, Bill and Harry

Cool, Fred Hickey, Bud Brock and Norm and Jack Goldie finished the two-day tourney with a total of 9,143 points, 300 better than runner-up North Shore.

Harry Cool was high point man of the tourney, rolling 1,908 for an eight-game block.

The team was managed by Harry Smith and coached by Ron Jago.

The Victoria women's team placed third in the six-team competition, totalling 7,032 points. May Wallis collected an individual third with 1,885 points.

The Victoria mixed team placed fourth.

Computers Fed Steady Diet of Examination Marks to Guarantee Fairness

By TOM CLARIDGE
Presses at the Queen's Printer here are grinding out some 80,000 papers that next month will challenge the best brains of the province's high school graduation classes.

But B.C.'s 1964 departmental examinations are only one element in a complex system of checks and balances that education officials feel has made the province's university entrance system almost perfectly fair.

The program is supervised by Harry Evans, education department registrar, who modestly proclaims it "one of Canada's best."

He said in an interview Tuesday it is really impossible to say which of the 10 provinces has the best or fairest exam system since there is no regular exchange of information on current tactics.

But the list of provisions guaranteed to protect the B.C. student against a harsh examiner or an ill-tempered marker is long and impressive.
A first step toward guaranteeing fairness of the papers themselves was taken months ago when the department selected the exam-setters.

Contrary to general belief, Mr. Evans said, "the exams aren't set by professors in ivory towers who have little knowledge of the curriculum."
In fact, few of our university entrance papers are set by university personnel. We try instead to find teachers and principals who are thoroughly familiar with the curriculum and possibly are still teaching the subject.

To this end we are perhaps sacrificing a security aspect in favor of an examination that is valid in terms of curriculum.
The 619 students whose marks were raised by the committee last year completed their courses by writing 1962 supplemental.

Ground work for the 1964 marking is already being set by 30 Victoria University students hard at work in two committee rooms and the sergeant-at-arms office in the Legislative Buildings.
They're busy working out individual "case histories" of the exam candidates and collecting fees of up to $7 for the privilege of writing.

Staff of 510
Next month the nerve centre for the marking operation will move to a Victoria high school, where a staff of 510, including 80 university students, will start work on some 80,000 papers. Most of the markers are seasoned high school teachers from outside Victoria.
The operation will probably cost about $225,000, but Mr. Evans says the figure has been held down by a combination of automation and job re-assignment.
While use of the computers has helped cut costs, so has greater use of the university students in administrative and clerical matters.

Arthur Mayse

I think it will take much more than a 'yea' from a parliament with a gun at its head to convince great masses of Canadians that Mike Pearson's brave new banner is an acceptable symbol for our confederation of provinces.

The flag issue calls for a polling, not of MPs with an understandable desire to retain seat and salary, but of the voters who sent them to Ottawa.

Until this is done, and the count complete from Newfoundland to British Columbia, the Canadian red ensign should share official place on our flagstaffs with the Union Jack.

Quebec has been muttering her 'I will remember' for 300 years. Let her possess herself in such patience as she can muster until the machinery for a general plebiscite is set up.

We are not choosing the winning poster for a school fair, but settling an issue so profound in its implications that it must effect the course of our history.

In any such general vote, the main clash would come between two groups whose convictions allow little if any leeway for compromise.

There is Quebec, hysterically opposed to any reminder of Britain.

In the opposing camp are the many who would vote to retain the Canadian red ensign, either in its present form or with a maple leaf spray substituted for the Dominion coat-of-arms.

And, in numbers which might well swing the vote, we have those who are willing to give Mr. Pearson a free hand, "Canada," they tell us mildly, "ought to have a distinctive flag of her own."

To these—the casual, the careless or the politically naïve—I think a warning is overdue.

On none of the maple leaf variations which Mr. Pearson

Checked Again

As an added protection, all the exams are checked by a second teacher before they are printed.

The registrar said that as a general rule no more than one exam is set by one person, and that the only exam-setters called back from year to year are those whose tests are considered fair ones.

Protection against the in-temperate marker range all the way from a "belt system" to an appeal board with sweeping powers of review.

Under the "belt system," no one marker does all of one paper. Instead, he marks a single question or section of questions and passes the paper on to other markers.

"By the time the paper is fully marked it may have gone through as many as 31 hands," Mr. Evans said.

Fed to Computers

Before the marks become final they are fed into two complex computers designed to ferret out exams that are too hard—or too easy.

At this point the examiners bring into their calculations students who may avoid departmental exams in a given subject by maintaining an average of at least 60 per cent while attending an "accredited" school.

Mr. Evans said accreditation introduced in 1938, is based on such factors as staff continuity, inspectors' reports and students' performance in departmental exams.

Education Minister Peterson acknowledges the accreditation system has its critics but he says university officials have been won over to it as fair and relatively "fail-safe."

1,500 Candidates

Aside from students attending non-accredited schools and those not recommended by accredited institutions, the 1964 departmental exams will be written by some 1,500 candidates for government scholarships.

Under a university scholarship program set up in 1958, the province pays half the tuition of all first-class honor students (80 per cent and up) and one third the tuition of the top 2,500 second-class honor students.

For Grade 12 (university entrance) and 13 students to qualify for the scholarships they must write the departmental exams.

Mr. Evans said that by feeding the marks of both the recommended students and the departmental exam writers into the computer a "scaling curve" can be obtained which will compensate for too-hard or too-easy papers.

Bonus System

He said practice in all provinces once was to "scale" results simply by adding—or subtracting—a few marks from all papers, or by giving a pass mark to those who failed by only five or 10 marks.

"The problem was that in some cases bonuses altered ranking and in others the bonuses produced marks of 100 for imperfect papers."

"Our scaling avoids any changes in ranking and prevents anyone from getting 100 through a bonus."

The "appeal board" is an adjudication committee of the provincial board of examiners empowered to revise upwards the marks of a student on grounds of overall standing, previous record or health at the time of writing.

The committee's work was greatly expanded last year with the discontinuation of August supplementary exams for Grade 12 students.

MOTHER STILL ON HOSPITAL CRITICAL LIST

Still in critical condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital is Mrs. Sylvia Jean Bridges, struck by a car last Thursday.

Mrs. Bridges, of 3333 Glasgow, was walking with her five-year-old son, Stephen, on Cloverdale near Quadra when she was hit by a car driven by a 17-year-old girl.

The boy was uninjured but Mrs. Bridges received head injuries.

Holiday Death Toll Reaches 3

Brentwood Woman Third Victim

The death toll in Greater Victoria at the holiday weekend has risen to three with the death of Mrs. Ida Sam, 41, of Brentwood Bay.

Earlier, traffic accidents had claimed the lives of Terri Ann Verpe, 3, of 2534 Graham, and Della Mae Hoegl, 19, of 3016 Donald.

Mrs. Sam was injured when a car driven by her husband, Moses Sam, went out of control as they travelled north on Interurban Road about 3 p.m. Monday.

The car left the road and dropped 10 feet into a ditch, coming to rest on its side. Two other passengers in the vehicle, Ricky Sam, 9, and Leonard Paul, 38, both of Brentwood, were discharged from hospital after treatment.

NOT ANNOUNCED

Mrs. Sam was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital by Saanich fire department ambulance. She died shortly after noon Tuesday but her death was not announced until late afternoon.

No decision has yet been made on an inquest into Mrs. Sam's death.

An inquest was being held today into the death of Terri Ann Verpe.

At 10 a.m. Thursday an inquest will be held at McCall Bros. into the death of Miss Hoegl.

Prank Stirs Possibility Of Farm Zoo

Victoria's chance to start a "farmyard zoo" is staring it in the face so long as no one comes forward to claim the lamb and calf that were found loose Sunday in Beacon Hill Park.

But—if no owner shows up—there will still be a question of location to settle.

The animals are being kept in the park's animal pen along with popular workhorses "Queenie" and apparently they are attracting considerable attention from visitors to the park.

Several parks department employees have frequently advocated creation of a domestic animal zoo in the park's pen but administrator W. H. Warren has consistently opposed the idea.

Parks committee chairman Ald. M. H. Mooney however has openly advocated creation of a children's zoo and has even appealed to service clubs to sponsor such a project in one of the parks—but he has left open the specific location.

Mayor R. B. Wilson, queried on the point today said he thought the more rural atmosphere of Elk or Beaver Lake parks would be "more suitable than Beacon Hill" for such a project.

Long Wait for Funds Faces Federal Bodies

IT WAS OPEN AND SHUT CASE of survival of the fittest as far as Trixie is concerned. But she did need help of master Vic Sinclair to subdue vicious Pacific Lancet. (Don Ryan photo.)

Old Dog's New Trick Lands Vicious Fish

Trixie, a nine-year-old black and white Border Collie-type mongrel, went fishing on Monday and came up with a rare museum piece.

For what Trixie took to be a playful salmon turned out to be a vicious Pacific Lancet with a row of sharp, one-inch-long teeth.

And when Trixie's master, Vic Sinclair, of 14 Alma Place, speared the fish on to the beach it measured four feet one inch from head to tail.

The "catch" was made shortly after dawn while Vic and his wife Vi were out clam fishing at Esquimalt Lagoon.

Said Vic's brother, John Bennett, 24: Trixie suddenly darted into the water and pounced on this thing.

"The next minute all hell was let loose and the water literally bubbled. Vic dashed over and speared it with a stick."

During the fight, which lasted several minutes, Trixie was bitten three times on the legs. But nothing serious. Said Dr. Cliff Carl, Provincial Museum director: "This is a very vicious fish. In addition to the long flat teeth on the jaw it has a row along the top of the mouth."

"It is a relatively rare specimen and not found very often in shallow waters."

The last Lancet to be caught was at Oyster Bay in 1958. They usually live at around 400 fathoms.

As they already have a specimen the museum will not take up Vic's offer.

So now he has a "whopper" on his hands that didn't get away. Meanwhile, Trixie is all at sea wondering where that salmon got those teeth.

Mental Clinic Site Homes Rented on Monthly Basis

Plans for a new mental health clinic near Royal Jubilee Hospital are going ahead on schedule, provincial officials said today.

They said fears expressed at a meeting of the Metro Victoria Health Board Tuesday night that the project has been delayed were unfounded.

Board member Joseph Casey, a Saanich councillor, said homes the government had purchased for demolition "have now been rented again."

'Last to Be Paid' Unless Ottawa Acts

If the Alberni disaster fund fails to get $180,000 it needs to pay for all uninsured damage from the March 28 tidal waves, the major sufferers will be two federal government agencies.

Fund treasurer Ray Newman said today that in addition to $1,507,000 in uninsured damage to residential properties assessed by a team of private adjusters, bills have come in for between $60,000 and $70,000 from the federal agencies.

He said the disaster committee has decided that unless the federal government comes through with aid beyond the $250,000 it has given so far, the agencies' bills "will be the last to be paid."

"That's for sure."

HARBOR BOARD BID
Mr. Newman said one bill from the Port Alberni Harbor Commission was for $55,000. Smaller amounts are being sought by the federal transport department.

He said total government grants and private donations have reached $1,370,000. The provincial government has given $750,000 of the total.

Some $1,500 received Tuesday boosted the total private donations to $370,000, he said, "but donations have almost stopped."

"The public appears to be our only source—and they have done a terrific job."

"But I'm afraid we will be short unless more comes."

Disaster relief committee chairman Ed Benson Tuesday wrote two other funds for more money—the Vancouver Foundation holding $600,000 left over from Fraser River flood aid in 1948 and the Red River disaster fund with $2,000,000 from Winnipeg's 1950 flood.

Mr. Newman said an extra $180,000 would take care of the assessed damage caused by tidal waves March 27.

Private appraisers set the damage at $1,507,000.

Mr. Newman said Alberni residents hope their MP, Tom Bennett, will try again to get more aid from the federal government.

Meanwhile, Premier W. A. C. Bennett said he still expects more from Ottawa.

Conciliation Report Due In IWA Fight

Conciliation recommendations in the B.C. logging industry contract dispute are being drawn up and will be presented this week, conciliation officer E. P. Fisher said today.

Mr. Fisher's report will follow his talks with the IWA and management representatives, recently concluded in Vancouver.

The recommendations will affect about 25,000 coast area forest workers if accepted by both sides.

They have been demanding 40 cents per hour wage increases, with tradesmen and improvers asking 30 cents above that.

Q. Where is the world's largest buffalo herd located? The Americans claim they have the largest. D.K.

A. While the Americans may have the largest single herd, 800 animals, located in Yellowstone Park, Canada has the greater total number of buffalo, 15,000, compared with 10,000 south of the border.

Q. How many banks have there been since Confederation? How many have failed or merged? How many are still in operation? F.W.

A. Since Confederation, 77 bank charters have been issued. Some were allowed to lapse without being used. Of the remainder, 26 have failed, 38 have merged and 8 are still in operation. Since 1823 there have been 753 charters issued in Canada.

Topics of the Day

A five-year-old boy is in fairly good condition after receiving head injuries when he ran in front of a car on Burnside Tuesday afternoon.

Donald Mills, 824 Craigflower, was struck by a car driven by a 17-year-old boy. Saanich police said. He ran out from behind a parked vehicle.

The boy is detained at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Dr. Charles B. Brink, dean of the school of social work at the University of Washington, will speak Thursday on "Current trends in social work education" at a dinner meeting of the Vancouver Island branch of the B.C. Association of Social Workers. Meeting will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the Tally-Ho Travelodge. Election of officers will follow.

The Oak Bay Junior High School choir, dance group and school band will present a concert at the annual PTA meeting, Monday at 7:45 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Proficiency badges have been awarded to five cubs and one sea scout of the First, Sixth and Tenth Garry Oak groups. Cubs Bob Farmer, Stanley Ritz and David Van Essen of the Sixth group were awarded a religion and life badge and Stanley Ritz a guide badge. Mark Watts of the Tenth group was awarded an athletic badge, and sea scout, Bodo de Lange Boom of the First group, was presented with his gold cord.

Eight concerts are lined up weekend afternoons in Beacon Hill Park's Cameron Memorial Bandshell, city parks officials said today. They include:

May 24, Mt. Douglas High School band; May 30, Surrey Schools band; May 31, Oak Bay High School band; June 7, Rotary Boys' Choir; June 14, S. J. Willis Junior High School band; June 21, Colquhoun Junior High School band; June 27, RCMP Band; June 28, Rotary Boys' Choir.

All will start at 3 p.m. except the RCMP Band performance which will begin at 7:30 p.m.

A man with a police record going back to 1930 asked the magistrate Tuesday "as a favor" to increase his sentence.

Magistrate William Ostler obliged and sent Roy Lindley to the penitentiary for two years instead of to jail for 18 months.

Lindley, who was released from jail three weeks ago, had pleaded guilty to being in possession of a $270 television set stolen from a downtown store.

Lindley told Magistrate Ostler that when he got out of jail he was "sober and had good intentions" but that it "was pretty hard with my age and my record" to get a job. He also blamed his problems on "demon liquor."

A cheque for $500 was handed to Greater Victoria Conquer Cancer Campaign by the Canadian Legion Trafalgar branch Pacific No. 42 on Tuesday.

Tonight the Fraternal Order of Eagles will hand over a cheque for $350.

Ernie Locke, chairman of the Eagles' cancer committee, will present the cheque to cancer campaign treasurer Ken Patton at the Eagles' Hall, 751 View.

Victoria "Y" Swim Club is holding a meeting tonight at 8 in the YMCA for parents of swim club members.

The Irish-Canadian Club will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grier, 4834 Townsend Drive. Further information may be obtained by phoning GR 9-1768.

The Royal Canadian Air Force Association will hold its monthly cash bingo at 7:45 p.m. Saturday at 1212 Quadra Street.

'RIFLE IN ONE HAND'

Cuba Forces Alerted For Commando Raids

HAVANA (Reuters)—The Cuban armed forces were in a state of general alert today, anniversary of the country's independence from Spain and the day on which anti-Castro forces had threatened commando raids and sabotage.

The government-controlled press warned that any "agents of the CIA (U.S. Central Intelligence Agency) discovered in Cuba would be crushed."

There has been no announcement about the alert but it was reliably learned troops have been recalled to barracks, all leaves cancelled and the armed forces put on a basis of general alert.

Havana itself remained calm and there was no sign police and militia in the city had been reinforced.

The newspaper Hoy, organ of the Communist party, said in an editorial the best way on responding to "imperialist attacks" was to "re-double our work" while at the same time keeping "rifle in one hand."

It denounced members of exile action groups as "agents of the Central Intelligence Agency" and called on the people "to leave no trace of them" if they appear in Cuba.

Havana radio, monitored in Miami, said today all workers in Oriente province were being mobilized "for the defence of the country and the defence of production."

The broadcast said top military and political leaders in the province conferred Tuesday in Santiago de Cuba.

(A report by Cuban exile forces in Miami Tuesday claimed anti-Castro raiders had blown up six bridges in Cuba. The raiders were led by Manuel Artime, leader of the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion in April, 1961, the sources said.

(The exiles, connected with Artime's Revolutionary Recovery Movement, said the leader would issue a communique about the operation shortly from "somewhere in Central America.") However, the report caused confusion among spokesmen for the exile group in Miami. Edgar Supo, chief press officer of the group, said "we know nothing about this."

In still another report Manuel Ray, another exile leader, was said to be on his way to Cuba with trained saboteurs and infiltrators.

In Havana, meanwhile, Western newspaper men who had planned to make trips into the interior were requested to postpone their visit by the foreign ministry.

Cuban newspapers and radio and television stations did not carry the Miami reports of exile activity.

But Industries Minister Ernesto Guevara said in a speech Sunday that further raids by exile groups could be expected because "the United States is behind them."

Rumors circulated freely in Havana about developments outside the city, particularly in Oriente province where Premier Fidel Castro had his headquarters as leader of the revolutionary movement that brought about the overthrow of President Fulgencio Batista in 1959.

Mike's Flag Would Flunk Art Students

TORONTO (CP)—Heads of two art schools here say the maple leaf design being suggested by Prime Minister Pearson for a new Canadian flag would not be acceptable to their students.

Sidney Watson, principal of the Ontario College of Art, said if a student submitted this design with his application to enter the college he would not be admitted. He said the design is "dreadful."

Charles Goldhammer, head of the art department at Central Technical School, said he would fail a student responsible for such a poor design.

Mr. Goldhammer said, however, Mr. Pearson has the right idea "to have the three maple leaves from the old flag (Red Ensign) included in the new one."

Abstract artist Harold Town said the prime minister's design would be a good thing to wrap the garbage in.

"The design is monstrously pedestrian," he said.

Alan Jarvis, editor of Canadian Art Magazine, and Doris McCarthy, president of the Ontario Society of Artists, both said they like the basic concept of the suggested design.

But Mr. Jarvis thinks the maple leaves look "wispily" and need strengthening and Miss McCarthy would rather have a single maple leaf instead of the suggested three.

'Passably Pleased'

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Lesage of Quebec said today the flag project put forward by Prime Minister Pearson pleased him "passably."

He told reporters following a cabinet meeting he likes the colors—red, white and blue—because they are the same as those of the French and British flags.

The idea of two vertical blue stripes on either side of the flag, suggesting a nation stretching from sea to sea, also "has merit."

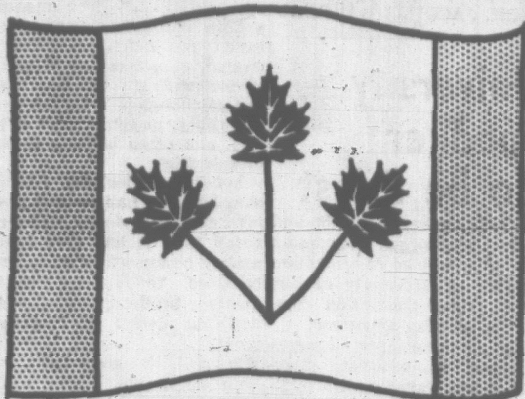

No Decision Yet—Dief

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker says the government's plan to adopt a Canadian flag by a majority vote in Parliament is a denial of "every principle that has ever existed in reference to those emblems that mean so much to all of us."

"The Red Ensign is Canada's flag," he told radio reporters Tuesday. "The fact that we have a flag does not deny sometime in the future changes to meet changing conditions."

He said the flag can be changed "when the people as a whole favor a change."

Mr. Diefenbaker said no decision has been made by his party whether to place before the Commons Monday a motion of non-confidence based on the flag issue—in response to a challenge to do so by Prime Minister Pearson.

PLEBISCITE URGED

Legion Erupts In Flag Blast

WINNIPEG (CP)—Opposition to a maple leaf design for a Canadian flag, proposed by the federal cabinet, erupted today on the floor of the Royal Canadian Legion convention.

Prime Minister Pearson said in Ottawa Tuesday his cabinet has decided to replace the Red Ensign with a flag designed with maple leaves and plans to choose Thursday the specific design it will place before Parliament.

At the convention of Legionnaires, an Ontario resolution called on the Legion to recognize only the Red Ensign, and another from the Legion's Pacific Command called for a national plebiscite to decide the issue.

The chair ruled the two resolutions from the floor will be dealt with later.

A spokesman for the Pacific Command rose at the beginning of today's session and said the group is sending a telegram to Mr. Pearson protesting his choice of flags.

CALLS VOTE FARCE

The delegate read the telegram to the convention. It said that the free parliamentary vote on the flag promised by Mr. Pearson is a farce.

The telegram said Mr. Pearson is enforcing his brand of nationalism to maintain his reputation as an international diplomat.

Tuesday night the Legion for the third time endorsed the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag.

In a shouted voice vote, the 1,500 delegates gave unanimous approval to a resolution favoring the Red Ensign.

In a parallel move, the convention also voted to send telegrams to every member of the House of Commons outlining the stand.

Both moves came at the tail end of the Tuesday convention session. Only hours before in Ottawa, Prime Minister Pearson disclosed the cabinet had decided on a maple leaf design for the flag.

BRINGS REBUKE

The disclosure brought a rebuke from the Legion president, Judge C. C. Sparling, who read The Canadian Press story of the cabinet decision to delegates.

He said he was "bitterly disappointed" in the move and said the prime minister should have waited until the Legion had decided the matter before making a binding decision.

Judge Sparling said in the past federal governments had listened to the Legion with respect and attention. "In this case it is not so."

"I do not know what the reason is for the haste and priority," he said.

Judge Sparling said he hoped that before the convention ends delegates would ask for a national plebiscite on the flag issue.

Gov't Troops Fall Back Again

VIENTIANE (AP)—The last positions held by neutralist forces in the Plaine des Jarres region have fallen to the Communists, Premier Souvanna Phouma announced today.

Neutralist Gen. Kong Le abandoned his emergency command post and withdrew further southwest of the plain in the face of continuing Communist pressure, a spokesman for Souvanna said.

(U.S. State Secretary Rusk urged neutralist forces to the United Nations, from a European trip because of the deepening crisis in Southeast Asia.)

A government statement said "following massive attacks, prepared well in advance launched by the Lao-Viet (Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese) troops against our (neutralist) position in the Plaine des Jarres and Muong Phan, the last neutralist positions existing on the plateau of Xieng Khouang have fallen."

MAJOR SPEECH to UN Security Council will be delivered Thursday by chief U.S. delegate Adlai Stevenson. Stevenson has cut short a tour of Europe to speak on what U.S. spokesmen describe as "the deteriorating situation in Southeast Asia."

ORIGINAL HEADQUARTERS

Muon Phan, perched on the western edge of the plain, was Kong Le's original headquarters site which the Communists took Monday after a weekend offensive.

The statement did not pinpoint additional neutralist positions that have fallen. Earlier it was reported that the neutralists were clinging to several positions on the fringes of the plain, including Muong Kheung, the headquarters for Kong Le's armored regiment some 20 miles northwest of Muong Phan.

Kong Le's withdrawal—his second in two days—was not reported caused by a fresh attack although two Communist battalions, roughly 800 men, were said to be close behind. It appeared the neutralist general was seeking to avoid a showdown battle.

After the withdrawal from Muong Phan, Kong Le set up a new command post in a hill-top position at Ban Khong, four miles southwest of Muong Phan. Western observers had believed the position would be defended.

YEAR-LONG DRIVE

Loss of the plain—completing a campaign the Pathet Lao started more than a year ago to squeeze Kong Le out of the region the neutralists and Reds once shared—brought a fresh warning from Premier Souvanna that the Pathet Lao leaders "alone must bear the responsibility for this aggression and the resulting consequences."

He called it "a shameful lie to pretend that the Neo Lao Haksat (Pathet Lao) has not taken part in the attacks."

He was referring to Pathet Lao denials of any offensive. The Reds claim dissident neutralists are the source of Kong Le's present troubles.

The Communists have been accusing Souvanna of working under rightwing pressure since the April 19 rightwing coup in Vientiane. The coup leaders still control this administrative capital, and Souvanna agreed to a neutralist-right-wing merger which the Pathet Lao rejected.

Foreign military observers waited to see if the Pathet Lao would push farther west and south, toward the border of Thailand.

FOR VIET NAM

U.S. Hikes Asian Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives foreign affairs committee quickly and unanimously approved today an added $125,000,000 in military and economic aid for South Viet Nam's struggle against communism.

Even as it acted, Defense Secretary McNamara went before the armed services committee, and said American soldiers in South Viet Nam "are receiving the best equipment available for the unique task at hand."

There have been charges that use of obsolete planes had caused the deaths of two American flyers.

McNamara and other top officials presented the case for stepped-up aid to South Viet Nam to the foreign affairs group Tuesday. The committee voted today to add $55,000,000 to military assistance, and $70,000,000 to economic aid, a total of $125,000,000 as President Johnson had asked.

The armed services committee released a copy of the statement McNamara presented to it in closed session.

EQUAL SOVEREIGNTY

Canada Suddenly Emerges In American Awareness

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

WASHINGTON—While two distinguished diplomats try to analyze, codify and rationalize the unique interdependence of Canada and the United States, its primary fact has been established already and its spirit has improved almost beyond belief.

The primary fact was never set down as clearly as in the recent report of the 25th American Assembly, an influential non-partisan organization of representative thinkers whose opinions, in this field, fully represent the policy of the present United States government.

"There are many international relations," says the assembly, "but no such relationship" as that prevailing between the nations of North America. Hence "it is profoundly important to every aspect and problem in the relationship... that the two countries deliberately accept the independent existence of each other and their equal sovereignty."

Every U.S. Act

Then comes this paragraph in which Americans assert a doctrine long asserted by Canadians but seldom heard by their neighbors: "The disparities of power between the two nations are such that awareness of these principles (of unquestioned sovereignty) must pervade every American policy, every American act and every American attitude toward Canada. We affirm this to be the bedrock premise on which the relationship stands.

"Our ability to be hopeful about the problems we face rests on our confidence that this fact of life is today a premise of American life itself, not merely a policy of United States diplomacy."

No one who has been in Washington this spring can doubt that the American government fully accepts Canada's "equal sovereignty" despite its inferiority of power.

To be sure, this principle has always been accepted theoretically in official documents and public rhetoric, but now it has become, as the American Assembly says, a practical, major and daily concern of an American government distracted by countless other concerns overseas.

Slayer Still Aboard 'Hell Ship'?

HONOLULU (UPI)—A prime suspect in the axe-slashing of a freighter captain was hospitalized today following a suicide attempt—but the vessel's radio-man was convinced the slayer still is among the near-mutinous crew aboard the "hell ship."

And while the mystery of the freighter Pomona grew with the suspense of an adventure novel, authorities from several countries still were not sure which of them should seek the solution.

The victim of the slaying was Capt. Jacob Natvig, 51, of Norway.

He was hacked to death with a fire axe in his cabin last Friday, while the vessel was en route from Los Angeles to Formosa.

The man described as a prime suspect is Chief Steward Anker Baardsen, 42, of Christiansen, Norway. Authorities said he slashed his wrists with a piece of broken slate.

Baardsen had been drinking with the skipper shortly before the slaying, and customs officials found a blood-splattered shirt in the chief steward's cabin.

"I want to take my life because everybody is against me," Baardsen told Alf Olsen, first mate and acting skipper of the ship. Olsen had previously named Baardsen as a prime suspect—but emphasized that he was not thoroughly convinced the chief steward was the killer.

Nelsi R. Almejun, an Argentine and the Pomona's radio-man, said he believed the slayer was still aboard the vessel.

Olsen and Almejun were the only two members of the 25-man crew allowed ashore.

Almejun told authorities he had defended Baardsen in the presence of other officers and crewmen and that someone—he believed the killer—had later tampered with the lock on his cabin door.

He said the slain captain had been drunk almost every day since the vessel left California and that many of the crewmen were "disorderly and had no respect for authority."

Olsen, one of the seven Norwegian crewmen who have refused to sail further on the ship, confirmed that there had been unrest and near violence aboard the Pomona.

The chief mate said that at one point several members of the crew pulled knives on the officers and threatened them.

He explained that when the seamen had signed aboard, they were given the impression that they would work six months in coastal trade along the Brazilian coast. Instead, the vessel made two voyages to the Orient and most of the crewmen had been aboard for about eight months.

LAOS FACES NEW CRISIS

PLEBISCITE URGED

Legion Erupts
In Flag Blast

WINNIPEG (CP)—Opposition to a maple leaf design for a Canadian flag, proposed by the federal cabinet, erupted today on the floor of the Royal Canadian Legion convention.

Prime Minister Pearson said in Ottawa Tuesday his cabinet has decided to replace the Red Ensign with a flag designed with maple leaves and plans to choose Thursday the specific design it will place before Parliament.

At the convention of Legionnaires, an Ontario resolution called on the Legion to recognize only the Red Ensign, and another from the Legion's Pacific Command called for a national plebiscite to decide the issue.

'Passably Pleased'

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Lesage of Quebec said today the flag project put forward by Prime Minister Pearson pleases him "passably."

He told reporters following a cabinet meeting he likes the colors—red, white and blue—because they are the same as those of the French and British flags.

The idea of two vertical blue stripes on either side of the flag, suggesting a nation stretching from sea to sea, also "has merit."

FOR VIET NAM

U.S. Hikes
Asian Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives foreign affairs committee quickly and unanimously approved today an added $125,000,000 in military and economic aid for South Viet Nam's struggle against communism.

Even as it acted, Defence Secretary McNamara went before the armed services committee, and said American soldiers in South Viet Nam "are receiving the best equipment available for the unique task at hand."

There have been charges that use of obsolete planes had caused the deaths of two American flyers.

McNamara and other top officials presented the case for stepped-up aid to South Viet Nam to the foreign affairs group Tuesday. The committee voted today to add $55,000,000 to military assistance, and $70,000,000 to economic aid, a total of $125,000,000 as President Johnson had asked.

The armed services committee released a copy of the statement McNamara presented to it in closed session.

'RIFLE IN ONE HAND'

Cuba Forces Alerted
For Commando Raids

HAVANA (Reuters)—The Cuban armed forces were in a state of general alert today, anniversary of the country's independence from Spain and the day on which anti-Castro forces had threatened commando raids and sabotage.

The government-controlled press warned that any "agents of the CIA (U.S. Central Intelligence Agency) discovered in Cuba would be crushed."

There has been no announcement about the alert but it was reliably learned troops have been recalled to barracks, all leaves cancelled and the armed forces put on a basis of general alert.

Havana itself remained calm and there was no sign police and militia in the city had been reinforced.

The newspaper Hoy, organ of the Communist party, said in an editorial the best way to respond to "imperialist attacks" was to "re-double our work" while at the same time keeping "rifle in one hand."

It denounced members of exile action groups as "agents of the Central Intelligence Agency" and called on the people "to leave no trace of them" if they appear in Cuba.

Havana radio, monitored in Miami, said today all workers in Oriente province were being mobilized "for the defence of the country and the defence of production."

The broadcast said top military and political leaders in the province conferred Tuesday in Santiago de Cuba.

A report by Cuban exile forces in Miami Tuesday claimed anti-Castro raiders had blown up six bridges in Cuba. (The raiders were led by Manuel Artime, leader of the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion in April, 1961, the sources said.)

(The exiles, connected with Artime's Revolutionary Recovery Movement, said the leader would issue a communique about the operation shortly from "somewhere in Central America.") However, the report caused confusion among spokesmen for the exile group in Miami. Edgar Supo, chief press officer of the group, said "we know nothing about this."

(In still another report Manuel Ray, another exile leader, was said to be on his way to Cuba with trained saboteurs and infiltrators.)

In Havana, meanwhile, Western newspaper men who had planned to make trips into the interior were requested to postpone their visit by the foreign ministry.

Cuban newspapers and radio and television stations did not carry the Miami reports of exile activity.

But Industries Minister Ernesto Guevara said in a speech Sunday that further raids by exile groups could be expected because "the United States is behind them."

Rumors circulated freely in Havana about developments outside the city, particularly in Oriente province where Premier Fidel Castro had his headquarters as leader of the revolutionary movement that brought about the overthrow of president Fulgencio Batista in 1959.

Commies Take Vital Areas

VIENTIANE (AP)—The last positions held by neutralist forces in the Plaine des Jarres region have fallen to the Communists, Premier Souvanna Phouma announced today.

Neutralist Gen. Kong Le abandoned his emergency command post and withdrew further southwest of the plain in the face of continuing Communist pressure, a spokesman for Souvanna said.

(U.S. State Secretary Rusk urgently recalled Adlai Stevenson, chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, from a European trip because of the deepening crisis in Southeast Asia.)

A government statement said "following massive attacks, prepared well in advance launched by the Lao-Viet (Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese) troops against our (neutralist) position in the Plaine des Jarres and Muong Phan, the last neutralist positions existing on the plateau of Xieng Khouang have fallen."

ORIGINAL HEADQUARTERS

Muong Phan, perched on the western edge of the plain, was Kong Le's original headquarters site which the Communists took Monday after a weekend offensive.

The statement did not pinpoint additional neutralist positions that have fallen. Earlier it was reported that the neutralists were clinging to several positions on the fringes of the plain, including Muong Kheung, the headquarters for Kong Le's armored regiment some 20 miles northwest of Muong Phan.

Kong Le's withdrawal—his second in two days—was not reported caused by a fresh attack although two Communist battalions, roughly 800 men, were said to be close behind. It appeared the neutralist general was seeking to avoid a showdown battle.

After the withdrawal from Muong Phan, Kong Le set up a new command post in a hilltop position at Ban Khong, four miles southwest of Muong Phan. Western observers had believed the position would be defended.

YEAR-LONG DRIVE

Loss of the plain—completing a campaign the Pathet Lao started more than a year ago to squeeze Kong Le out of the region the neutralists and Reds once shared—brought a fresh warning from Premier Souvanna that the Pathet Lao leaders "alone must bear the responsibility for this aggression and the resulting consequences."

He called it "a shameful lie to pretend that the Neo Lao Haksat (Pathet Lao) has not taken part in the attacks."

He was referring to Pathet Lao denials of any offensive. The Reds claim dissident neutralists are the source of Kong Le's present troubles.

EQUAL SOVEREIGNTY

Canada Suddenly Emerges
In American Awareness

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

WASHINGTON—While two distinguished diplomats try to analyze, codify and rationalize the unique interdependence of Canada and the United States, its primary fact has been established already and its spirit has improved almost beyond belief.

The primary fact was never set down as clearly as in the recent report of the 25th American Assembly, an influential non-partisan organization of representative thinkers whose opinions, in this field, fully represent the policy of the present United States government.

There are many international relations," says the assembly, "but no such relationship" as that prevailing between the nations of North America. Hence "it is profoundly important to every aspect and problem in the relationship... that the two countries deliberately accept the independent existence of each other and their equal sovereignty."

Every U.S. Act
Then comes this paragraph in which Americans assert a doctrine long asserted by Canadians but seldom heard by their neighbors:

"The disparities of power between the two nations are such that awareness of these principles (of unquestioned sovereignty) must pervade every American policy, every American act and every American attitude toward Canada. We affirm this to be the bedrock premise on which the relationship stands.

"Our ability to be hopeful about the problems we face rests on our confidence that this fact of life is today a premise of American life itself, not merely a policy of United States diplomacy."

No one who has been in Washington this spring can doubt that the American government fully accepts Canada's "equal sovereignty" despite its inferiority of power.

To be sure, this principle has always been accepted theoretically in official documents and public rhetoric. But now it has become, as the American Assembly says, a practical, major and daily concern of an American government distracted by countless other concerns overseas.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

It's getting so that you can't trust a cop these days . . . If you haven't noticed, those three-wheeled motorcycles used by Victoria policemen carry signs that show records of city traffic mishaps.

The signs are supposed to remind motorists to be careful, and that's a fine idea. But I do wish the police would get their records straight.

Noticed during Monday's Victoria Day parade was one bike carrying this record: "Total accidents 709."

Moving in the same direction but on the other side of Douglas Street was a bike that showed: "Total accidents 812."

The convertible inched along in the Victoria Day parade slower than the landau Queen Victoria once used, and the living image of Her Late Majesty in the back seat appeared as unamused as ever.

An American in the crowd wondered aloud who she was as personal royal imposter Mrs. Clare Hamilton McCaul passed by.

Replied a tiny Victoria-Scottish lady nearby: "Oh, that's a waxwork of Queen Victoria."

Mrs. McCaul didn't even blink.

The Colwood Shopping Plaza is way ahead of its time.

The big plastic sign at the entrance reminds us 51 weeks in advance to "Remember Mom on May 10th."

And on top of the provincial cork-and-label establishment are the words "Government Store," obviously one of the first commercial uses of the new phonetic spelling recently introduced at John Stubbs School.

Or perhaps our Big Brother is introducing Newspeak.

Blasters widening Quarantine Road near the William Head prison play a mean game of quito.

Perched above the road on the top branches of a 120-foot fir is an old tire, fired up to its vantage point by the blast which it was supposed to muffle.

The next high wind should bring interesting results to some driver below.

The highway under construction between Campbell River and Kelsey Bay proved a rough ride for colleague Ray Sinclair during his recent vacation.

But in his search for the sun, the displaced Australian decided to try the logging road to Long Beach too.

"The worst road in the world," he said.

At the end of the 46-mile horror stretch, late in the evening, he wasn't surprised to see only one car arrive about 15 minutes later . . . a tiny car bought for $65, he was told.

But he was surprised to find the driver was Jim Duffy, a wandering Australian from a Perth suburb only a couple of miles from his own.

Victoria now has its own Old Faithful, a majestic geyser of water shooting 40 feet or higher from a mysterious source below the boulevard of Lansdowne Road.

Its eruption can be predicted to the very minute—it comes on every night at exactly the same time as the new automatic sprinklers, a remarkable coincidence indeed.

No smoking deterrent on the market will take away your desire to smoke, the National Better Business Bureau claims.

Some products may serve as an aid; the NBBC says, but this is primarily psychological.

"An active determination to stop is essential," a spokesman said.

"The NBBC knows of no drug or combination of drugs which will, in itself, cure the tobacco habit or permanently eliminate the desire for tobacco."

lutions from the floor will be dealt with later.

CALLS VOTE FARCE

The delegate read the telegram to the convention. It said that the free parliamentary vote on the flag promised by Mr. Pearson is a farce.

The telegram said Mr. Pearson is enforcing his brand of nationalism to maintain his reputation as an international diplomat.

Tuesday night the Legion for the third time endorsed the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag.

In a shouted voice vote, the 1,500 delegates gave unanimous approval to a resolution favoring the Red Ensign.

In a parallel move, the convention also voted to send telegrams to every member of the House of Commons outlining the stand.

Both moves came at the tail-end of the Tuesday convention session. Only hours before in Ottawa, Prime Minister Pearson disclosed the cabinet had decided on a maple leaf design for the flag.

BRINGS REBUKE

The disclosure brought a rebuke from the Legion president, Judge C. C. Sparling, who read The Canadian Press story of the cabinet decision to delegates.

He said he was "bitterly disappointed" in the move and said the prime minister should have waited until the Legion had decided the matter before making a binding decision.

Judge Sparling said in the past federal governments had listened to the Legion with respect and attention. "In this case it is not so."

"I do not know what the reason is for the haste and priority."

Judge Sparling said he hoped that before the convention ends delegates would ask for a national plebiscite on the flag issue.

The flag resolution was not scheduled to reach the floor until later. But it was slipped in Tuesday because of what one official termed "the emergent nature" of the situation.

Judge Sparling told delegates he wanted the Legion stand on the record again to guide the executive. The Legion has endorsed the Red Ensign as the national flag at two previous conventions.

The flag issue has loomed as big as a wall-high Red Ensign that forms the head-table backdrop at the meeting hall in a Winnipeg hotel.

Emotions ran high. One delegate said bitterly the Legion should be blamed for its predicament. When the veterans organization earlier "took the Union Jack off the Legion badge, it gave the prime minister the opportunity to take it off the flag."

Almost lost in the flag clamor are deliberations on government plans to transfer operational control of some veterans' hospitals to local civilian agencies.

Delegates voted Tuesday to place a resolution opposing the move in the hands of a special committee made up of provincial command presidents. The committee is expected to bring a recommendation down before the convention closes Friday.

Members also voted Tuesday to urge the federal government to apply the full force of existing legislation to prohibit the distribution of salacious literature through the mail.

Both moves came at the tail-end of the Tuesday convention session. Only hours before in Ottawa, Prime Minister Pearson disclosed the cabinet had decided on a maple leaf design for the flag.

University Speaker To Be Priest

Soldier, priest, educator and now universities foundation executive will be congregation speaker at University of Victoria's first graduation ceremony Monday afternoon.

He is Monsignor Jacques Garneau, 46, associate director of the Canadian Universities Foundation, who will address the class and several hundred guests on the subject Knowledge and Understanding.

CUF is an organization to which most Canadian universities belong—it is the executive function of the National Conference of Canadian Universities and Colleges, which accepted University of Victoria last October.

Msgr. Garneau, who was born in Quebec City, served in the Royal Canadian Artillery signals as a non-commissioned militia officer for three years early in the thirties and became a militia second lieutenant in 1937, when he graduated from Laval University with his arts degree.

WOUNDED

He became a licentiate of theology at Laval in 1941 and the following year joined the chaplain service, going overseas as a captain with the Second Canadian Corps. He was wounded in Normandy in August, 1944.

In 1949 he was appointed under-secretary at Laval and the following year was also made secretary of the graduate school. In 1955 he was named secretary-general at Laval and became a major at 7 Militia Group headquarters.

By 1957, Msgr. Garneau had become moderator at Laval and in 1962 he was named to his present post, also becoming director of the international programs division of NCCUC.

Even more important, it is becoming known at last to the American people who, in the past, have usually treated Canada with genial ignorance and well-meaning indifference. Canada, in short, is emerging with sudden new clarity upon the map of the continent.

Another fact of life has also been accepted in Washington.

When Mr. Pearson said, a dozen years ago, that the continental relationship could never again be easy or automatic, he was widely denounced in the United States as its fair-weather friend, perhaps its secret enemy.

Warning Confirmed

Since then events have completely confirmed his warning. As recently as last month, certain stubborn disputes between the neighbors demonstrated, at a meeting of their governments in Ottawa, that the relationship must always be uneasy, in some areas anyway, and often baffling in its complexities.

Yet the underlying friendship between nations and governments is basically stronger today than it has ever been, mainly because it is no longer confined to spongy sentiments, brotherly platitudes and the denial of disagreement.

Instead, it recognizes, on both sides, that disagreement remains, will always remain and must be lived with. The relationship, as Mr. Pearson foresaw, has graduated from the adolescence of a simpler age into the onerous maturity of the modern world where nothing is easy or automatic.

Changed Atmosphere

This overriding fact of contemporary life is the first to confront Arnold Heeney, for Canada, and Livingston Merchant, for the United States, as they study the reasons for neighborly disagreement and seek new means of minimizing it.

The conclusions of these two experienced international negotiators (each having represented his own nation as ambassador to the other) will not be issued for some months, but meanwhile they are conferring in a drastically changed atmosphere.

Little more than a year ago diplomatic intercourse between Canada and the United States was virtually disrupted by Mr. Diefenbaker's angry feud with the Kennedy administration.

Mr. Diefenbaker is now re-interpreting the record to the point of comical absurdity by attacking the Pearson government for its anti-Americanism and announcing himself as the real champion of continental friendship, but these purely political manoeuvres cannot disguise the truth.

They Like Mike

The truth is that the American government likes and trusts the Pearson government. It detested and distrusted the Diefenbaker government.

On the other hand, the American government has found that the Pearson government, though friendly, is surprisingly tough at the bargaining table. Not only tough, but sometimes grossly mistaken, as it has lately admitted.

Next to Mr. Diefenbaker no Canadian statesman of modern times has rivaled Walter Gordon in the contest for unpopularity at Washington. His first budget, in 1963, almost destroyed overnight the quick accord built between Mr. Pearson and the late president Kennedy.

While most of the anti-American devices of the budget were hastily withdrawn, Mr. Gordon has not been rehabilitated in Washington as he apparently supposed.

Anyone skilled in reading between the lines of diplomatic language could see at once that the recent speech of George Ball, American under-secretary of state, was nothing but a sharp rebuke to the Canadian finance minister. His nationalistic and protectionist sentiments, as viewed from Washington, cut straight across Mr. Pearson's long-term policies and the promising Heeney-Merchant initiative.

Irritating Relics

relics of the Gordon budget have not been removed.

By its withholding tax arrangements—though they have been greatly modified—Canada still enforces discrimination against foreign investors, mostly American, as no other Western nation enforces it.

That discrimination is regarded in Washington as not only unfair but dangerous because other nations may follow Canada's example.

The amount of money involved is not very important. To the United States the principle of equity, as violated by Canada, is vital and casts the only significant immediate shadow on the continental relationship.

Dislikes Tariffs

The United States also dislikes Canada's method of stimulating its automobile industry by tariff incentives on imported parts, but in this dispute the figures show that American importers are having the best of the bargain.

Canadian automotive exports to the United States have grown satisfactorily. American exports to Canada have grown far faster. The American automobile industry complains against an alleged Canadian export subsidy but the American government is not seriously alarmed.

A much smaller dispute, in terms of money, centres around Canada's vague and so far ineffective attempt to protect its magazine industry from alleged American dumping. This policy, which has divided the Canadian government and the Liberal party, may never be enforced, in its present form at least, but it touches a raw nerve at Washington where it is misrepresented as an interference with the free flow of information.

Big Trade Issues

Naturally, in an election year, Washington politicians of all parties have no wish to quarrel with American magazines and must quarrel with Mr. Pearson's rather confused effort to preserve those of Canada.

These three frictions—discriminatory taxes, automobile tariffs and magazine problems—will not be the last to appear on the Canadian-American agenda and they are all minor beside the shaking issues of international trade posed by the Kennedy Round of tariff bargaining.

In the edictive trade negotiations to open next autumn Canada must play a major part because it is a huge trader. What part? Will Canada follow the protectionist course outlined quite plainly by Mr. Gordon or the low-tariff expansionist principles represented by Mitchell Sharp?

This is the great unanswered question of the continental relationship now entering a new phase of enlightened friendship and, at times, of inevitable disagreement between friends.

Mikes Discovered In Our Embassies

OTTAWA (CP)—Several dozen listening devices have been discovered over the years in Canadian chanceries and embassy personnel residences in Iron Curtain countries, the external affairs department said today.

This is a standard technique in Iron Curtain countries, said a department spokesman in commenting on the U.S. revelation Tuesday that more than 40 microphones have been discovered in the last 11 years in the American embassy in Moscow.

Three Minor Groups Back Proposed Flag

OTTAWA (CP) — Leaders of three opposition parties in the Commons have indicated they will support Prime Minister Pearson's choice of a new Canadian flag featuring three maple leaves.

Mr. Pearson told the Commons Tuesday his Liberal government would stand or fall on the maple leaf design.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said the NDP caucus won't discuss the matter until the government submits a design to Parliament, apparently next week. But his party was on record as favoring a distinctive new Canadian flag.

Creditist leader Real Caouette said the party's 13 MPs will definitely vote for the government's motion on the new flag.

And Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson chimed in that he is prepared to go along with the prime minister's choice.

Mr. Thompson said he isn't prejudiced against the Red Ensign but "it really is the flag of the British Merchant Marine with the Canadian coat of arms added."

Support of the three parties would guarantee the minority Liberal government's survival even if Opposition Leader Diefenbaker accepts an invitation voiced by Mr. Pearson Tuesday to make the flag question a matter of confidence.

A man seen going north on the wrong side of Burnside was convicted of impaired driving when he appeared in court.

Paul Miskulin, 566 Bay Street, was fined $300 and lost his licence. Evidence showed he couldn't stand without support when police asked him to get out of his car.

FLAG FIGHT

Bennett Smiled But Tory Riled

A local MP says Canada's proposed new flag could split the nation, but Premier W. A. C. Bennett is just amused by the controversy.

"Just say I smiled," said Mr. Bennett when asked Tuesday about the flag.

George Chatterton, Conservative MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, said there should be a national plebiscite on the flag.

A staunch Legion member, Mr. Chatterton favors the Red Ensign over Prime Minister Pearson's maple leaf design.

GOV'T ENGINEER:

Drainage Flows Away From Lake

A provincial government health engineer Tuesday told metro health board that surface drainage from the Hartland Road garbage dump flows in a northerly direction away from Prospect Lake.

But Prospect Lake and District Community Association vice-president D. M. Sandford said a privately-retained engineering firm surveyed the hilly area and reported that part of the drainage flows south into Kilarney Lake and thence to Prospect Lake.

However, provincial health engineer William Bailey, in his direct report to metro health board, said that while a small amount of surface drainage would flow south; it would not pass through the garbage dump area.

ACTION DELAYED

Metro health board decided to wait for receipt of the Prospect Lake association's report before deciding on any action.

But some members indicated they could not agree with the association's claim, that pollution of the lake was caused by the garbage dump, after a sanitation official said he saw "gobs" of bird dung and many weeds floating on the lake.

E. Benham, assistant director of sanitation services

The meeting between the firm and members of Local 13, Office Employees International Union (CLC) started at 11 a.m. It is chaired by deputy labor Minister William Sands.

The giant mill was forced to shut down Tuesday when 1,000 other employees refused to cross picket lines set up by the 70 office employees, who are seeking higher pay.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said today the labor department had been unsuccessful in attempts during the weekend to get the two parties together Tuesday so as to avoid the strike.

SQUIRE BLAMES FIRM

He declined to say whether one side or both had refused to take part in the pre-strike talks, but at Port Alberni John Squire, New Democrat MLA for Alberni, blamed the firm.

Mr. Squire, a local business agent for the International Woodworkers of America (CLC), said he had been told that while the union had shown a willingness to talk the company would not agree to the bargaining sessions.

"In my opinion the company is trying to prevent the unionization of office employees in other plants," Mr. Squire said.

Negotiating its first contract with the company, the union seeks wage increases averaging $75 a month on salaries ranging from $205 to $450 monthly.

William Lowe, union international secretary, said the workers went on strike because the company refuses to pay salaries comparable to those paid by competing employers in the same industry having agreements with the office employees' union.

Mr. Lowe said the strike could force a shut down of the Sorness mills, because they depend on the pulp and paper operation for electricity and water.

'BUY OFF'

Mr. Lowe said the company had made a "flagrant attempt to buy-off" the workers May 12, when a meeting was called during office hours. Each employee, Mr. Lowe said, was handed an envelope containing a letter stating the employee was granted a salary increase ranging from between 11 to 15 per cent. The increases, he said, were retroactive to Feb. 1.

The company's action, Mr. Lowe said, "is contrary to all concepts of decent, responsible labor-management relations."

A company spokesman said the action was merely evidence of company good faith "in attempting to reach an agreement and avoid a strike."

"These adjustments were made as soon as it was legally able to do so under the provisions of the Labor Relations Act," he said.

DISCOVERY INN

Marwell to Build 50-Room Addition

Contract for the six-storey, 50-room addition to Discovery Inn, Campbell River, has been awarded to Marwell Construction of Vancouver, William Pattison, president of Delta Properties Ltd., said today.

Work on the half-million-dollar addition will start in September with completion scheduled for March, 1965.

Architects are Reno Negrin & Associates, who designed both the Bayshore Inn and the Calgary Inn.

The new addition will give a total of 100 rooms, making it the second-largest hotel on Vancouver Island, its owners say. The Empress Hotel in Victoria is the largest. In addition to the new rooms, there will be banquet facilities to accommodate 375 persons. The new cocktail lounge, with capacity for 100, will feature a nautical and native Indian motif, symbolic of Capt. Vancouver's ship The Discovery.

The addition will also have space for offices and stores.

The completed project will be valued at over $1,200,000. Discovery Inn forms part of the Tyee Plaza shopping centre which features a complement of 19 stores. The total value of the combined operation is over $3,000,000.

Delta Properties Ltd. operates Discovery Inn, Vancouver Airport Inn and other commercial real estate.

'Shabby' Treatment Protested

ALBERNI—The British Columbia Federation of Labour donated $2,500 to the Alberni Disaster Fund Tuesday and protested the "shabby" treatment of victims by Ottawa.

Pat O'Neal, secretary of the federation, said after presenting the cheque that if a similar disaster had occurred in a foreign country Canada would have been there first with financial and other assistance.

He said he hoped Ottawa and Victoria would "stop playing politics" and provide adequate compensation to victims of the Good Friday tidal wave that swept up the Alberni Canal following the Alaska earthquake.

METRO TALKS THURSDAY

Is Provincial Gun Loaded In Sewer Board Skirmish?

By JOHN MIKA
Times City Hall Reporter

There are indications that intermunicipal committee will have a provincial gun at its head Thursday when it meets to discuss possible formation of a metro sewer board.

But nobody knows yet whether the gun is loaded.

Metro health board, which has been pushing for a sewer authority, was told Tuesday by chairman R. Gordon Lee that there are indications the government will compel the local councils to set up a board if they don't do it voluntarily.

The Central Saanich reeve said he came away from private discussions with Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell with the belief that the government "may take the initiative" in creating such a board.

PRE-CONDITION

The minister earlier this year made formation of a sewer authority a pre-condition of any government assistance for a regional sewer study including large chunks of provincial territory.

But this immediately brought strong reaction from some Victoria aldermen who said they were willing to share costs of a study to help the outside municipalities but would fight inclusion in any autonomous sewer authority.

They claimed this would be another case, like the enforced creation of Greater Victoria school board, of milking Victoria taxpayers who have already provided themselves with an adequate sewer system to pay for more services in Saanich.

Reeve Lee said that since this reaction Mr. Campbell has contacted civic leaders individually and pressed them to hold a meeting to discuss the idea further.

"The loss of local autonomy may not be so great as the municipalities fear," he said. "But it is too much to expect the city of Victoria and the other municipalities to sit down together and voluntarily form a board."

For this reason the initiative may be taken by the provincial government.

Reeve Lee stressed that as far as he knew the government had not yet committed itself to compelling formation of a sewer board.

BOY JUST MISSES FIERY DEATH

COURTENAY—A five-year-old boy narrowly escaped being burned alive in downtown Courtenay Saturday when his father's car burst into flames.

Garry Goulder was in the back seat of the 1953 two-door car when burning dashboard wires fell on the floor.

As he leaped from the car, it seemed to explode, the windshield blew out and the flames were six to eight feet high, a spectator said.

Trapped inside the car to die was the boy's three-month cocker spaniel "Suzie."

The boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Goulder of Campbell River, had left the car on business.

The vehicle, parked in front of the Arbutus Hotel, was a total loss.
